Four students, Miss Lila June Austen, Miss Helen W. Hinkle, Miss Gretchen Trobach, and Miss Ruth Holtzman, with Dr. Robert Nicholls, rector, presented a discussion on the topic, "What shall be the policy of the United Nations in the post-war world?", over radio station WBNX on Tuesday, March 21.

Miss Austen, the first speaker, in her discussion of the dynamics and background of the country, said how the great feudal families which dominated the political and social life of the country faced disaster in the early years of the 1930's. "Their choice was simple. One: effect a long overdue economic and political New Deal which in turn would mean the diminution of their power, or, two: either support the Japanese masses from their desperate plight or go down with their neighbors." It is needless to say which of the two was their choice, nor is a part of the past years tell us clearly.

Following Miss Austen, Mr. Trachtenberg dealt with the treatment of China in the post-war world. In presenting the prime prerequisite for a lasting peace, he stressed that China must be both strong and independent. It is to be remembered that it was because of China's position that the United States was engaged in the war in the Pacific-China, which would be the last barrier of the empire of the world's colonies. The world could not decide on her position.

In speaking of China, Miss Trobach, the next speaker, stressed that China must be strong and independent. It is to be remembered that it was because of China's position that the United States was engaged in the war in the Pacific-China, which would be the last barrier of the empire of the world's colonies. The world could not decide on her position.

The question of the policy of the United Nations in the colonial areas of the south-east Asia continent is often thought of a trifle, while it does require great discussion. Miss Holtzman spoke briefly on each individual colony, pointing out the possible plans for the future of each colony. The world could not decide on her position.

PHYSICAL THERAPISTS NEEDED

A critical shortage of qualified physical therapists which endangers the proper care of infantile paralysis victims caused the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis to appropriate $1,267,600 for training these vital needed specialists, Basil O'Connor, president, announced recently.

Present day medical treatment of patients with infantile paralysis is dependent on the use of physical agents such as heat, electricity, light, exercise, rest, muscle training and physical agents and surgical methods.

The trouble, there are only 2,500 qualified therapists, of whom more than half are in the Armed Forces. O'Connor, a physical therapist, added the need for additional physical therapists, and also for providing an educational program, but for the training of infantile paralysis, to effect a cure. It is estimated that an additional 5,000 could be used immediately, but for the treatment of infantile paralysis, and for aiding recovery from other diseases and disabilities.

The $1,267,600 program developed under the guidance of a special committee established in the field of physical therapy consists of three parts: (1) a $1,073,600 for scholarships to train new physical therapists; (2) $82,000 for fellowships to provide additional teachers and students; (3) $78,000 for general development of the field of physical therapy.

We feel," said Mr. O'Connor, "that this step constitutes one of the outstanding contributions which the American public has made to the solution of the problem. The Times to fight against infantile paralysis.

THESPIAN

PRESIDENT

The Thespian Dramatic Group announces that "Hay Fever", a comedy in three acts, by Noel Coward, is in rehearsal. Tentative arrangements have set the date of production in the latter part of May.

The amusing story of an unconventional family is unfolded in the duration of a week-end at its home. The Blisses consider themselves professionals of great fame, but in reality their talents are quite limited. Nevertheless, they have convinced many audiences with their apparent sincerity.

Judith Bliss, (Helen Butler) a famous actress in her youth, inveigles a young athlete (Robert Wenzl), who is infatuated with her, to come for the week-end. David, (Mr. Steinmann), her husband and a professor of engineering, arrives with a bachelor's degree in a new novel in a young flapper (Gloria Parkas), a famous actress in her youth, and with her. They are quite apparent in their presenting the presence of a suave diplomatist, Richard Greatham (Phyllis Kirschner), an English housekeeper, adds a bit of quaint humor to the melange with her gossipy and pointed remarks.

Paric reigns when each member of the family discovers that the others expect their visitor to sleep in the only available room. The four guests arrive in the midst of a family quarrel, and soon they find themselves participating in it. As the plot develops, the original couples break up and create new romances. After making hilarious upheavals and embarrassing situations, the four bewildered, disgruntled guests sneak away, leaving this Bohemian family unconcerned and uninterrupted at the breakfast table.

