Olympic Wrestling Tryouts at Wilkes

National Committee Picks Wilkes To Manage Regional Olympics; Detailed Planning to Begin Monday

Outstanding administration and sponsorship of national wrestling events at Wilkes College are making the city of Wilkes-Barre a serious contender for the title of "Wrestling Capitol of the East".

The latest feather in the cap of the College came with the announcement that the Regional Olympic Wrestling tryouts will be held here in mid-April. Announcement was made last week by John Drummond, chairman of the National Olympic Wrestling Committee.

The disclosure was made at a time when the cheers had hardly subsided from the wrestling tournament held at Wilkes during the Christmas holidays, tabbed the "Rose Bowl of Wrestling" by many sports writers. This year's tournament brought entrants from as far west as Michigan, south to Tennessee, and north into New England. Mr. Drummond telegraphed Mr. George Ralston, Dean of Men, now on leave to Columbia University to earn his doctorate, that the Olympic Regionals were slated to be held at Wilkes on April 13-14. In Mr. Ralston's absence Mr. Frank Walp, supervising principal of Forty Fort schools, will act as local director and coordinator.

Mr. Walp announced he will meet with John Reese, Wilkes wrestling coach, and other faculty members in the Guidance Building on Monday to draw up detailed plans. He said try-outs for both free style and Greco-Roman wrestling will be held.

The tryout will be held in the Wilkes gymnasium and will draw the top scholastic wrestlers from the states of Virginia, West Virginia, Pennsylvania, and New York.

Local officials stated that the reason for the choice of Wilkes lay partially in the great enthusiasm shown here four years ago when a benefit wrestling tournament was held to raise money for the Olympic Fund. Raymond Swartz of the U. S. Naval Academy and coach of the Olympic mat team that year praised Wilkes highly for its efforts in conducting and making the benefit show a success.

Student Council to Aid Scholarship Selection

By HELEN M. KRACHENFELS

The Student Council held its regular bi-monthly meeting last Wednesday evening in the cafeteria. In addition to discussing the final arrangements for the Winter Carnival, several other matters were considered.

Cliff Brothers, chairman of the Student Body Scholarship Committee reported that the Administration has suggested that the Council committee be responsible for establishing policies for the granting of the scholarship and that machinery be set up whereby one or two Council representatives can sit with the Administrative Scholarship Committee when candidates for the scholarships are considered.

Nancy Morris presented the Constitution of the Education Club for Council approval of some changes which have been made in the past months. Approval was granted.

Mr. Elliot, Student Council adviser, read a letter which he received from Hampton Institute requesting Wilkes' participation in a campus exchange program. They have invited a group of five Wilkes campus leaders (male) to visit their campus, and would like to send some of their students here. It was agreed that we extend an invitation for them to visit here on the weekend of April 26 and 27, and that we accept their invitation.

Approval was granted for the sophomore class to hold a dance on February 3.

Cliff Brothers was appointed chairman of a committee which will be established for the purpose of investigating various honor systems. Membership on this committee is voluntary and is open to all interested students.

DEBATERS TO SPEAK AT BUCKNELL CONTEST SET FOR TOMORROW

The Wilkes debaters are slated to go on the road tomorrow for the first time this year. Saturday's event will be the Bucknell "Good Neighbor" tournament, rescheduled from a few weeks back.

The Bucknell tournament, postponed from December 9, is the first in a series of title defenses for the debaters, who took the tourney last season.

In addition to the Bucknell debate last year, Wilkes also took first speaker honors, as J. Harold Flannery Jr. took the top debater award.

Speakers at the Bucknell contest tomorrow will be John Bucholtz, Virginia Brehm, Fred Roberts, and Jesse Choper.

Bucholtz won two ratings of "superior" in the Temple Novice tournament earlier this season. Roberts was also awarded a "superior" rating in one event at Temple.

The local team will argue both sides of the question of extension of the Guaranteed Annual Wage to all non-agricultural industries.

Eisenhower Cuts Victory Chances If Nixon is Mate

The Republican Party is completely paralyzed until President Eisenhower decides definitely whether or not he will seek a second term, John Metcalf, noted Washington news correspondent told students at Tuesday's assembly program.

Mr. Metcalf analyzed the 1956 political situation in the United States and the significance it bears on the entire free world. He repeatedly returned to what he called the "$64,000 Question" of the American political scene, "Will Ike run?"

