Exhibit to Celebrate Constitution Adoption

PROFESSOR GAGE announces that his political science class, section 108, will present an exhibit celebrating the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the adoption of the Constitution. Although no very definite plans have been arranged as yet, a committee with Robert England as chairman was elected. Other members of the committee include: Stanley Daugert, Vera Grushetsky, William Thomas, Reuben Rader, Jed Wiener, and Robert McGuire. The committee has asked Professor Gage to act as honorary chairman.

The display will be set up in the Conygham Hall library where students are requested to view it. The exact date has not been determined, but students should look forward to examining this historical and educational exhibit in the near future.

Among others, the materials will be received from the following sources: The United States (Continued on page six)

Dr. David Brown

DR. DAVID BROWN, second of the new additions to the Bucknell University Junior College faculty to be interviewed, admitted to this reporter that the forthcoming would be his first interview.

He was born in Scotland but came to the United States at an early age spending most of his life in Massachusetts. He attended Williams College, where he received a degree of Bachelor of Arts. He continued his education at Harvard where he received his M. A. Later he was awarded the degree of Doctor of Philosophy by Yale.

Before coming to Bucknell to teach English and public speaking, Dr. Brown was English professor at Yale and later at Williams College.

Dr. Brown was also very emphatic about the fact that he is the proud father of two young daughters.

As hobbies, Dr. Brown plays the piano and scarpes furniture in order to refresh it.

Faculty Team Paces Intra-Mural Circuit

THE Bucknell Junior College Intramural Bowling League has completed the first month of its schedule with the faculty team on top for the fourth consecutive week. Brown, which is in second place, apparently will have to be "hot" when it meets (Continued on page six)

"Peace At Any Price"

All around us today we hear talk of War—and talk of Peace. War, the line of least resistance, the weapon of megalomaniacs, the result of selfish nationalism. PEACE, the hard way, the outgrowth of an internationalism which looks to the welfare of all rather than the aggrandizement of one. PEACE—is it merely a state envisioned by sentimental idealists? Or is it a realistic concept—to which we look with cynicism because past experience has instilled in us a disbelief in the possibility of Peace?

We cry for peace; we make impassioned pleas in its behalf; we sigh despairingly as reports of new wars reach our ears. "Peace at any price" we shout as we make plans to punish the "aggressor" by boycotting his goods or refusing to sell to him. "We must not take sides as we did in the last great war" we solemnly declare as we point accusingly at this or that nation. Hypocritically unprejudiced we make slogans, post creeds, defend "rights." And whither are we drifting? It is all very well to profess a righteous indignation over the plight of a downtrodden nation. It is one of the better characteristics of human nature that it sympathizes with the weak. But we must not allow our emotions to guide us as when Peace is at stake. Emotions, are, at the best, unstable things.

We must consider events in the light of cold logic. If we boycott one nation, we will be favoring another. Already we are taking sides.

It is clear that the only way for a nation to maintain peace is to incorporate a policy of economic isolation where warring nations are concerned. Obviously this would give an advantage to the nation which was already in possession of the greater supply of resources of war. However, this may be, economic isolation remain the only feasible plan whereby war may be discouraged and Peace instituted as a fact rather than an idea.

American Newspaper Guild Strike

Of particular interest to the editors was the American Newspaper Guild strike on the Wilkes-Barre Record because some of us, happily or unhappily, have journalistic aspirations. Too many times has our enthusiasm for the field of writing been dampened by stories of college graduates as newspaper reporters, receiving fifteen dollars a week, working innumerable hours, and fearing at all times the slicing block.

In many industries labor has been given strength by the union movement. The technical side of a newspaper: printing, composing, etc., has its potent Typographical Union, which obligates for its constituents a high wage, low hours, and the all-important closed shop. Then why shouldn't the reporterial, editorial, and business sides of a newspaper gain the same benefits the union movement.

We were glad to see the local guild fight for its rights. We were glad that the strike progressed without form of violence. We are glad that the strike is over. And most important, we are glad that the Guild won what it was fighting for; a closed shop, better pay, a lower scale of working hours.

Our journalistic ambitions progress with renewed vigor and hope.

By M. R.

THE much heralded Nine Power Conference is now in session at Brussels. Most observers feel that this conference can do nothing to alliviate the Far Eastern situation and is doomed to certain failure. In the first place, not one of the nations in attendance will accept the "leader" position or will take any responsibility which might in the long run involve that nation in armed conflict. Secondly, Japan, who holds the key to future development toward the peaceful toward the peaceful, is not participating.