The Thespian group began the term with the election of new officers for the season. Zosia Glowacki was elected President, Robert Lehet, who is now studying at the Campus, Helen Butler, Vice-President, and Robert Stadulis, Secretary, and Helen Davidson, Student Council Representative, re-elected in the same offices. Florence Jones was elected Historian, succeeding Louise Saba.
FRANKLIN DELANO ROOSEVELT

A most significant date, which will remain in the minds of all liberty-loving people in the future, is April 12, 1945. On this date the world suffered a tremendous loss with the passing of our beloved President, Franklin Delano Roosevelt.

Perhaps the greatest of his many contributions to the world was his work as a humanitarian. Roosevelt, despite his aristocratic upbringings, was always the champion of the "little man" and of all the minority groups. In examining his social and economic reforms, it should be noted that it was the laborers and the farmers who received the benefit of his aid in many domestic issues.

In the field of foreign affairs, it was Roosevelt who was the leader of the "Big Three". He had tremendous prestige in Great Britain and continental Europe. This prestige greatly aided in maintaining the morale of our Allies during the early, dark days of the war, when Hitler had already occupied the small countries bordering Germany. War President Roosevelt died with Russian armies in the East and American, British and Canadian armies in the West pressing onward to Berlin. The complete defeat of Hitler was almost in sight. In the Far East, meanwhile, Japan was being hemmed in very effectively by huge United States military and naval forces.

Perhaps the biggest consolation to the President was the prospect of an international organization to maintain peace after victory. He had real hope that the United States would abandon its traditional isolationist in the founding of this organization. His desire for this was well expressed in his fourth inaugural address on January 20, 1945:

"We have learned that we cannot live alone, at peace; that our well-being is dependent upon the well-being of other nations far away. We have learned that we must live as men, and not as ostriches, nor as dogs in the manger. We have learned to be citizens of the world, members of the human community."

MRS. TRAVIS SPEAKS TO S.F.

On Thursday night, April 5, Mrs. Travis, a member of the Wilkes-Barre Daily Record editorial staff, spoke to a group of Student Federals of Bucknell Junior College.

Mrs. Travis presented her views on "Our Part in the Peace". She urged everyone to take an active interest in the various peace efforts by reading the papers and literature connected with peace proposals. She outlined the steps made by the Allies for the prosecution of the war and for the development of the coming peace conference. With the first meeting between the late President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill, and ending with the Yalta Conference.

In conclusion, she stated that we should keep our tongues free of the differences between ourselves and our allies but instead, we should harp on our like characteristics.

PRE-MED NEWS

By RUTH YOUNG

On March 23, the Pre-Med Club visited the Children's Service Center, 335 South Franklin Street, Wilkes-Barre. Miss Kathy, the chairman, explained the methods for determining intelligence quotients, manual skill, and other psychological and general knowledge. Tests that vary in degree of difficulty have been prepared for Northern Pennsylvania age groups. Results have been standardized by examining many candidates in a testing group during a period of years.

One type test is to insert wooden squares properly on a set of proper hollow positions on a flat rectangular board. The child of four, five, and six years of age as well as the examiner figures to become more neatly placed and more complex. Powers of association, perception, and understanding as other tests the child is shown cards on which are drawn specific patterns of several colored. The test is to reproduce these with wooden blocks. Beads combinations are used in the second test, and after a number of seconds, and then the child is asked to reproduce the pattern.

Wooden discs that resemble checks are placed in spaces providing a variety in a test of wood polish; after this they are to be inverted. Finger speed is determined of the time required to perform the tests stated. "Ink blot" pictures are presented, and the child is asked what they represent. It has been found that even though this test may be taken at different intervals the results indicate identical personality patterns. Comprehensive tests, which with intelligence, and general knowledge have been calibrated for certain age levels. Different tests are used for children of various tests while for others, time is unlimited.