The longer he waits the more sure he must become that he will run for he is depriving his party of getting another candidate before the people.

Nixon as President

Mr. Metcalf said many people about Washington feel that if the President runs he will surely take Nixon as a running mate. "He has given him such support in the past that he cannot pull the political rug from under him now. . . with Nixon as running mate and considering his own physical condition Eisenhower cuts his chances for reelection to about 50-50 in winning over Stevenson. . . the party leaders believe Nixon to be politically immature, there is no telling where he would lead his party if he falls heir to the presidency."

Unless Mr. Adlai Stevenson commits a huge political blunder, which he is not likely to do, he is practically assured of the presidential nomination by his party. He has taken a big chance in declaring himself so early for he has set himself up as a target for both parties.

Plans Completed for Gala Affair At El Pocono Dude Ranch Resort; Winter Sports, Dancing Arranged

By NORMA DAVIS

Like to skate? Like to ski? How about a good old-fashioned sleigh ride? Or maybe you'd like an open fireplace, a hot dog and "Sweet Adeline" in true barbershop tradition.

This and much more is yours at the Winter Carnival being arranged for the student body of Wilkes and their friends as a reward for work "well done" in the mid-year exams.

The date — Thursday, January 26 from 11 to 11 (that is a.m. to p.m.)

The place — Karlsruhe, the fabulous Stegmaier Estate, now functioning as one of the finest recreation spots — winter or summer — in the Pocono resort area, known and widely advertised as El Pocono Dude Ranch.

In addition to the more vigorous outdoor sports mentioned, horseback riding, hiking, and snowballing (weather permitting) will provide fun for all.

There will also be the usual indoor activities — games, group singing, television, and, of course, eating around the clock from 11 to 11. A majority of the students will probably pack picnic lunches although everything from a hamburger to a steak dinner will be available for those with the appetite and the means.)

Dancing from 8 to 11 to the romantic strains of the Blue Danube on the one hand, and to the jarring strains of Rock 'n' Roll on the other, will provide the highlight to the day's events.

Since there will be no buses available, students with cars are urged to meet in front of Chase at 11. Caravans to the resort will be formed.

This fine affair which promises to stand out from anything of its kind put on by the college in many years is sponsored by the Student Council. Helen Krachenfels is chairman. There is no expense involved to any student except that he must, of course, provide his own food. Obviously, use of special equipment such as skis, rented skates, and horses are not covered in this.

Let's join to make this a day to be remembered!

WILKES TO OFFER FOUR-YEAR COURSE IN ART EDUCATION

By JANICE SCHUSTER

Wilkes College will again expand its ever growing fields of study in the fall of this year with the introduction of a four-year program in Art Education, it was announced by Dr. Eugene S. Farley, college president.

Dr. Farley stated the program has been approved by the Administrative Council, the Instruction Council of the Board of Trustees, and the State Council on Education. The Board of Trustees has not yet approved the Art Education program but it is not expected that this body will raise the only opposition.

HISTORY CLUB'S 'FINAL FLING' SQUARE DANCE AT GYM TONITE

The Wilkes History Club holds its first dance tonight at 8:30 in the College gym. Though the club's initial event, it's billed as "The Final Fling", since it's the last dance of the semester.

The affair is another of the square dances that seem to be attracting more and more of a following among campus organizations in the habit of running social events to augment club treasuries.

Abe Bellas and his crew are slated to provide music, with Bellas himself as caller. The dance goes on till midnight.

is History Club president George Sileski, with Dr. and Mrs. Harold Thatcher serving as chaperones.

Clarence Michael and Shirley Rae compose the ticket committee, with Neil Turtel and Leo Dombroski in charge of decorations.

Chip Freeman heads the refreshment committee; others: Richard Murray, Marty Rogovin. Publicity, Dick Heltzel, Jim Alcorn; clean up, Frank Belinda, Gary Weingarte. Frank Belinda, Gary Weingarter.

Money raised at the dance goes toward financing club field trips to various historical sites, as to recent one to Gettysburg.

EDITORIALS—

Here We Are Again

This is the first Beacon of the New Year. It begins for 1956 a series of newspapers we hope will prove a constructive, positive service to our readers, more so, if possible, than the Beacons preceding it this Fall.

LOOKING BACK . . .

