By Robert Mikulewicz

The Polish Club will open its new social and cultural center on Friday, August 22, with a celebration. The center will provide a space for Polish students to gather, socialize, and celebrate their heritage.

The center, located on the first floor of a new building, will feature a lounge area, a kitchen, and a study room. It will also house a small collection of books and other materials related to Polish culture.

The center will be open to all students, and the club hopes that it will become a hub for cultural exchange and celebration.

Wilkes Students On WILK Program

Some fifteen students of Wilkes College are members of the cast of a new radio show presented as a public service feature of radio station WILK. The show, entitled "THAT'S A BOY WHO LIVES ON YOUR STREET," written and produced by Livingston Clewell and directed by Hal Berg, is produced by the interest of preventing juvenile delinquency.

Every Friday from 9:30 to 10 P.M., the dramatization of an actual case history taken from the files of various law enforcement agencies and the Pennsylvania Board of Parole takes place in the studios of WILK. After the dramatization, a panel board of prominent citizens discusses the case history. The case to be presented on Friday, August 18, is one of the most interesting of the season.

Student Poll

This week the peak asks two pertinent and timely questions:

Question: Do you think the Honor System would work?

Norman Baum: I see no reason why it wouldn't. You would have to have an honor system to keep them out. However, I think there is a need to have in some events a natural tendency to cheat. One thing, the system in which we live is the honor system, and this system is more respected.

George Baum: I don't think it would work. It would have to be an honor system to do anything. I don't think it could be imposed on a man's honesty.

Howard Trammell: No, because if you have an honor system, you are either going to judge such a thing or establish a man's honesty, and it has to exist in a man's mind. I think it would be an honor system, and this system in college is lower than a man's honesty.

Dale Johnson: No, I don't think it would work. If the teachers put enough trust in the student, it will work.

Betty Jane Reese: I don't see why it wouldn't work. I think the students have integrity, and I think the college is no lower than what it is today. However, we can try. Maybe after a systematic campaign in student ideas, it will work.

Joe Godinits: Definitely not! What they carry away, the eyes see.

Martie Blake and Ross Williams: As long as we had a majority of students, it would work. It is the pressure that would make it work.

George Baier: I think it is a good idea. It would make the students think about their problems.

Mary Shaw: I think it would work. If we have an honor system, it would work.

Harold Smith: No, people are basically dishonest. It is an idea. I believe in the honor system, but I think it needs the complete cooperation from the students.

Johnny Goodling: I think it would work. It is the pressure that would make it work.

Student Letters

Ralph P. Carey—It is a good idea if administered properly. Some people have a negative view of the system, but when it is administered properly, it would work.

JFK: An honor system would work for only those students who have the integrity to do it. It would be properly oriented on the administration of such a system.

Jean K. Dougherty—An honor system would work only if the faculty members of the college are strict about it. I think the college is not strict enough to do justice to such a system. It would not work.

Clayton A. Bloomberg—The system of an honor system is a failure. We have been dealing with instead of teaching the students. By instilling honor in the students, we have not become a higher group or the group would grow.

John Vornay—Yes, it is worth trying.

Letter from: Alfred M. Stoughton

Let me know if it was ever a part of the student's activities. No, I don't think it was ever a part of the student's activities.

You mentioned two stupid people. The only stupid people are those who are not intelligent enough to know that there is no such thing as an honor student."

The decision of the Student Council to purchase a PA set at $200.00 or more was justified. It was decided that the council members who opposed the purchase of the PA set at $200.00 or more did not understand the various functions of the Student Council. I think the editor for his opinion of you is wrong as to why the IRC should be sanctioned.

Leaving Through A Ten-Year Old Beacon Issue

By Norbert Oldeski

"My office on the other day, I began to wonder what Wilkes College was like ten years ago."

When I asked the old-timers what was the college like ten years ago, they thought for a moment, then began to talk about the students, the faculty, and the campus. They told me stories about the events that had occurred on campus in those years, and how things had changed since then.

I also learned about some of the traditions that are still carried on today, like the annual cheerleading squad and the annual poetry contest. I was amazed at how much the college has grown and changed in the last ten years.

I came away from my visit feeling very excited about the future of Wilkes College. I believe that it will continue to be a great institution for years to come.

The Bondsmen At Outstanding Musical Trio

By Robert Minkiewicz

From time to time the Beacon will carry reviews of outstanding books. The first is a review of INSIDE U. S. A., by John Gunther, the fourth book of the "Inside" series.

To obtain material for this book, Mr. Gunther traveled through nearly every state in the Union, and was in Chicago, the west coast, the north, and the south. He even traveled to Canada and to Great Britain. He is an active participant in all the state and local affairs of the country, and his book is a valuable guide to the American way of life.

Mr. Gunther tells of the problems that face the American nation, the economy, and the geography of the United States. He talks about cities, the farms, and the farms' history.

He gives us a glimpse into the future of the American nation. He tells us what will happen to the fifty states in the near future, and how the United States will change in the years to come.

This book is a must for all who are interested in the United States of America.
SAD SACKS GAIN FIRST PLACE IN INTRAMURAL LOOP

By GEORGE BRODY

This was the week of surprises and upsets—the best week of softball since the Intramural League had opened.

The surprising Faculty team started the upsets by battering the unbeaten Sad Sacks, 26-7. The Sad Sacks foldered the Clowns into four extra innings of terrific play before succumbing 9-7. But they still hadn't lost their fighting spirit, and two days later they gained back into extra innings against the unbeaten I. R. C. team four times. It was a hard fight, for they were tied 1-1 when the score was 7-7.

On the same day the undefeated and unknown Sad Sacks, the dark horses of the League, seemingly throtled the unbeaten Clowns in an amazing 26-7 rout. This was the biggest upset of the season, for that&mnh; the Sacks were the bet-

The Intramural League manager held a meeting to discuss a picnic to be held on September 6. Coach Carey presided as chairman until hot air and short tempers filled the room. Then he called the meeting to order and appointed several officers to organize the league

Tentative plans call for the picnic to be held at Sweet Valley, a place near the football practice field. The leaders are trying to generate interest in the league.

The meeting adjourned at 11:00 in order to attend the afternoon football game.

Now that the Student Council has committed itself to buying a trophy for the pennant winners of the softball league, it looks as though intramural sports are here to stay. It's hard to believe, but efforts should be made in the future to correct the situation that has marred the presentsoftball league.

First, there is no president. Nor is there a governing body of any type. Signatures are printed all over the league's refreshments, and free transportation. Final plans will be drawn at the Student Council meeting on August 19, at 11:00. Two representatives from each team are requested to attend.

Above is the second place IRC club team which will battle the league leading Sad Sack squad on Monday afternoon at the Kirby Park.