Tests have devised for children as young as three months. Such tests, as well as those of two to three years, consist primarily of following directions, recognition of objects, imitation, and repetition.

Before a diagnosis is made or a child is declared to be thoroughly tested so that the results are a reliable criterion of his mental development. There are playrooms for the children who come to the Center. Here patients are sustained to be discovered or aroused. The psychologists, psychiatrists and case workers perform invaluable work to help the child work out their difficulties and to create for themselves desirable, healthful habits.

On March 28, Dr. Peter Mayock spoke on the preparation which he thinks most suitable for a doctor. "This year's crop," he said, "is the only one of the natural knowledge necessary to make a proper diagnosis and to administer the right treatment. Only those readers of those things which will help him understand his fellow man."

We would like to emphasize the importance of this idea, because in the business of today it is apt to be neglected. If men would cast away selfish, trivial desires and more eagerly share their advantages with others, the promotion of the general welfare would indeed be enhanced.

Dr. Mayock spoke also about a doctor's work in dealing with the underserved. He expressed a hope that measures would be taken to provide adequate medical care for all people, but that in so doing doctors would not be regimented and would exercise the control of "political bosses."

On April 6 the Club visited the Homewood Hospital. Dr. Marvin and Mrs. Fick explained routine procedures, hospital regulations, processes and tests. Features in particular mentioned were the examinations concerning the preparation of blood plasma and penisilin, operating room routine, laboratory testing, and blood type determination.

B. U. J. C. HIT PARADE

By MINDELL SMALL

Have you been feeling blue? Or do you suspect that Reck's sure cure for what ails you? Just open up your esophagus and sing. This treatment, especially effective when taken in mild doses in the bathtub.

And now we shall have:

Thoughts"

"To be wholly to the tune of "Treat"

I think that I shall never see

A full attendance at a tea,

When all the committees are

Ready to clean up and prepare

But such a state can never be;

Bucknell always acts normally.

I think that I shall never see

A man open a door for me,

Who asks if he can cast my junk,

From his cake offers me a hunk;

I think also of the "two-day board"

And all the time we thought they tickled her.

We understand that your guest columnist must have some famous approval and has been invited to join the Beacon staff. So you see that busy as we college students claim to be, we can and do take time out for a bit of small talk.

What's this? Can it be true? We hear a great many students failed to come out for the mixed dance. Does this mean that we are not sure just who would be "all wet" in this case. Yes, we know that you have seen the poor fellows well without getting all wet, but what about the kids that didn't turn out? It was fun; they, too, must have been "all wet."

Evidently no body smokes around Bucknell. J. C. any more, for when we offered three pre-war cigarettes and a pack of "Wish", no one took us up. We still have a few left, so if you act fast you may win them.

SPRING FEVER

It seems that almost everyone at B. U. J. C. has a sad case of Spring Fever. Some people want their "three months of good-for-nothing" attitude, but I agree with those who allow the Spring Fever to remain.

You've probably noticed that quite a number of the fellows have been choosing teams lately and getting their first ball along the river bank during lunch period. Two bats have been broken and an extra knocked apart as a result of the vicious slugging of Ochitier, Shoemak- er, and Traylor.

Mr. Richardson joined several of the noon-hour contests and puzzled batters with his amazing fast ball and tricky "change of pace." It's interesting to note that Mr. Richardson has a certain psychological knowledge with baseball. In his "loop-the-loop" pitch—the one that made him famous—the ball describes a perfect parabolic curve in the air.

There are a few rules by which the players abide, the chief among these is that "in the river is out." This rule was quickly agreed upon as a safety measure. The persistent efforts to knock the ball in the river were first noticed.

The beginning idea of a parody to "Bless Them All" was heard overhead in the cafeteria. It sounded like this:

"Bless them all, bless them all, Steinmann, and Richards."

Perhaps one of the poetically inclined students could compose the song. It may prove interesting.