What we've tried to do within the past few months has been to give the students here a publication leaning heavily to straight news—i.e., news as news, news as it happens—presentations of events at or about the College. We have endeavored to balance this whenever possible with features requiring more than a purely factual, telegraphic treatment; in short, we have tried to put in as much service for both the reader-in-a-hurry and the casual reader as possible.

Our editorial policy has endeavored to be as moderate, as "hands off", as disinterested as possible. When controversy has arisen, we have attempted to pursue a conservative middle-of-the-road path, with as fair a hearing for both sides of the question as human frailty will allow.

. . . AND AHEAD

At any rate, the Beacon is back for another year, and conservative or liberal, reactionary or radical, we trust that it and future Beacons will continue to operate with the principle in mind that its duty and responsibility lies toward its readers and toward the community of which they and the College are a part.

Council and Tribunal

In this edition appears a letter by one of the elected student representatives criticizing, as is his right, and that of his constituents as well, our editorial of December 16. The details of the action causing the Council's decision and the contents of that decision are, we feel, unimportant here.

The question is one of precedent, whether declared or in practice. The letter contends the Council to be a "flexible representative organization" guided by the Constitution of the Student Body and common sense.

That is exactly the point we would make. Common sense dictates that a deliberative body plunge not about wildly without guidance, but that it use, where possible, the wisdom and judgment that has become part of it through custom and usage. Therefore it behooves members of it to employ their vaunted common sense, that they avoid placing pitfalls in the path of their successors.

In theory and in declaration, a body may not base its decisions upon those made in the past. In practice, the considerations of practical life make the use of precedents a necessity. —T.R.P.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

In the editorial of Friday, December 16, you stated that the Student Council refused to take responsibility for an act by one of its committees, namely the Tribunal, because "the action was not in the council's jurisdiction." This is false. The Student Council rejected the plea of the Tribunal because we felt that the act in question was UNREASONABLE. The word unreasonable can be found in the minutes of the Council as the primary reason for the rejection of the Tribunal's request.

One of the reasons I and many of my associates considered this act unreasonable is that the Chairman of the Tribunal admitted that he had warned those who were assigned to carry out the act of putting green paint on the freshman's hair to put a towel around the individual's shoulders to protect his clothes. This was not done. Although this was not as important as it might appear, it clarifies just what type an act this is. This act constitutes negligence and stupidity which cannot be condoned by what you call the presumed representatives of the students.

I would like to go further in defending this action by stating something I have maintained throughout this controversy, and that is with a delegation of power does go responsibility. The Tribunal accepted the power and therefore should accept the responsibility of its only thoughtless act.

"The Council decision, while no doubt justified, does not appear perhaps the best of precedents." Mr. Editor, I think it should be made clear that the Council is a flexible, representative organization. We are not a court of law basing every decision on past ones. We are a body guided only by the Constitution and our common sense handling each issue as it comes up and basing our decisions only on pertinent facts in each particular case. In our case precedence does not hold.

Letter from a "Bewildered Calculus Student":

My confusion is increasing positively without bound and at the same time is increasing negatively without bound, which results in my being at infinity, or in confusion beyond imagination.

Is there any operation that can be performed by Abra Cadabra in accordance with L'Hospital's rules, which can result in my confusion being kept from increasing without bound?

Answer to Bewildered Calculus Student:

Have you considered yourself as a function of t(ime)? Do you have points of discontinuity at t equals 12 (noon)? Eating is detrimental to success in calculus. A double-barreled function will take care of this: sandwich in one hand, Sherwood and Taylor in the other. Do you have intervals such that 11 P.M. is equal to or greater than t that is equal to or greater than 7 A.M., and your functions are not defined? Good calculus students don't sleep more than 59 3/4 minutes.

To keep your confusion from increasing without bound, treat it as a go-between variable. Between now and January 17 it must go. Abra Cadabra won't help you; he was an Arabian and had no use for the Frenchman, L'Hospital.

Your trouble, of course, is caused by your halucination that you are at infinity. This is a dangerous state. Some people in this condition have been known to crawl out on horizontal asymptotes and disappear. An antiderivative is sometimes useful in getting you back where you started from. But I hesitate to suggest this remedy; you may accidentally be accelerated by gravity.

