Basketball, Wrestling, Dancing Featured in Letterman Spectacular

The Wilkes Lettermen are sponsoring the second annual Booster Night on Saturday evening in the gymnasium. Without a doubt the biggest sports event of the entire year, Saturday's program is a triple-threat feature: a wrestling meet with Ithaca at 6:30, basketball game with Bloomsburg at 8 o'clock, and a rock and roll dance following the basketball game.

Chairmen for Booster Night are Bob Resiglo and Bob Yakayovics, who have announced that some concessions have been made by the administration permitting two persons to attend the affair on one student activity pass. Booster Night originated last year for the purpose of increasing attendance at Wilkes sports events and bolstering school spirit in general. The success of last year's first-year effort to pull in the crowd has caused it to be held on a Wednesday evening. The Lettermen hope even greater crowds will turn out this year to support the Wilkes Observatory in its attempts to put the school on the map and the basketball court and enjoy the dancing afterwords — all gratis!

The cheerleaders will be on hand, of course, and they have requested that the "noisemakers" cheerleaders who do such a good job of spicing up this event be present. The cheerleaders and their fans are promised that the "noisemakers" will be a feature of the sports event much like the marching band is at football games.

As an added attraction the Lettermen are planning some novel entertainment between the two sports events. The nature of the entertainment has not been disclosed but the Lettermen believe that it will come through in their usual inimitable form. All in all you just can't afford to miss Booster Night — the greatest sports spectacle of 1956!

Shomaté Assists At Wilbur Isaacs Recital Sunday

Wilbur Isaacs, voice instructor at Wilkes, sings in Sunday's Town and Gown concert with pianist James Shimato, accompanied by opera star Rina Stephens.

Stephanie has played here several occasions and is an equal opportunity Miss Stephens sang in the area last year.

Accompanist to the opera star for some four years, he has also accompanied Isaacs for the two or three.

Stephanie will play with Isaacs Sunday at four o'clock. The two will present a recital of art songs, three of which are arranged by Isaacs himself.

Isaacs will sing a Scotch folks tune, "I Love Jane Like A Rose", and two American folks songs, "Lonesome Valley" and "Peter Grey", all of which he has arranged himself.

In honor of the two hundredth anniversary of Mozart's birth this year, Isaacs will open Sunday's pro- gram with a Mozart aria.

In the honor of the two hundredth anniversary of Mozart's birth this year, Isaacs will open Sunday's program with a Mozart aria. Isaacs, instructor in the Wilkes music department, is no stranger to area music lovers, has sung frequently with such groups as the Wyoming Valley Oratorio Society, and has sung solo and performed the works of others, the baritone has also composed such works as a cycle of intricately treated Mother Goose rhymes, while his one-act operetta, "House of the Rising Sun", was produced here two years ago.

A student in Europe for three years, Isaacs also sings in Belgium and France, is organizing concerts for a tour with a mixed quartet next year.

"Alumni's" ANNOUNCES 25-TH ANNIVERSARY BUILDING PROGRAM

It was recently announced that Wilkes College is embarking on a three-year building and expansion program which will see the construction of a new Science Building and an Arts Building in time to celebrate the 25th anniversary of the Alumni Association in 1956 if successful.

Announcement was made by Dr. Andrei Secundus Poriton in the "Alumni", an official organ of that body.

The embryo program planning to raise in enrollment to a total of 1200 students in both the day and night schools. The physical limitations of the college permit an enrollment increase in this time preclude any increase in the enrollment beyond the 850 student in the buildings necessary to attract an equal number in night school.

A Middle States Association Accreditation report which has already vised Wilkes against any increase in enrollment at Wilkes College had intentions of instituting a post graduate course in Education. The Committee recommended Wilkes increase its physical plant and facilities before undertaking the increased scholastic program, it was stated in the Alumni.

Several architectural concepts of the new Science and Art Buildings have already been delivered to the administration.

The construction costs and the operating costs of the new buildings to be constructed will be determined, but information is expected from the Board of Trustees in the near future.

Hammer Serves with MSA Evaluation Group

Dr. Eugene L. Hammer returned to the campus today after spending the week in Lewistown, Pennsylvania, as a member of a Middle States Evaluation Commission which examined Lewisburg High School.