Yes! Yes! Here we are, back again! Sharp as a bowl of succo- rrel. (To Phylis) Phylis! Phylis! Phylis! Phylis! Kocyan enjoyed our last col- umn; that's nice of her. THE DANCE—May 4

BUCKNELL BRIEFS

Well, Spring has come to B. U. J. C. again. Trailimg in its wake, of course, is Cupid. Some of his work is rather attractive though, in the shape of very pretty blushes on some countenances. Poppe teases the life out of "that Rozanski Kid." Have you been listening intently to his quotations from Heine's poems? I mean the one entitled, "Ten Wundersonden unserer Zeit." Most people seem to consider it appropriate. Have you observed J. P. Flynn lately? His breath conveys the story of things whenever Carol Galow passes his range of vision. Know what? It's a secret, but you would be a wonderful help if you knew. I'll tell you if you promise not to tell Mr. Steinmann. (Drink one quart of milk for lunch.) Imagine how my eyes popped when I turned the corner of Chase. There sat Callahan, with a woman's jacket on his knees. I came closer to see what had absorbed attention so. I know you won't believe me, but he was sewing a button on it.

Ten dollars reward to anyone who finds the lost object. Is it there? Does Betty Faint tell everyone how wonderful Joel is? I'm sure that if anyone is going to miss a whole afternoon of classes, it's going to be Joel. May the best man win. Has anyone else noticed that Joel Morris and Madeline are always together? Where are they now? (Ha! Ha!) I should know better than to ask such a question around Bucknell.

RANDOM RHYMES

By DOLORES MATELSKI

As I look over this semester in the character of a librarian, I am surprised to see so many men.

Lower freshmen in the librarian.

Berger still remains unchanged, B. B. Morris, methinks, quite developed.

He is much, much too quiet.

For how he used to ramp and roar.

Quiet.

How he used to ramp and roar!

History class still goes on.

(On and on, and on, and on.)

Chemistry still starts at dawn.

And all the lower freshmen yawn.

Theus, down.

The lower freshmen yawn at dawn.

But with the coming of the spring, the class has been added one new thing.

The women now have eurythmy class.

Delighting all the men that pass.

The lasses on the greens

Delight each and every man that passes.

We still have teas and swims and dances

And meets and riding and—

But what do those women bereft

Now Cananovah has left.

He left.

Bereft.

He left the lasses all bereft. (Twas thrills!)

What will the rest of the semester bring?

Of course summer will come after that.

But aside from that

And for a’ that

What will get you a month bring?

For a’ that

And a’ that

What will the next months bring?

TEA HELD

On Friday, April 20, a movie party was held. The movie, shown in Chase Hall, was "A Good Year in Singapore," starring Bing Crosby, Bob Hope, and Dorothy Lamour. A short, "Not So Dumb," was also shown. After the movie there was dancing in Chase Hall.

The committee who selected the film consisted of Zoisa Glowacki, Dick Watson, William Ellis, and Lawrence Awavers. Dick Watson was also in charge of the house committee. Irene Sieminski was in charge of refreshments.

Faculty members present were Dr. Nicholson, Dr. and Mrs. Farley, Dr. Ward.

DISCUSSES FAR EAST

As the Philippines, British Malaya, Korea, and Thailand were discussed.

Immediately following the individual discussions the students participated in a colloquy, which raised questions which had arisen in the various students' minds after hearing their colleagues' ideas.

LIBRARY GETS NEW BOOKS

The Bucknell University Junior College Library has recently received a number of books, both fiction and non-fiction.

MOVIE PARTY

On Friday afternoon, the women of Bucknell University Junior College held a tea in the library. The party was attended by students from the city schools were guests at the affair. Dr. M. E. Craig was in charge of the entertainment.

Committees included: refreshment, Zoisa Glowacki, chairman; Helen Biler, Carol Galow, Vivian May, and Madeline Sieminski; music, by Bruce MacMillan; cleaning, by Mary Ellen Chase; decoration, by Ellen Chase; and Madeline Sieminski.

After the business portion of the meeting, the students took part in the tea, which was a great success.