Last week, the Nine Power Conference invited Japan to send representatives to exchange views with representatives of a small number of Powers. Broken down to literal meaning, the invitation "begs" Japan to "please" come. The invitation was so feeble, so obsequious, so pitifully weak, that it probably reduced the Japanese to mocking laughter.

An interesting sidelight of the conference was the attempt on the part of Sir Anthony Eden, Great Britain's Foreign Secretary, to organize an "Anti-Dictatorship" agreement with England, France, United States and other democratic members. It is obvious that the purpose of an agreement of this sort would be to counteract the ominous "Holy Alliance Against Communism" which binds Italy, Japan, and Germany. However, it is reliably reported that all interest in this "democratic" pact has died because United States still refuses to cooperate in any endeavor of this sort.

In a few weeks or less, the N. P. C. will adjourn. On the day that the conference ends, the delegates will no doubt put their signatures to a proclamation condemning Japan as an aggressor. This proclamation, we'll dare predict, will be the only end-product of the parley. After all, whether the United States, Great Britain, and the League of Nations recognize the fact that Japan was the aggressor long before the N. P. C. was organized.

The delegates representing United States will now come home and will meet reporters who will ask them a number of questions brought up by the "do-nothing" policy of United States at the N. P. C. The following interview is not improbable.

Reporter: "Does the United States stand for continued security and 'quarantine' or for neutrality and isolation?"

Mr. Norman Davis: "We had a lovely trip."

R.: Is it sufficient to give China moral support only?"

Mr. D.: "The Queen Mary is a fine boat."

R.: "What is our foreign policy?"

Mr. D.: "Belgium is beautiful in the fall."

In predicting these answers for Mr. Davis, this writer realizes that he has stumbled on another question of foreign policy. Would it be correct for a diplomat of the United States to admit that another country is beautiful in the fall, that another revolution builds fine ships? The diplomatic mind of this country would probably analyze this question in this manner—"It is correct and then again it isn't—Now let me see—"

Rabbi Wolk Speaks

"is the road to plenty. As in the Greek legend of Tantalus, we are tarrying by poverty in the midst of plenty."

Dr. Wolk, referring to the local election, also suggested that a local Fusion Party would be a blessing to the valley.

Mrs. Gertrude Williams, prolific journalist, addressed the assembly on October 26. She pointed out that a large number of innocent looking articles in well-known magazines and newspapers are, in reality, propaganda. Propaganda, she emphasized, may be salutary as well as harmful.

WIND THOUGHTS

Oh wind that ruffles the water
To disturbing, exciting activity;
Impetuous wind that roars and bends this tree
Relentlessly dislodging roots so long planted firmly
So like a sudden attack on our fondest philosophies;
Trampling our trust and threatening rain
In that tension of paralyzing doubts.

Which, as sudden as the hush after storms, stops,
Leaving us as the tree, wiser and humbler.
THE EVOLUTION OF RADIO NEWS-BROADCASTING—PART 1

By Richard Owens

Speed has wrought great changes in many fields of endeavor within the past decade. Speed has always been an essential of good news gathering and reporting but never to such a great extent as within the last few years when radio has definitely entered the field of news dissemination. For in radio, deadlines are determined on split seconds, and unlike newspaper publishing, the press cannot be held for a break on a good news story.

The first attempts at radio news reporting were very feeble and were, in the main, cooperative efforts of small local stations with local newspapers, the primary idea being the boosting of the newspaper's circulation and not any great desire upon the part of the radio station to serve the public with timeliness of news items. However, ideas are born to be improved upon, and such improvements came rapidly to this particular type of radio program which the public demand was increased. They demanded news, asked for more news, better edited, and presented at timely periods throughout the day.

MANY ORGANIZATIONS TO PARADE FOR PEACE

The Luzerne County Peace Council plans a parade in the interest of Peace on Thursday afternoon, Armistice Day, November 11. This parade is sponsored by many church and young people's organizations in the county, including the Wyoming Valley Ministers' Association. Several floats will be special features and among the groups marching will be the one representing School and College. Any college student or college graduate will be welcome and should report to Dr. Crook. The parade will form on Union Street near State and march through central city streets to West River, where it will disband. The parade will assemble at 3:30 and march promptly at 4:00. In case of rain the parade will take place the next afternoon.