Dr. Hammer, head of the education department in the College, was asked by the chairman of the Middle States Committee to serve as a co-panel leader and coordinator of the education department with several groups of evaluators insuring that all courses at the high school were examined and graded on an equal level.

In Dr. Hammer's absence, his advanced courses in Education met with Mr. Francis E. Truscott, principal of the College, and several classes conducted a mock MSA evaluation similar to the one Dr. Hammer was expected to conduct.

This is not only slated to be one of the season's nicest semi-formals, but it will be another of those pleasant evening events that the guests will remember long after the last dance.

Don't miss the fun and excitement.

Freshman Bill Stewart Wins 'Best Beard' Title

Bill Stewart, freshman, is growing up, in fact, he has proved to possess more masculinity than any other male on campus. He is Bill Stewart, first-prize winner of the sophomore sponsored beard contest which culminated at the class' bountiful last Friday night.

Another freshman, Al Jones, added another feather to the frosh's dink by when he walked off with the second prize for growing the best beard. However, the sophomore, who ran the contest, couldn't be slighted either. Two of their class representatives gained possession of the third and fourth prizes, one for the best mustache and the other for the nicest peach-fuzz.

Judges for the affair, Congressmen Dan Flood, TV estimator Hal Berg, and Wilkes' own Bob Morin, leader of the College band, did not have too much difficulty deciding who had the best combination when they selected Stewart, since his growth was by far the most anxious. Al Jones came out on top even though he had very close competi- tion with Larry Groninger, Fred Krebs, and Cliff Brothers.

The most difficult decision for the judges to make was deciding who would win the contest for the trophy, the coveted object for which the contestants vied.

The contest will be a tradition with the Class of 1956 and each year the winner of the contest will be announced at the褒美酒‐

This is not only planned to be one of the season's finest semi-formals, but it will be another of those pleasant evening events that the guests will remember long after the last dance.

Honor Unworkable?

Early in the history of this college it was learned through an intercollegiate newspaper that this college was undergoing a transitional and developmental stage not unlike that which is cur-currently occurring at Wilkes. The college — the University of the State of New York — is the honor system.
 Honors students were invited to the assembly to discuss the implications of such policies. The students were divided into several groups and the discussions were held in 1956. It was determined that the majority of the students present favored a change in the current system, although the minority was strongly opposed.

The drive for a new honor system was spearheaded by the University Veterans Organization and was supported by the students at the last Student Council Elections.

The Veterans Organization drew up a proposal for a new honor code and presented it at the University of Florida. The code was eventually adopted by the students and is still in effect today.

In December, the Veteran's congregation put their plan to a voice-test before the student body. The results were disastrous — the majority of the students were against the new honor system. The vote was not popular at this "conservative" college.

While the minority was against the new system, a large group of students was in favor of it. This group was lead by students who felt that the current system was too lenient.

There have been various attempts to change the honor system at different colleges. However, it is clear that the majority of students are unhappy with the current system.

Letter to the Editor

To the Editor:

In last week's editorial you made a point that was lost on many of your readers. We think it is important to point out that you are making an argument based on the impression that a closed group did not join the rest of the student body in voting on this issue.

This is not the case. The group that was voting on this issue was the honor students, who are a small percentage of the student body.

Although these conditions might be presented to a degree, I do not agree with your argument that I am making a false impression of a situation that really happened. Of course, I do not feel any merit in such a situation being repeated.

The point that I was trying to make was that the majority of students were against the new system. The minority, on the other hand, was strongly in favor of it.

You also stated that . . . the group of students who voted on this issue was the entire student body, and everyone has equal opportunity to vote. This is true, but you have not mentioned the fact that there were many people who felt that the current system was too lenient.

'BLOOMER GIRL' CHORUS CAST

Carl Urnt

The daughters and sons-in-law play central roles in the plot, bore the brunt of most of the singing. The music of "Bloomer Girl" is so memorable that it captures the attention of the audience. The "bloomer girls" of the chorus are the characters who have the most to do with the plot.

Mia Misakian will have the part of Mia Misakian, the daughter of the composer. Mia Misakian is a young, hardworking girl who dreams of becoming a singer. She is the one who is the target of the plot.