OUT OF THE FRYING PAN

At last we are truly happy. After the last two month's school, finals, the pageant, term examination, homework, physical education, and a few other things and some present exhibited to the lucky ones. The women were finally released from the oven, but even cut in on dances when they wished.

After the women were given pink cards which corresponded to those held by the man. Some of the "Go Together" combinations were as follows: Cream, "Ham and Eggs," "Corned Beef and Cabbage," "Number Dance" were also tried. These were followed by a "Paul Jones." Future members present included, Dr. Ward, Dr. Craig, Miss Leidy, and Miss Sangiulo.

Ettie Miller was general chairman of the committee on cake. There was a lot of work of refreshments, and Ruth Douglass was in charge of the house committee.

PAGEANT PLANS

The plans for the annual May pageant are now in embryo form. Although the theme of the pageant has not been fully completed, rehearsals have already begun.

The pageant is being presented by all the women of the physical education classes under the direction of Miss Norma Sangiulo.

CHORAL CLUB NEWS

On Thursday, May 10, the Choral Club will present a program of songs from 12:45 to 1:00 P.M. at the WBRE radio station. The group will sing, "On Wings of Song" and "Requiem.""

Betty Faunt and Helen Biler will sing "The Song of Minnetonka." The group is also planning a party for the end of the semester.

THE CLUB HAS become once more a women's organization. It now consists of twenty-eight members.

AN ENGINEER

Who is the man that designs our pumps with judgments, skill, and care?

Who is the man that builds them and keeps them in repair?

Who has to shut them down because the valve seat is damaged?

The bearing-wearing, gear-testing, MECHANICAL ENGINEER.

Who when he's signed the contract can't deliver the plans?

Who thinks a loss of twenty-six per cent is nothing queer?

The foreign ELECTRICAL ENGINEER.

Who is it that transacts out to find a sewer to tap?

Who then with care locates the junction on the map?

Who is it that goes to dig it up and finds it nowhere near?

The town and city town and catered T ILLER.

Who thinks without his products we would all be in the lurch?

Who has a heathen idol which he will not worship even six inches off his hairpin made of wire?

Who substitutes the diaphragm for a corset-laced ear?

The penny-chasing, dollar-wasting EFFICIENCY ENGINEER.

Who has 100 love those off the record discussions that come up?

We won't mention any names, but the next time you neglect your underfoot at each class get Dr. Nicholson to talk about the Unitas, their business interests, President Truman, Chicago, anything but his history.

The lounge lizards this semester appear to be something like a llama, 100 years ago.

"Don't lounge around much anymore." Honestly, we think that maybe the Beacon ought to take a look at what they have done since they've gone. Could be the schedule that draws them all out. Anyway, we won't go back of the ones that are around them at all.
MEMBERSHIP DRIVE

The Student Federalist Chapter of Bucknell University Junior College was putting on a drive for new members. This drive is in accordance with the Federalist International drive for membership which began February 22. Goal of the Federal Union is 500,000 members. Each active member is expected to enroll five new members before the deadline of May 1. Student Federalists, the junior branch of the Federal Union, is likewise putting on a drive for new members. Student Federalists of Alabama have challenged all other states to a race for additional members. Competition is on a state basis with prizes for those with the greatest proportionate increase in membership have been established.

At national headquarters in Washington, a system of state ratings and state prizes has been set up. States will be rated according to their proportional increase in membership and their standings announced at the Student Federalist Chapter at Bucknell. A Special committee of national leadership will award the prizes to the outstanding states.

Interested individual Student Federalists for their work in the drive have also been offered.

The Student Federalist organization has as its aim "Federal Union of Democracies for the strongest possible world organization." It believes that only with a federal union of democracies can the world really keep peace. Each citizen in the democracies would not only have citizenship in his own country but citizenship in this union as well. By uniting under the strong front, the democracies would be stronger in all those small crisis situations. If previous fashions are a sample of their work, there are in for some delightful sights.

