Office Requested
Old Cafeteria Be Swapped For New

A resolution requesting that the day students "be given back the cafeterias and provision be made for the dormitory students to eat at Harding Hall" was unanimously passed by the Student Council at Monday evening meeting.

A committee composed of Jim Lind, Dr. Farley, and Jim Conyngham took it to place the resolution in the laps of the administration yesterday.

Following a Beacon policy of presenting all sides to important campus discussions, the following arguments are listed as presented in council:

1. A central meeting place for all students on campus has been eliminated.
2. Facilities of Harding House are inadequate in all respects — seating room, facilities for the preparation of food, refrigeration space for beverages, etc.
3. By providing a separate room for faculty members, a separation of faculty and students has occurred which has always been contrary to school policy. This separation is disagreeable to both students and teachers.
4. Wilkes has always been proud to be a "student's college" but it appears that the day students are being neglected in favor of the dormitory students, who actually comprise a very small portion of the college enrollment.
5. Wilkes students have been eating at places in town, and as a result, they are feeling less and less a part of the college.
6. Many dormitory students are also dissatisfied with the arrangements as they now stand. They feel that the cafeteria provided a meeting place for both groups, and better relations were maintained.
7. Complaints are being made by the science majors who spend almost all their time on campus in the area of Conyngham Hall, that they now feel more isolated than ever.
8. A suggestion was made that if the dormitory enrollment is expected to increase so greatly in the future, more sleeping facilities will be needed. Therefore, there may be a possibility of turning Sterling Hall into a dining hall. While dormitory students took up so much of the student council's time that the budget question had to be deferred until after fall vacation.

Freshman hazing will continue at least until tomorrow.

The newcomers to Wilkes, involved in a scrap with upperclassmen this week, will get another chance to throw off ties, dinks, black and white socks and garters, and the frosh girls will get a chance to put makeup back on when the second bug of war is held tomorrow at 12:30 on the River Common, one of the recent battles.

The frosh lost in a first attempt to win their freedom from freshman regulations last Saturday night when the upperclassmen won the rope pull between halflves of the Wilkes-Thbara football game.

Spokesmen for the class claimed that the upperclassmen used foul and underhanded tactics in the first chance of the year for freedom. The frosh claimed that the upperclassmen was "overloaded.

The incident, "overloading," was considered one of the many reasons for the frosh revolt. However, freshmen are reminded that according to Student Council regulations, if they lose again, they are bound to adhere to the rules until such time as they can free themselves.

Further violence from upperclassmen will be permitted if the frosh are made to do time, it was made clear, however.

Dr. Farley Warns Council on Frosh

Dr. Eugene S. Farley told the student council in an unscheduled appearance on Monday night before that group, that is the responsibility of the organization to deal with the situation that arose when the freshmen revolted Monday afternoon.

"Your authority has been challenged by a small group on campus," the Wilkes president said, "and it is up to you to settle the situation once and for all.

"If you don't act now, your power as the governing body of the students will dwindle and disappear," he stated.

"The administration and Student Council should be alert in the future with a mind to anticipate such disturbances," Dr. Farley continued.

The council took prompt action in appointing a committee to inquire into the闹t student Council.
Mayor to beConsulted on ParkingM ess

Y DICK JONES AND JONNI FALK

Prospects of finding a solution to one of the many parking problems at Wilkes have been discussed in the last two weeks of the Beacon's campaign on the parking dilemma.

Within the next few days, the Beacon will meet with Mr. Lather Knollen on the topic of the two-hour parking limitation in the gym parking lot. It is hoped that a plan will be worked out which will enable students with parking passes to attend after-school or continuous classes in the area without fear.

While nothing has been definitely settled at this writing, a better plan to request illegal parking permits from the administration office. According to unofficous sources, the painting of white lines on South Street will mark each parking space with a number that can be used by parking agents to locate the owners of the vehicles soon obliterate them. Further efforts are being made to prevent parking in the area, and it is hoped that the police will be required to enter private lots once asked.