Wilkes Students Enjoy Winter Carnival

Frolic at El Pocono Provides Opportunity For Outdoor Sports

Wilkes College students enjoy themselves between semesters at the El Pocono Dude Ranch in the school’s annual Winter Carnival. The ranch, formerly Karlsruhe, the fabulous Stegmaier estate, is one of the finest summer and recreation spots in the Pocono resort area.

There was plenty of snow and ice for those who like sleighing, tobogganing, and skating, with plenty left over for snowballs. Horseback riding and hiking were also popular.

For the “indoor sports”, there was a variety of entertainment, also. Music, games, television, group singing and eating occupied the evening in the recreation hall.

The affair, sponsored by the Student Council, came as a welcome break after the completion of final exams. The evening was concluded with dancing in the recreation hall.

Music for dancing was supplied by Bill Figari and his combo made up of Wilkes students.

The Winter Carnival has been an annual between-semester affair for seven years and seems to be growing in popularity each year.

3 Students Earn College Expenses by Washing Dishes

by Ed McCarty

Chow time! The dorm student rushes to his section of the cafeteria, grabs a tray, charges into the “soup line”, and then dedicates himself to eating. The commuter hurriedly weaves his way in and out of campus walks to his section of the caf’, dashes into line, saves a table for his comrades, and then silences his growling stomach. But we see only the “outside” of the inside of the cafeteria—smiling faces of Fred Wall and the waitresses, a warm atmosphere, and the clean, restful cafeteria itself.

If we were to look behind the scenes, we would find that the dishwashing area, while not as restful, is as clean as the dining area of the cafeteria. All equipment is ultra-modern and sanitary, and kept spotlessly clean. The dishes are washed in the room behind the sandwich counter on the first floor.

In the first step of dishwashing, the dishes are scraped clean of uneaten food, and the slop is relegated in a garbage can. The dishes are then placed upright in a tray, and a hand-operated spray removes further leftovers before the tray enters the diswashing machine. The minimum time and temperature for washing is forty seconds and 140 degrees. A rotary spray in the machine bombards the dishes with high speed jets of water, while by reversing a switch the dishes are rinsed, at temperatures above 80 degrees. The dishes are then removed from the machine steaming hot and are air-dried.

Glasses and cups are washed independently of dishes.

This cleanliness and efficiency is a vast improvement over the “good old days” when four years ago all dorm students ate at Sterling Hall.

At that time four boys washed all the dishes, glasses, pots, and pans by hand in a sink, while today the methods used are more sanitary than those in many restaurants and hotels.

The present dishwashing crew is composed of dorm students Mel McNew, Bob Chase, and Jim Walsh. The College employs a man who works regularly in the kitchen, but his main duties do not include dishwashing. The dishwashers work about ninety-four hours a month and receive the standard college wage for student employees.

Mel McNew, who has a service record of four years on the crew, rules the roost as head dishwasher. McNew works all three meals, assisted by Chase in the afternoon and by Walsh at night. A newcomer to the crew will be Larry Groeninger, who will begin his duties soon.

When asked for a statement for the college press, McNew commented, “Everything works around here but Walsh.” Walsh remarked, “If it weren’t for Golden Voiced McNew he couldn’t have been the Carrie singer. I wouldn’t be able to stand the humdrum of dishwashing.” Although the dishwashing crew complains a lot, they are good buddies and do a good job, as testified by Fred Wall.

And so we at Wilkes College point with pride not only to our athletic teams, our debaters, and our college’s growth, but also to our dishwashers, who can stand among the nation’s best.

Ed Darke to Serve With Naval Air Cadets

Edward S. Darke, a terminal student in mechanical engineering, successfully completed mental and physical qualification tests last weekend to commence training as a naval aviation cadet. It was announced by the Naval Procurement Office at Naval Air Station, Willow Grove.

Darke, a resident of Plymouth, was the only candidate to be chosen from a group of seven college students from other Pennsylvania colleges.

He will enter pre-flight training at Pensacola, Florida, sometime this summer where he will be subjected to an intensive ground training program and further physical tests to determine whether he will commence flight training.

Darke hopes to enter single engine training if he is successful at Pensacola. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Darke of Plymouth.

Grapplers, Cagers In Booster Twin Bill

Ithaca, Bloom
Invade Colonels' Gym Tomorrow

Both Colonels winter sports arena appears to be in good shape going into tomorrow night's big double-header or the gym.