FIRST LIEUTENANT WILLIAM A. JOHNSTON, of Princeton, N. J., has ventured a 20-foot altitude, more than 200 miles away from the airfield. On May 22, 1944, at Moody Field, Ga., he was awarded the Air Medal with two Oak Leaf Clusters.

In recounting the story of his landing, he says: "I came down in an apple orchard, just missing a tree, some leaves had caught on the parachute. The first person I saw, a little old man, spoke to me in a language I couldn't understand, and that I thought was German. However, his manner was friendly, so I tried him in French. He switched to that language, telling me that the German had driven to the other side of the River Maas, which was less than one-quarter of a mile away, and that just that morning—it was about 1 p.m.—nothing had been heard from them.

MEMORIAL SERVICES CONDUCTED

On Friday morning, April 13, memorial services for the late President Roosevelt were conducted on the campus of Bucknell University Junior College. Dr. Farley delivered a brief talk, after which students and faculty bowed their heads for a minute's silence.

ROLLER SKATING PARTY

On Tuesday, March 27, the students of Bucknell attended a roller-skating party at Davis's Rink, Kingston. About 38 students attended.

MRS. WILLIAMS SPEAKS

On Monday, April 8, Mrs. John Mitchell Williams, well-known local author, spoke to the assembly at First Presbyterian Church of Wilkes-Barre.

She spoke on the various peace proposals made by the leaders of the United States as well as of other Allies. She especially mentioned Dumbarton Oaks, and its significance to the world.

Canadian troops had advanced to the river. I was safe in liberated Belgium territory, and the language that old man had first spoken was Flemish.

Then I had come down on the haps a thousand people, soon gathered around me. Mosley civilians, the crowd also included some Canadian soldiers, who took me to their headquarters. Two days later, at headquarters of the Ninth Air Force, I joined six other members of my crew, the closest of whom had landed two miles from me. The remaining two were found lost in the German-held bank of the river, and have not been heard from since!"

FASHION HIGHLIGHTS

BY PHILLIS KIRSCHNER

What is there about a new spring hat that does wonders for a woman? Every year the fashions change, yet never fails. Spring '45 brings a flock of little sailors done up in all the latest fabrics and topped with veiling, ribbons, and flowers. There are, of course, various other characteristic bonnets, basket hats, and untrimmed hats. Hats this season are as varied and as lovely as the flowers of spring.

Shorty coats are the headliners in fashion this season, from the brilliant hue deciduous to the striking wrap around casuals. Capes and cape sweaters have also made their way into the fashion limelight.

Suit, of course, are a must in every spring wardrobe. They are shown in every conceivable color. In the old school and pin stripes are adorning many a fair maiden's back this spring, and the slim fitting suits must not be forgotten either.

The fashion themes in lady's dresses this spring are shoulders (with long sleeves); shoulder caps; bow necklines; buttoned, belted, or tied waistlines; polka dots; and combinations of plain colors with brilliant prints. For the woman with the natural beauty long skirt and cap sleeve are the highlights on most spring frocks.

And now we shall devote a bit from the glamorous fashion world and come down to earth on the campus of Bucknell. Of course, here one doesn't expect the sophisticated clothes described above, but we can drool, can't we?

Blazers are in the lead, now that the weather is so much warmer. Frankincense Ringer wears a stunning grey one piped in white. A few of the other blazers advertise B. U. C. White high-bottom blouses also make a pretty picture when worn under blazers. We have seen some darling "out of towners," such as Jean DeS in a blue gingham and Shirello Stoney in a navy blue top with scarf and white skirt. They prefer no blouses at all, which look smart providing it doesn't get too warm.

Some very pretty dresses were seen on campus recently. Mrs. Miller's aqua and white polka dot frock with a bow tie and cap sleeve looked very charming. At the Woman's Day dance we admired "Babe" Paskievwicz in a black and white horizontal striped dress. Outside the church one of the little spells, Eleanor Forriss was seen in a two-piece lime green suit. The top was trimmed with a green and white border. With summer just around the corner we are looking forward to seeing our co-