More so, we invite all those who possess legitimate parking permits to attend a meeting of the parking authority to discuss the problem.

Red Feather Drive in Full Swing; Male Chorus First to Meet Quota

By JANICE SCHUSTER

The Wilkes College Male Chorus became the first organization to meet its quota in the 1954 Community Chest drive according to an announcement by Robert Portridge, activities director, early this week.

While the full quota will be reached for nearly two more weeks, the early returns highlighted by the chorus showed a high degree of optimism.

Wilkes, a community-minded school, is in the heart of the community, has accepted the goal of $1,200 to aid in the current national community chest drive, and has been announced recently by Art Hoover, director of Community Chest.

The goal can only be attained if each student, member of the faculty, and staff contribute to the cause. It is the belief of this writer that this goal will be attained.

NIGHT STUDENTS TO UTILIZE SNACK BAR IN EXPERIMENT

By T. R. PRICE

Wilkes College night students will finally have a place to eat during the last half of the evening. Mr. Shirley Wassell, head of the evening division, announced this week that the Hardline Snack bar will remain open evenings starting Monday, Oct. 18. Snacking will be open for business starting Monday night.

The experiment will be tried as the result of a suggestion made by the head of the evening division a few weeks ago. It is our hope that the snack bar will be instrumental in providing the evening students with a more comfortable environment. The snack bar will remain in effect for a period of six months. The snack bar will be closed for six months in order to establish just how many students will avail themselves of this service, according to Mr. Wassell.

"The snack bar has been added to the evening school head, it is hoped that if this experiment proves successful, the snack bar will be extended to further organization among the 770 night students. It should prove to be a great help to the evening students in becoming acquainted with the campus." It is hoped.

In the past, many of the night students have felt like home sick because of waiting for classes to begin.

MANUSCRIPT PREPARES FOR NEW ISSUE; STAFF MEMBERS, ARTICLES WELCOME

The Manuscript, the literary magazine of Wilkes College, is now preparing for the fall season, it was reported this week by editor Sandy Fussey. Several positions are open on the Manuscript staff and letters of application to Mr. Fussey are welcomed. All letters should be accompanied by examples of the applicant’s literary efforts. However, it is emphasized that this is not a prerequisite. Letters may be deposited in the manuscript collection box at the main entrance of the library.

New Poling Mark Set in Colorful Elections

Over 530 Wilkes students, the largest total in the history of the campus, turned out last Thursday to elect class officers to represent them during the coming school year. Art Hoover, student council president, stated that this was an increase of about 200 over the previous year.

As was expected, this year’s elections were perhaps the most colorful ever witnessed on the campus. Following are the results.

Sенiors: President, Russ Pic- on; vice-president, Harry Ennis; secretary, Jean Deardorn; treasurer, Art Roever.

Junior:s: President, Cliff Braugher; vice-president, Robert Bies; secretary, Barbara Biologato; treasurer, James Perry.

In order to get his name in the register, the student will be asked to contribute 25 cents. The register will provide each student with a record of his classmates as well as the other members of the class, and will be printed on cards of equal size as the faculty register.

Junior: James Eimer, chairman of the sophomore committee, hopes to distribute the publication before the end of the semester.

NEW ENGULPH, DR. RADDIN, AUTHOR, ARTIST, EDUCATOR

By DAVE McCracken

Dr. George G. Raddin, new associate professor of English, is not only a man of wide teaching experience, but the other of his interests, painting, can be achieved when he is not in the halls of King Hasken V of Norway.

Dr. Raddin holds the degrees of bachelor of arts, master of arts and doctor of philosophy from Columbia University. He also has been one in the field of humanities, western civilization, American literature and 17th and 18th century English literature. He has taught at Rutgers University, the most recently, City College of New York.

In addition to being a teacher and a painter, Dr. Raddin is also an accepted. Original is submitted by one of the ten 1954 Debaters.

