Exit Stampede

For what may be the last time you are reading "The Bison Stampeede," an attempt is being made this week to get a copy of a very limited number of the school's yearbook, the Bucknellian Junior College. Last year when this publication had its birth many students were wildly enthusiastic, but the closed three people remained active on the "Stampede." This year we have another story. It didn't take the enthusiasm of the first year to the endless stream of prospective writers. The majority of the first generation. The showman who decided last week that the effort was not worth the time and money. The Bucknellian has decided to suspend the publication of "The Bison Stampeede" until further notice.

It seems logical that any activity, which cannot command sufficient interest and depends upon the energy of the few, is a project likely to be a failure. It is not a just return for the money expended in its functioning. "The Bison Stampeede" cost Bucknell $10 a semester or $30 a year. This expenditure seems to have little value in the light of the facts. This money could undoubtedly be appropriated for activities with a wider interest and appeal.

It is very probable that a desirable substitute can be found for "The Bison Stampeede," Arrangements are now being made to produce a college-sized, the campus newspaper, to secure a certain space in that paper for Bucknell University. There may be members of the Bucknellian who would be more interested in this year's "Bucknellian," because of the fact that many former students of the college are asked to contribute to the yearbook. Whatever is done the Bucknellian has joined the "vanishing American."

An Appeal

Mr. Forrest E. Keller, faculty advisor for the Dramatics Society, appeals for well considered suggestions from the students of the Dramatics Society. Suggestions should contain opinions as to the organization of the Dramatics Society, and the future of Bucknell will be built around members who have shown keen interest in the past, as well as those who promise to show interest in the future. Members will be based upon this interest in dramas as shown in their willingness to work. Opportunities may be the commonplace rather than politicians.

The Dramatics Society has definite functions under its charter. It is the efficient group where all the detail work of production is worked out. All suggestions will be submitted to the faculty advisor, Professor Keller's office $15 for either Dramatics Society or Economics Club. All suggestions in order to gain recognition must be signed by the full name of the writer.

Eugene Wright, editor of the Bucknell Stampeede last year, was ploid by a group of his friends on various college and university campuses. It was a surprise to many of his friends to see him in attendance at the opening of his bachelor's degree program at the university. Mr. Wright had served in the Army, so he was very aware of the value of education and the importance of a college education.

Constitution and Laws

When Eugene Wright traveled through the Taureg village, he found the women acting as the men of our day. They were also generous, they made the men some nice rolls, and they treated them well. But when the men finished eating, they left, and the women stayed behind to clean up. Mrs. Wright was very upset, but then she realized that she needed to learn more about the culture and traditions of these people.

When Mr. Wright arrived at the Taureg camp, he was greeted by the women, who had reserved the best seats for them. They were very hospitable, and they even offered to give the men some of their delicacies. Mr. Wright was very surprised, and he realized that he needed to learn more about the culture and traditions of these people.