The grapplers, who will meet Ithaca College at 6:30 in the first part of the twin-bill, are eager to get back on the winning track after last week's mortifying defeat by Bloomsburg.

John Beene is planning a slight adjustment in his lineup to meet Ithaca strength. Bob Mazzoni, usually in the heavyweight class, has been busy all week shedding some 30 pounds in order to raise the limit for the 177-pound class. If he succeeds, Neil Dadurka will wrestle heavyweight.

Dan Reynolds is nursing an arm infection which shouldn't hamper the "Tiger" in his 137-pound bout. The rest of the matmen are in good shape.

Ithaca has won only one match but losing four, but have always been troublesome in the past. Rebuilding this year, the Bloomsburgers have met some of the best wrestling squads in the country. Their only win came over East Tennessee who also fell before the Colonels.

Bloom Here Again

The Colonels will meet Bloomsburg in what stacks up as a possible blood match due to the hectic wrestling match between the two last Saturday.

Otherwise, Bloomsburg will bring a team to town which ranks fourth in the Huskies Conference. The Huskies will have two of the best scorers in the Conference in their lineup in Len Knell and Keith Rhyner. The Colonels' lineup in Carl Van Dyke, a Dallas boy, ranks third in the conference in scoring, while Weiser is fifth.

Their combined strength will tie with Harrison Morson, a 200-pound line-backer in football.

The Colonels will be trying to battle the Colonels to a conference equalled earlier in the season to the same Huskies team at Bloomsburg. Davis will be faced with a double-header which includes George Mergen, John Brennan, Carl Van Dyke, Joe Jablonski, and Jim Ferris. In the lift at Bloom, Colonels had on three of the key nights of the year but should be a different outfit at home with the home court advantage.

Students are reminded that they can take another person on the twin-bill on activities passes. The lettermen have promised to make this a real night something to be remembered.

Reese Announces Bowling Tourney

Wilkes Keglers
Planning Event
To Start in March

The tournament is planned to start on Friday, February 15, with the opening game being a best of three series. The tournament will be held at the Wilkes Bowling Center, which is located on the campus of Wilkes College. The date of the tournament has yet to be announced.

DIAMOND PROSPECTS ARE BRIGHTENED BY MILLMAN'S RETURN

John Millman
Wilkes baseball hopes received a big boost recently when John Millman, a fine pitcher several years ago when he returned to school after a hitch with Uncle Sam's Army in England.

Millman, also a former Colonel, was drafted in early 1964 but returned to school after the second semester of his senior year. At the time, he was playing basketball with Len Batroney and Co.

George, formerly of Plymouth High School and Polkale State College, is also the leading rebounder besides being one of the top men from the court. All this in his freshman year. And George is still growing.

MARYWOOD DOWNS COLONELIETTES, 50-24

The Wilkes Colonelles continued their losing streak as they suffered a third defeat, 86-24, at the hands of Marywood Tuesday night at the South Franklin Street gym.

The Scranton ladies piled up a heavy 20-point lead in the first half and despite heroic efforts on the part of the Colonelles to cut down the lead, remained top-sided throughout the game. In the last period the Colonelles rallied 10 points when Rose Weinstein, one of the fresman spars on the team started nailing shots from all over the court.

Weinsteint was high for the night with 14 points.

TROUBLE, TROUBLE, BOIL AND BUBBLE

The almost tragic happenings at the recent bowling match last Saturday night pointed out very well the hazards you face when you compete against most of the bowlers in the area. Schools which started out under the guise of being state-sponsored tournaments have turned into affairs which are little better than some of the better known "factories."

It isn't just the fact that they stopped, six undefeated mat hopes that is burning most people that had anything to do with the trouble. It is the fact that they knowingly and willingly committed a breach of the code and almost inadvertedly in intracollegiate athletics that has John Reese and his matmenizing.

The refereed insufficiency of the subject of the controversy, Joe Cawthern, brought this comment in the "Backward". End newspaper. said that story, of course, came from BTSB. The local college has its days a communication that Cawthern had not been able to lift his right arm high and that he was scheduled for x-ray examination today.

