The Realm of the Incas

Peru has been an old friend of mystery with its snow-capped Cordilleras, hot valleys, man-made terraces, and the great Incan civilization. The Realm of the Incas by Siegfried Huber, and The Aztecs: People of the Sun by Alfonso Caso, both of these intriguing books are accurate and lively portrayals based on original sources.

The Realm of the Incas

Peru has been the scene of mystery with its snow-capped Cordilleras, hot valleys, man-made terraces, and the great Incan civilization. The Realm of the Incas by Siegfried Huber, and The Aztecs: People of the Sun by Alfonso Caso, both of these intriguing books are accurate and lively portrayals based on original sources.

Having taught in South America for several years, the author was able to learn the surviving remnants of Peru's culture at first hand. Above all, the reader has the opportunity to learn the old Spanish documents and literature of the period. In the concluding chapter, the author has given a thorough account of the Incas in a way that will be interesting to the reader.

Siegfried Huber has written a life story of the Inca civilization. The Inca Kingdom from the arrival of the Conquistadores to the last Inca, Tupac Amaru. He delves deeply into the political and religious history and tries to prove that the kingdom of the Incas fell apart relatively slowly, rather than like a rotten fruit.

This white-skinned race of autochtones has produced a fossilized constitution, in which there was no possible chance for human freedom and the people were enslaved in a dream world of grotesque and idolatry.

Huber is a keen observer and obviously fell under the spell of the Incas. His book contains interesting, revealing, and amusing characteristics of the Incas that the reader is sure to appreciate.

by Tenen, Jr.

In intramural football competition last week Ashley Hall defeated Gore Hall, 16-4, to just a butt wrap around the American League title. Ashley is led by the offensive power of Lomar, Royle, Kumps. Their defense has allowed only one touchdown in league play and has been sparked by "Flashy" Boren, Schneider, and Halperin. Varied Topics Discussed on Student Government Agenda

by Gloria Zalewski

At the Student Government meeting held last Monday evening, it was announced that the new budget was approved by the administration. The meeting also announced the Leaders Conference which will take place on Saturday at 10 a.m. in the Commons.

Members were reminded of the All College Dance on Friday, November 25. Other reports which were given at the meeting were: both activities and chapernons must be submitted to any Student Government meeting two weeks in advance of the affair; the Student Government's balance is $3,413.

Three points of information were brought up. The first point was that anyone wanting dittos may pay twenty cents per each fifty copies. This money will cover the cost of ink, paper and mechanical repairs. The second point was that anyone purchasing articles for various clubs and organizations must turn in their books to the custodians who will, in turn, submit them to the finance office. If this is not done, bills will not be paid.

The third was that the chairman for the Winter Carnival, Ralph Pinsky, with Lorraine Reme, Jim Walmsley and the student body are contacting various winter resorts to find a possible location for this year's vacation, which has yet been found. At this meeting, it was announced that the United Fund drive at the College was $470.00 below the goal.

Michelin Stresses Importance of Undergraduate Research

by Wayne Thomas

The necessity of research projects for undergraduate students was one of the major points of a talk given by Dr. Francis J. Michelin, assistant directors' meeting of Undergraduate Research Programs in Washington, D.C.

Michelin stated, "One of the things that every student should learn is that the sciences are not a static thing, learned once and for all, but a continually growing thing in which new development period requires periodic overviews of our ways of looking at, and understanding, the world and universe around us. One of the most important things that a young person can learn in school is the necessity of keeping up with his field, and sometimes observing discoveries that such a young person can learn are the methods of study and the habit of study which make possible for him to do so."

Michelin encouraged that research experience has an important influence upon the undergraduate student. He stated that the goal should be a shift in emphasis from acquired knowledge and techniques as an end in itself to its proper role as means to an end and the inculcating of an awareness of the static nature of our knowledge. Michelin mentioned that Wilkes has approached this problem through research and encouraging students to participate or select a research proj- ect in order to discover the importance of one of the advantages of a small college an on-going and frequent faculty-student contact.