NEW ENGLAND, St. Paul, Minnesota

The 1954-55 edition of the Wilkes College debating team looks well qualified to take its place alongside the great teams of the past, according to a report from Dr. Ar- thur S. Krugier, team coach.

Last year’s fine squad was one of three teams from seven Mid- dle Atlantic states to be chosen to enter the National Debate Tournament which was held at West Point. Besides welcoming back the mainstays of last year’s team, Dr. Krugier is necessarily harboring high hopes for several promising looking newcomers.

J. Harold Flannery, and James Nevers will once again join the organization in its quest for national honors. Much help is expected of John Doran from his fine freshman record.

Others competing for positions on this year’s team are sophomores Jesse Cooper and John Bucholtz, and freshmen Bruce Washurlth, Vir- gina Brehon, John Scandell, John Crotan, Ronald Wasserstrom and Gordon Roberts. Dr. George G. Raddin

Mrs. Williams received a gold medal citation from the National Council of "1014 Distinguished Daughters of Pennsylvania". This presentation was made at the Wilkes Alumni Banquet held at the governor’s mansion in Harris- burg.

After receiving her degree from Wilkes College, Mrs. Williams became a reporter for several New York newspapers. She was later taught at Wilkes for ten years and served as Dean of Women for two years. BEACON EDITORIALS

Food For Hungry Students

The Beacon feels particularly proud of its part in obtaining eating facilities for the college’s evening students. Starting next Monday, the nightmare of trying to find the last $5 to keep until 8:30 to accommodate all evening students who might wish to grab a bite to eat before going to class right from work during the week will be over. The college has been discussed with Evening School Director Stanley Waskelski the possibility of keeping it open to serve after dark Collegians. Mr. Waskelski has promised to work the problem over and hopefully to arrive at a solution. The Beacon wholeheartedly sallies to this cause. The Red Feather drive -- You stand to gain by what you give.

The Community Chest

While the Beacon is exploring ways and means of alleviating the serious pending problems here at Wilkes, a certain few students have decided to “solve” the problem all by themselves and do it themselves. Instead of solving the problem, they actually made it worse. How can it be worse, you ask? Simple, it is not being talked about. Students have decided to do something about the problem, and the car owners involved are not unduly chagrined.

An Invitation -- In or Out?

The Beacon editorial staff is not looking for credit when it states that it has worked hard in getting out its first four issues. It has gone to work with the belief that help would soon arrive and has continued its job without student body seems to have accepted, happily, with enthusiasm. But the help has not arrived. Of the students who have shown an interest in this project, several have moved to other place to put their cars, trucks, or bicycles to work.

To try as we may, we cannot find any rhyme or reason to such an act on fellow students’ cars. It has happened to do a number of people in complete outside.

They may try. We, as students, are left with the job of digging up a majority of newspapers for themselves. We, the students of Wilkes College, want to know that the editors have to study too. Their job is big enough, but what we need is help. We need someone writing some copy and headlines filling on, without having to gather the news, too.

No Outsiders.

We want to keep up a good paper, but it takes more than a handful to do so. If help doesn’t come, we may go back to four pages. Therefore, consider this an in- vitation to any person in any way interested in journalism to join us at the staff meeting tomorrow at 12:20. We need write people, reporters, feature writers and editorial assistants.

An Invitation to the Wilkes Alumni Club

To those who have taken a laudable attitude toward the Beacon and whom seldom get within earshot at our meetings -- Either get it with us, or get out.

Curtis, Editor.

Question: What do you think of the new styles in women's fashions?

Mona Resa, a Junior and McClintock dormitory student from 原料, I don't care for the new Dior style. They are just going back to grandma's day—-they haven't much appeal. I think that if they were to make a complete change in style instead of reverting to the old styles they would have more attraction.