Let's examine this quickly. First, I do not understand the phrase to plain-ly tell the coach that he was OK and wanted to continue. Time should never have been taken out if Wilkes coach John Reese was not suggested it. Finally, if this boy was hurt so severely, why did they wait until Monday to take him away. The injury occurred at about 2:30 Saturday afternoon, and the effects were evidently felt in time to prevent the boy from continuing. On top, the Bowls are in the "Enterprise."said that Beilharz could not lift his right arm very high. This is all very good. Maybe he can't. But the hold that was called illegal was on the left arm. Maybe it was a misprint.

THE BIG SHOW

The fact that the Bloomington baseball team is on the card for Saturday night's big double-header should make it an interesting even-

ELIAS TO COACH SHICKSHINNY

Jerry Elias, who graduated from Wilkes this month, has been named head wrestling coach at Shickshinny High School starting immediately.

Elias, who was captain of the Wilkes wrestling team in his four years as a wrestler, and assistant baseball coach, will guide Shickshinny's first venture into the mat sport.

While at Wilkes, he was treasurer of the Lettermen's Club and wrote sports items for the Beacon. He attended Bucknell College and received his bachelor of science degree in business education.

He is married to former campus girl, Michelle Della Cobban. The couple has one daughter and two sons and resides at Wyoming Avenue, Shickshinny.
Smith College Poll Finds 83% Favor Honor System

(Note: this article initiates another BEAVER service to its readers. In accordance to the requests of many readers that it provide coverage of events and activities of other campuses, the Beacon here commences a series of articles from the Intercollegiate Press on the question of honor systems, a subject of some controversy last semester, and one scheduled for further discussion in the next few months.)

Northampton, Mass.—(L.P.)—Results from the poll on the honor system at Smith College reveal that out of 2,000 students, 64 percent answered the questionnaire’s first question “Do you approve of the entire honor system as it now stands?” Of these, 83 percent approved the entire system, 14 percent disapproved, and 2 percent could not decide or were unqualified to answer. The four most frequently cited reasons by those who did not approve are listed here: 1. There is no one system. This is the basis for the student body answered question three, “Do you think the optional double reporting of the entire honor system has strengthened or weakened this idea that the students think the individual thinks it’s right? 2. They would not ask a girl to report herself in the first place. This was again based on the abstract conception of the idea of honor; 3. There should be optional double reporting in the academic as well as in the social sphere; 4. There should be compulsory double reporting in both spheres, in order to be consistent with the theory of the honor system, and in order to make each girl feel responsible for herself and for others.

There was some confusion about the phrase “the entire honor system in its now stands?” It was pointed out here that the questioner meant this to mean “with” the optional double reporting clause. Some of the “no” answers to question one which gave no reasons but thought the clause strengthened the system, perhaps, misinterpreted the phrase to mean without the optional clause. Thus, guttman of the student body answered question three, “Do you think the optional double reporting of the entire honor system has strengthened or weakened the idea that if a student works hard, the idea that the average girl; 2. It relieves the atmosphere that people are “spying” or “tattling” which were the two most frequently used words; 3. It distinguishes between “petty” and “important” rules in the social sphere.

Top Won-Lost Record

With their record of wins and losses over the three years Wilkes teams have been entered in the Johns Hopkins Tournament, Wilkes has won the top winning record for the period. Princeton, which has won a total of nine trophies and one second-place trophy, has the next best record, T-9.

Dr. Kruger’s team has come home with a trophy each year; two for third place and one for the championship. Both members of the Wilkes team won certificates of distinction. The team was awarded a similar certificate, along with the third-place trophy.

Interviewed, Tuesday, Dr. Kruger said that he was “highly gratified” by the placing of the Wilkes from the Baltimore Sun. Saturday’s whole back page was devoted to the Wilkes team and carried a picture of Jessie Choper as “the man to beat.” The entire Wilkes affirmative case was printed in the paper. Dr. Kruger said this was very flattering even though it gave away the team’s secrets.

Boston News

The next two-man tournament is the National Debate Tournament 24 and 25. The Wilkes team will be one of the better debate teams in the nation. It is a preliminary to the national championships.

Points in individual debate may be determined in the following way. There are six categories, each debater being adjudged from one to five points in each category, making the total possible score 30. The total score of evidence, reasoning, adaptation, refutation, style of delivery, and cooperation.