After searching my files for many hours, I have found a remedy suitable for your strange condition. It is an obscure theorem known to Archimedes and students of advanced calculus. The pinching-in theorem is what you need! Keep your body pinched in between your chair and desk and your face pinched in between the screen of your hope that you will enter them with a feeling of confidence based upon the mutual efforts made during the semester. We hope that you will approach them with common sense and will not jeopardize your chances by foolishly trying to absorb the entire course in one evening. Alertness and adaptability will more likely bring success than will mental indigestion. We ask that you arrive early enough to get seated properly and to compose yourself; that you come prepared with a sufficient quantity of the necessary tools; that you follow directions; that you read the questions; that you think before you write; that you budget your time properly and put forth a full three hours of constructive effort. Remember always to take your exams with a grain of salt, and, if you don't like salt, try aspirin.

Don't curse your teachers! Pity them! How would you like to stand around for three solid hours watching Mary Brightstar spew forth blue book upon blue book of brilliant misinformation? How would you like to try to decode the hieroglyphics some students call handwriting? How would you like to wend your weary way through the wordy detours and imaginative byways that intervene between point one and point two? Enough of this! O'TOOLE ANNOUNCES
PUBLICATION OF FIRST
SCIENCE BROCHURE

The result of weeks of work manifests itself in a new Wilkes brochure on opportunities in science which is expected to be published today, Mr. Cathal O'Toole, Wilkes College art instructor announced.

Another of a series issued in different fields, the twelve-page booklet is the first one in pure science fields to be issued by the college, and has been compiled through the efforts of the faculties of biology, chemistry, physics, and mathematics.

It features a cover designed and illustrated by Mr. O'Toole and photographs of the science laboratories by Ace Hoffman. The scenes depicted aid the text in explaining the increasing need for study, research, and development in the ever-growing role of science in our lives. The brochures will be distributed with the co-operation of high school counsellors and science instructors, to present the students with information which helps in developing interest in scientific careers.

Interest Reported High
In Thunderbird Contest

Coining a name of one, two or three words will bring 10 lucky college men and women what may be the highest per-word rate in history—10 '56 Ford Thunderbirds. The $50,000 "Name the Viceroy Filter" contest has become one of the most popular extra-curricular activities at colleges and universities, as evidenced by the flood of entries already received from 48 states.

Open only to college students, the contest is being conducted by Viceroy, America's largest selling filter-tip cigarette, to find a name for their exclusive filter made from pure, white cellulose. The deadline line for entries is January 31.

Totalling $50,000 in prizes, the contest will have 10 first place awards of the new, fully-equipped 1956 Ford Thunderbird. A school organization or club designated by each of the 10 winners will also receive an RCA Victor Big Color Television set.

The simplicity of the contest is probably responsible for the keen interest in the competition. All a student has to do is to make up a name for the Viceroy Filter, and submit it on a special entry blank or on a plain piece of paper, accompanied by the picture of the Viceroy Filter Tip from the backs of two Viceroy packages. That's all there is to it!

There is no limit to the number of times any college student may enter.

This month should appeal to all men on campus. It gives the lazy men a chance to look ambitious and the ambitious men an opportunity to be lazy. The lazy men—Wilkes College males who are lax about shaving—can grow beards under the pretense that they are competing for the trophy presented to the hairiest ape by the Sophomore Class, sponsors of Wilkes College Beard Month.

Ambitious men merely need to respond to the call of arms, lay down their razors, and hope to out-beard their rivals.

The sophomores will award a trophy to the person who has the best combination of beard and mustache. Medals will be awarded for the bushiest beard, mostest mustache, and fuzziest peach fuzz. The trophy will have the winner's name on it and will be placed on display in the cafeteria.

The Sophomore Class intends to make this affair an annual event. Everyone, faculty members as well as students and females as well as males, is invited to enter this contest.

The contest will culminate at the Sophomore Class dance on February 3. At this round and square dance, Dan Flood will do the judging and present the awards.

This contest will undoubtedly increase school spirit, make the girls appreciate their fellows when they present their smiling, clean-shaven faces in school the next day, and will put Gillette back in business.

Senior Class 'Interlude'
Scheduled January 28

Plans are being completed for a Senior Class Dance which will be held at the Wilkes Gym on Saturday, January 28. The sport dance, tagged the "Interlude", promises to be one of the highlights of the busy week between semesters.

Music will be furnished by Bill Figart's combo, with intermission entertainment under the direction of Jim Jones.

Co-chairmen of the affair, Pearl Onacko and Al Rosenberg have chosen the following committee chairmen: Dick Carpenter, tickets; Mollie Beard, Connie Kamarunas, publicity; Mickey Perlmuth, Cliff Brautigan, orchestra; Jim Jones, entertainment; Jeannette Perrins, Nancy Beam, invitations; Sylvia Bator, Leah Jean Neuberger, refreshments; Geri Kolotelo, chaperones.