New Group Will Probe Nation’s Relations

Carnegie Endowment to Provide Literature, Aides to Study

A n International Relations Club has recently been organized under the supervision of Professor Gage. This club is sponsored by the Carnegie Endowment on condition that the members study and discuss world affairs from an unprejudiced point of view. The Endowment will send an installment of books chosen from the latest authoritative publications on international affairs. Also, a Fortnightly Summary of International Events is sent regularly to the club.

The purpose of the Carnegie Endowment in undertaking this work is to fix the attention of students on the underlying principles of international conduct and thus promote a peaceful civilization.

The first regular meeting will be held at 3:30 on November 16—the place of meeting will be announced later. The problem which first commands attention is the Chino-Japanese hostility.

There are no specific qualifications for membership save an expressed interest on the part of the student in international problems.

Pre-Meds Told Needs of Modern Physician

T he first regular meeting of the Pre-Medical Club was held Thursday evening, Oct. 21, at Chase Hall. Dr. DesJardins, of the X-Ray Department at Wilkes-Barre General Hospital, was the first speaker of the year. Dr. DesJardins, throughout his address constantly emphasized the need for a "pleasing personality not only in the Pre-Medical-Medical Colleges but in practice as well."

The need for the necessary factors for entering medical school as being, "neatness, integrity, aptitude, scholastic ability, and sufficient funds, colleges seldom accepting students lacking necessary funds. The Medical Colleges in Pennsylvania are all recognized by the American Medical Association."

DesJardins was introduced by the President, Francis Ford. The Pre-Medical Club is planning to have a number of such speakers, men who are qualified experts in respective medical professions. Dr. Francis T. O’Donnell who is chairman of the “Diphtheria Prevention Campaign” will be the next speaker, his topic being “Nutrition.”

FACULTY NOTES

Changes in Bucknell Juniors
Junior College include not only the new location but also some of the faculty who have chosen either to further their studies or to accept positions elsewhere.

Miss Majel Keith Brooks who taught French and was Dean of Women is at present continuing studies toward a Ph. D. at Columbia. Miss Brooks, whose home is in New York City is a Barnard graduate having received her Master’s degree in French at Columbia.

Dr. Churchill, professor of English is now head of the English department at Coe College, Cedar Crest, Iowa. The Churchills are the proud parents of a son, Malcolm Hughes, who weighed seven and one-half pounds at birth. Mrs. Churchill, who will be remembered as the Junior College librarian, has chosen to give up her library work.

Former instructor of economics, Mr. Paul Schwartz is teaching in a high school in his native city, Harrisburg.

Ex-Garage Scene of Thespian’s Party

T he Thespians held a very successful masqued party on October 29 in the ex-garage at Chase Hall. After meeting in the girl’s lounge, the group gathered in the garage, where from the walls hung decorations giving the effect of Hallowe’en. Costumes were worn by all. Bob Conway seemed to attract wide attention with his costume of an old maid, because of his not being recognized until the late hours of the evening. Nagle also made a hit in his kits.

Music was furnished by the orthophonic from the reception room. No needle could be found so the committee used their brains and pulled out a cactus needle from a plant in Miss Sagner’s office.

The grand march took place at 9:30. Guest judges were three former students from our Junior College who are now at the campus at Lewisburg. Prizes were awarded to Leo Simonson for the funniest costume and to Bob Conway for the most original. After a mad scramble searching for hidden peanuts. Herman Propper was awarded for the possession of the greatest amount.

The climax of the evening of dancing and fun-making was marked by the serving of a lunch of pumpkin pie and hot coffee.

Debaters Plan Busy, Successful Season

ENRICHED by a number of eager newcomers, coached by a new professor, bolstered by two regulars from last year, the Debating Club looks forward to an active season.

Several practice debates have already been held on the question, “Resolved that Mr. Justice Black resign.” Dr. Brown is sufficiently encouraged from the activities thus far to predict a successful season. Maurice Reinhardt and John Gambold, who participated in several debates last year, will serve as the nucleus of this year’s team.

Each year Pi Kappa Delta, national debating fraternity, selects a timely question which all associated colleges use throughout the term. This year’s question is, “Resolved that the National Labor Relations Board should be empowered to enforce arbitration of all industrial disputes.”

Tentative debates have already been arranged with Penn State, Scranton Keystone Junior College, Muhlenberg, Bucknell at Lewisburg, St. Thomas, and Nassau College in Long Island. It is hoped that St. Joseph’s and Temple University in Philadelphia will also agree to debate the Junior College.