John Costello, a Junior from Nanticoke, Pa. — I don't particularly care for the designs in the new fashions. It is one thing—but if the girl stands sideways you can't see her. It is a lot of nonsense because I think that it is just a gimmick to sell something new—so that Dior can make a few more bucks.

Mike Reilly, a Senior from Mount-tain Top, Pa. — I'm a big admirer of the new fashions. To me, the Dior style is a little less than a few of the finer points in ladies' fashions. The boys that stand in the street corner on windy days might commit suicide, drastically reducing the labor supply of the Valley and thus causing inflation.

Georgia Tomassetti, a Junior from Wilkes-Barre, Pa. — I don't like the new Dior style. It's just a return to the flapper days. I don't like the reduced neckline— I do not like the high neckline. I do not like the long coats. I think a woman in a dress should stand in the Dior style looks like the broad side of a barn. I was not interested in the Dior style before; I am less interested in it now.

The person submitting the best question each week for use in Wilkes of Wilkes will receive two tickets to the Comerford Theater. Wilkes-Barre playing this week is "Brigadoon" starring Gene Kelly, Van Johnson, and Channing.
庐sters Dump Bucknell Squad; Meet Lock Haven Teachers, Philadelphia Textile Saturday

PAUL B. BEERS '53 and AUSTIN SHERMAN

In the heart of the soccer season this past week, the Colonels produced some of their best performances ever. Going into this weekend with a win over Bucknell and a loss to Rider, the Colonels had to buck Lafayette, Bucknell, and Lock Haven.

Gridders Looking for Third Victory: Roughest Game of Season Predicted Against Undefeated Bloomsburg STC

The Colonels will take their first trip of the season Saturday as they travel to Bloomsburg State Teachers College to take on the Blue and Gold. The game will mark the seventh in the series that has seen the Blue and Gold come through with only one win. Bloomsburg is big and fast and like Wilkes, have won their first two games. They dumped Mansfield and Cortland.

Coaches Raistion and Pick of the Colonels, looking for their first loss of the season, will have a difficult time stopping the Blue and Gold. They believe that their charges can get over this one they have a better than average chance to end up with a successful season.

Wilkes has been outglimmed in their two previous games this year, and the Saturday tilt will be no exception. Bloomsburg will go in to the game with a weight advantage of over 15 pounds per man. As the strategy before, the Colonels will try to get the beef with superior speed.

So far this season the Blue and Gold has been dealt no bad blows by injuries. The team that started against Reserve had the whole of all appearances they should make things a very interesting afternoon of football for the fans of the entire region.

Earlier this year we commented about the improvements in the football in the orchestra music for the season. The Air Force Reserve, Dr. Charles B. Bell, chairman of the biology department, will direct and instruct the orchestra. There will be 24 members, a similar number of last year.

Dr. Bell has been drilling hard for this one and they are up for a great game. The Colonels had been drilled from Bloomsburg in the worst kind of a way, and the Colonels have been plenty of fireworks on Saturday afternoon. Probable starting lineup:

Outside of football, the Colonels have been improving in a major way. They have been working hard on their academics and have been preaching the importance of hard work and preparation.

Promised: A Day Off

Coach Bob Partridge said in an announcement to the soccer team yesterday that he would give them a day off for each game that they won this week. The Colonels have their work cut out for them if they collect the promised rest though. They will face two of the toughest opponents that they have come across all year as they play Lock Haven Teachers and Philadelphia Textile. You can bet that the Blue and Gold will be giving everything that they have, especially if the hot weather keeps up.

WANTED: FROSH BOOTERS

Coach Bob Partridge has asked all freshmen interested in playing soccer to come out and join the team. The idea of the whole thing is to try and build a nucleus of a team for next year. The booters will be bit quite heavily by graduation this spring and the need for new soccer talent is urgent. "The Quill" stated that one didn't need to be an accomplished booter, all that was required was a willingness to learn the game. "It takes quite a while to build up a top notch soccer player," he said, "and the sooner a guy starts the better off he is."