Tickets, priced at fifty cents, will soon be on sale. Proceeds from the affair will go toward a senior class gift to the college.

Colonels Use Full Press In Big Second Half Rally; Ferris Top Man with 18

The Colonel cagers returned to winning ways last night as they dumped Newark College of Rutgers, 65-55, in the South Franklin Street gym.

Playing before the smallest crowd of the season, the Colonels got off to a slow start and never got untracked until five minutes of the second half elapsed.

Newark led at the half, 22-19, and stretched this 27-21 after the opening minutes of the second half. Then the Colonels went into an all-court press which completely upset the Garden State Bombers.

Carl Van Dyke, Jim Ferris and Joe Jablonski stole the ball for easy lay-ups to tie the game and then Ferris put the Colonels ahead for good with a twisting jump shot from in close.

After that, the little guard put on a one-man show as he drove in for lay-ups and dunked a few set shots as the Colonels went on a 15-point scoring spree. Newark was held scoreless by the press for six minutes until Ed Weinek broke through with a pair of fouls.

Joe Jablonski hit for all eight of his points during the second half scoring spree and reserves Elmer Snyder and Ed Birnbaum came through with timely goals.

Newark played a slow possession game to control the ball throughout most of the first half, but were never in the game after the Colonels went into the press.

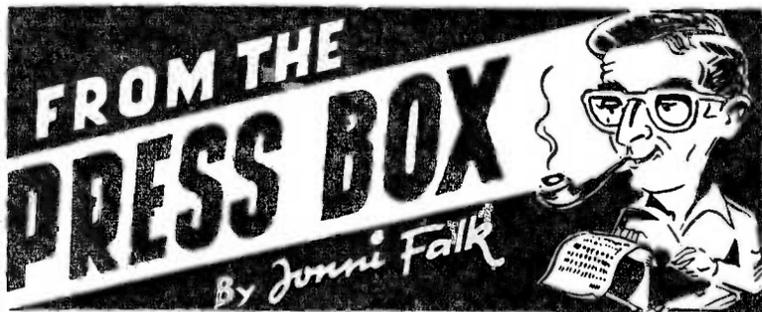

Ferris was high man for Wilkes with 18 points, 14 of them coming in the second half. Weinek was tops for the game with 22. Newark tried 37 foul shots and made 27 while the Colonels were making 11 of 20. They made only one of nine in the first half to continue their bad performance from the foul line.

At Ithaca last Saturday night, the Colonels dropped another close one, 78-74. George Morgan's 20 points led the Blue and Gold.

Wednesday night, the Colonels continued their dismal road record with a 74-64 loss to Hartwick on the visitor's home court.

Again it was from the foul line that Wilkes lost. While Hartwick was sinking 24 of 44 free throws the Colonels could only hit 6 of 16.

Battling Bob Sokol was the big gun for the Colonels along with George Morgan. Sokol playing his best game to date scored 13 points while Morgan picked up 16 to be high man on the team.

WHO WANTS THEM?

During Christmas recess, Hank Deibel, basketball manager, sauntered into the public relations office and placed a trophy on Russ Picton's desk. The trophy was for the cagers' third place finish in the Sampson Air Force Tournament, but that is inconsequential. The big question is, where do we put it?

It seems that the school does not possess a trophy case and any awards presented our teams just lie where somebody happens to get them out of the way. The Athlete of the Year cup and the Sampson trophy are both "decorating" the public relations office where nobody but the staff gets a chance to see them.

There are sundry other trophies and plaques in the office of the Dean of Men and we presume others are somewhere in the gymnasium. The debating cups are on display in the library where anybody can see them, but what about the others?

It seems to us that the student body, alumni and friends of the college have enough pride in our athletic teams to want to see the results of our athletes' efforts. It isn't just a matter of prestige—it is recognition for people who are forgotten too soon as it is.

We think that the gym is the proper place for these items, but as of this moment there is just one little glass window there to accommodate the trophies on hand. Without a doubt, the school will receive more of these awards in the future, but there is no sense accepting them unless we have some place to put them. Might just as well throw them in a closet or give them to the captains of the teams receiving them.