GALA REVELRY MARKS GERMAN CLUB PARTY

G ERMAN CLUB members examined the elaborate German class at a masked Hallowe’en Party at Chase Hall on Tuesday evening, October 26.

To the howls of the “simple pleasure” music of the victrola in radio’s clothing, swished a peasant girl and an anthracite miner, an Arabian boy and an Ukranian girl, a petite Martha Washington and a tall Mexican; and last but not least that attractive couple composed of a pirate girl and a bonnie Scotch laddie.

Freddie the Freshman seemed to have some difficulty in leading sweet Varsity Sue about the floor. Believing that it’s smart to be late, the little old lady made her debut later in the evening, and attracted quite a good bit of attention trying to manage her hoops as she did a modern “hop.”

What might be well called the “duck dance,” was a highlight of the evening. With his noble brow dripping with H2O and possessionally munching an apple, the rather wilted, drooping swain presented a slip of paper containing the girl’s name to her, and he blissfully proceeded to enjoy the dance.

JOHN GUNNEY, a member of the Bucknell Junior College swimming team, won a trophy for being the outstanding swimmer in the senior division of the local Y. M. C. A. mermen meet. John's honor was bestowed upon him for winning three first places; the 50-yard free-style, the 100-yard free-style, and the 220-yard free-style.

The swimming team, under the leadership of "Slats" Obitz, has added a Metropolitan team to its schedule. The team will travel to New York on December 11 and meet the highly touted C. C. N. Y. tankmen.

Contratulations!

Mr. Obitz, coach of the swimming team, has begun to raise another champion of his own flesh and blood: an eight pound baby was born to his wife on Hallowee'n at about eight o'clock. Congratulations, coach! We'll be seeing him in Bucknell some day, perhaps.

YOUR columnist feels rather inspired this time — what with such a place as the conservatory to keep love in bloom — speaking of the garden, the Freshman girls think Costine is a honey with that “B” on his sweater — The German Club makes the news this month— the masquerade party was a hit— wonder if Herr Disque had his heart in the right place in that Knife of Hearts costume, and poor Nagle — wonder if his knees were cold — by the way, Galiney as Ali Baba went to town— nough said! .. Swimming has become quite the rage with the girls of the school — there's always one to meet you at the "Y" — MacCuffie is lapping .. Yours truly has just been informed that Norman Costine has received his appointment to West Point, congratulations! (Army and you still friends?)

Food for thought—the cafeteria has a standing order of Boston Cream pie once a week— make your reservations early .. It's an art to sit on those cafeteria stools— wonder how Romeaine does it .. After that English comp. class the other day, Bendock has resolved to start a trousseau, and it's too much for Campbell .. the motion pictures in Physical Science are becoming a habit— Propper still insists on holding hands .. Who would think that Bin Thomas goes hunting week-ends for deer .. Chris Whitman seems to object .. Remember Chris, you can't have everything .. To get down to a little more serious business, Yours Truly must answer a few letters dropped in his box this morning:

Dear Izzy:
This morning it rained and on my way to school, a car with one of our students driving splashed me. What to do? Drenched.

Dear Drip:
Get in touch with Pell.

Dear Izzy:
I can't seem to make the German word "Bursch" a part of my vocabulary. What can I do? Bube.

Dear Bube:
Remember the adage, "A bird in the hand is worth two in the Bursch."

"And so life goes on," says Clarence, looking in the mirror. You can never tell what you can run into .. the other day Pop Loftus found a deer in the yard .. So many things creep up that one can't help wondering why ..

So few girls of the school get to the college dances. Miss Pence doesn't get tired running from one room to the other. Students are not acquainted yet. Marjorie Shapiro waits for the mailman. Tuby does not lose track of Krashkevich. Conlon doesn't forget to consult Lewis.

On November 2, the class visited the Georgetown Settlement House. Here the class was guided by Mrs. Parry, an enthusiastic social worker of the settlement, who also explained the various duties of the settlement. Surprise was evinced by the class at the number of people accommodated each week and at the enthusiasm of the Georgetown citizens for their community center. The Settlement, begun by the sister of Mayor Love- land, has attained its present popularity and strength in the community by its unwavering staff of social workers, namely, Miss Watson, Mrs. Parry and Mr. Ransom.

The following made the trips: Messrs. Joseph Brilzin, Joseph Gallagher, John Gambold, Fred Miller, Ivan Stamper, Jack Lehter and Dr. Crook; Misses Marjorie Shapiro, Anne Reina- cher and Marion Clark.