INTRAMURAL FRONT QUIET

It's been quite a while since the last issue of the Beacon came out, but we still haven't heard any further criticism of the intramural program. Nor have we had any recommendations. Is this another illustration of lack of interest? We hope, instead, that it signifies satisfaction with the program as it now stands.

LET'S SUPPORT THEM

The wrestling tournament which was held during vacation brought quite a bit of national publicity to Wilkes and the crowds at all four sessions were large. We'd like to see a similar throng at tomorrow night's sports doubleheader. It is the first chance to see the wrestling team, which looms as the finest in the school's history, and also an opportunity to give the cagers some support and encouragement.

For those of us who are looking forward to the beginning of finals, it is just about the last chance to get out and have a good time before the more serious business of study begins in earnest. Remember, you and your date can have just as fine a time with your school buddies at the games as anywhere else. Might be cheaper in the long run, too.

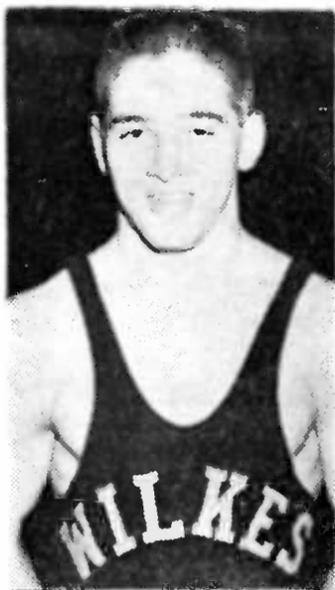

REYNOLDS COPS HONORS AS WEEK'S BEST ATHLETE

By CLIFF KOBLAND

Don Reynolds, a quiet, young man of 130 odd pounds, seems to have a split personality. Around campus, Don is as nice and easy going guy as you would like to meet. But put Don into a wrestling uniform and you will see a complete change. For the even tempered young man turns into a "tiger". This tiger instinct in Don is one of the main reasons why he is unbeaten in three matches this season and why he was this week's unanimous choice for Player Of The Week.

Don, who won a high school letter at Hanover Township in wrestling, has been one of the main reasons for the team's success this season. The junior grappler has won two bouts by pins and one by default for a total of 15 points.

The native of Warrior Run started the Colonels on their winning ways over Swarthmore by pinning his opponent in 1:45 of the match. In the Blue and Gold's big upset win over Hofstra, Reynolds won by a forfeit. And in last Saturday's win over CCNY, the 147 pound political science major started Wilkes on the road to triumph by pinning his opponent in 1:25 of the bout.

Don is being counted on by Coach John Reese to carry Wilkes on to a winning season. And the way this boy has started off he may well do just that.

Ghost Riders Lead Bowling Loop by Defeating Mites

The National League standing tightened considerably as a result of last Sunday night's matches in which no team managed to take a complete sweep. All teams in the loop have now dropped at least one point.

In the top match of the night, the Ghost Riders had to roll a big third game to take three from the surprising Mighty Mites. The Riders won the first handily, but then the Mites put together the team high for the year, 690, to take the second. The Riders collected 681 sticks in the final. Joe Pople, Mighty Mites, racked up a 214-487, while Dick Morris paced the winners with 194-504.

Elliot Spoiler

The Walloping Wags took a dull third game by two pins to stop a clean sweep by Ashley Hall. Ashley won the first and second with Neil Dadurka, 229-498, leading the way. George Elliot's 157 provided the Wags' winning margin in the third.

Chase Commandoes also took three points although dropping the third game to the Sophomore Six. Joe Trosko, with a 503 series, lead the Commandoes, and Barry Miller, with 498, was high for the Sophs. Rosie Weinstein had the high series for the girls with 142-352.

The American League will resume on January 29.

Wrestlers Tie C.C.N.Y. In Knots; Still Unbeaten

The Wilkes wrestling squad continued on its winning ways last Saturday as they defeated a good City College of New York team by the score of 24-10.

This was the third straight win of the young season for the Colonel grapplers.

Wilkes had to come from behind to win the meet and that they did winning the last five bouts and 21 straight points for a well-earned victory.

Four of the Wilkes wrestlers kept their unbeaten records intact. Bob Masonis, Don Reynolds, Walt Glogowski and Terry Smith have not been beaten this season.

Tomorrow the Colonels are home as they face East Stroudsburg. This is the first home meet of the season for the Blue and Gold. Starting time is 6:30 p.m.
