Communism and Hate

An editorial which appeared recently in the Christian Science Monitor discusses a statement made by General David M. Shoup of the United States Marine Corps. Shoup said that Communism is taught "fanatically, with great passion and forcefulness." He went on to say, "We cannot teach people to hate. Hatred is poison," he said. It is clearly related to the destruction of human beings. Hatred is the root of all evil. Hatred is a disease that we cannot afford if we are to maintain our position in the family of freedom-loving people.

Hatred, as a disease, causes its victims to forget good intentions, to destroy the very good they do of no effect. Hatred destroys the very good that we stand for. It is a disease that we cannot afford if we are to maintain our position in the family of freedom-loving people.

Another Step Forward

The success of Colonel John Glenn's space flight on Tuesday brought new recognition to the United States in the field of space achievement. This new development means that the country is now working toward the goal of putting a man on the moon. The United States has made a significant step forward in this field, and we are now working toward the goal of putting a man on the moon.

To provide a student's makeup for a course, there is no longer needed to our own planet, but now encompasses the universe as we know it.

Keeping pace with these developments, our system of education has expanded and must continue to expand if we are to provide for the needs of future generations. We must be adequate in terms of the resources we have, but we must also be adequate in terms of the resources we are capable of providing.

Letter to the Editor

Dear Editor:

Ever since the snow fell last week, and due to the weather which formed in many parts of the country, which controls by the college. No work has been done by the maintenance crew of all or even some of these spots. I realize that the maintenance crew may be setting up some of these spots. I don't think you are aware of the lack of time which the maintenance crew is setting up some of these spots.

I have written this letter hoping that a positive step will be taken to rectify the hazardous situation.

Thank you.

Elizabeth Taylor Look, Hip Hugger Sportswear

Herald Spring Fashions by Nancy Tinklepaugh and June Hulse

The Elizabeth Taylor look is expected to sweep across the nation this spring. The look features dresses and skirts which come in pastel colors such as pink and white, plus black and pastel solids. The blouse can be very tricky or softly feminine depending on how many ruffles it has. Some of the blouses have a single cuff on the sleeve, while others have cuffs on the sleeves. The cuffs of the sleeves are the most stylish and are also the most comfortable. The Elizabeth Taylor look has also been carried out in some of the prettiest dresses for spring. A new and daring style for spring and summer is the hip hugger look. It is a look that is very flattering and is very comfortable.

The Michael's Look, which is the look for the Michael's look, is a look that is very pleasing and is very comfortable.

University of Detroit Raises Graduate School Admission Requirement

Detroit, Mich. — The Graduate School at the University of Detroit has raised admission requirements from 2.7 to 2.5 overall average in the curriculum. The change was made by the Graduate Council, requires all applicants to have a 2.7 for at least the final 60 hours of undergraduate work. In addition, they must have a 2.7 in their field of graduate specialization.

Rev. Allen P. Farrell, S.J., dean of the Graduate School, said the change is a result from the need to bring admissions standards more in line with those of top Graduate Schools in the country. "This will mean," he said, "that past evidence is valid, that instead of the usual one-third rejections, at least one-half of the applicants will be turned down.

Significance of Glenn's Flight

Frank Meenker, senior political science major

"It is an intellectual, scientific achievement that will have little effect for some time on current international relations or politics. However, the implications are far reaching in that they may help to bring a new international law for outer space, a problem which the United States is currently considering. Now that we have put a man in space, the nations of the world may see the necessity of free and open space exploration, and there is freedom of the high seas."

Louise Gatto, senior biology major

"This space flight is both political and scientifically unique. In this cold war Russia and the United States must prove to the allies and the smaller nations that it has the qualifications and potential to make the competition. This space shot was important in international relations, and it was in the United States and proved that its program is adequate to the task. It is scientifically important that it opens new realities of investigation, beyond the confines of the earth, to scientists."
The Wilkes-Barrs, a three-squad, six-man team, is vying for the first place honors in the MCCA this week. They have been dominant so far, with a 5-0-0 record. They are predicted to beat their opponents in the upcoming matches.

The Wilkes-Barrs' success is due to their strong line-up, consisting of a 6'3" tall guard, Ron Masters, who has proven too quick for him. He has been named as the tournament's best scorer. The Saskatchewan Marauders, a mainstay in the MCCA, have been defeated by the Wilkes-Barrs, 72-67.

The Wilkes-Barrs' victory was sweet for the fans. It was only the second time in two seasons that the team has won a mainstay tournament.

The Wilkes-Barrs' victory is a result of their hard work and dedication. They have been practicing every day, and their hard work has paid off. The team is looking forward to a bright future in the MCCA.

Loesch, Alumnus, Passes Test For Public Accountant Title

Christopher H. Loesch, Jr., a June 1961 graduate of Wilkes, has successfully taken the test necessary to become a registered Certified Public Accountant. The test, a uniform one given simultaneously throughout the country, is divided into five sections and requires a testing period of 2½ days.

However, since the test is the only criterion which states have in common, accountants must meet their own requirements. For this reason, Loesch will not be granted his certificate from the state of Virginia until he has completed the state's requirement of two years of experience in an accounting office.

To fulfill that requirement, Loesch, who is Assistant Public Accountant in the General Accounting Office of the United States Controller General. After receiving his certificate from the state of Virginia, Loesch will be returned to his position as Assistant Public Accountant in all states except New York and New Jersey, which requires the two-year experience to be undertaken in their own state.

Mr. Robert Capin, professor in the accounting department, noted that it is unnecessary for a graduate to try his luck at the test but that very few took the five sections in one 2½-day sitting. It pointed out that most accountants took the third and fourth sections individually and spread them out over a period of time.

Thus, Loesch has the top achievement in the field of accounting within the year of his graduation, a feat not accomplished by many accountants.

ROTC Delays Visit to Wilkes

Thomas Schelling, senior assistant to the Secretary of State, who visited Swarthmore College, was delayed by the visit for the ROTC meeting on Swarthmore College, Telegraphs from President Kennedy, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, the United States Arms Control Commission, and Senator Clark, to extent went against the grain of the Congress. Schelling arrived on campus to a dogmatic stand for the value of a stock, while he was more interested in choosing to present an eclectic approach; however, his views proved to be highly subjective and discussed in the student forums. After following Senator Clark's address, Attorney Bernard Rechroft of the State Department, presented a discussion on the "Millionaire's Problem," the right to change his address, and the United States Arms Control Commission, according to the student's address. With the United States, American Student Assembly, and American Student "War, Peace, and the American Student" during which he emphasized the importance of the campus and the students of the search for peace. This talk provided a good backdrop for the final event on Saturday, the day in the day, the campus will be open to the students.

Swarthmore Conference Draws 300; Two Wilkes Delegates Attend

"Student action today is greater than it has been for a number of years, yet it appears that the total energy spent is not matched by significant accomplishment. Important, therefore, is the development of an attitude which will lead to a consideration of the potential of different approaches, more effective programs, and better developed methods of student involvement, all leading to more constructive involvement and to produce only as much as the thought that goes into it with.

With 300 delegates were presented with "working papers," reprints of articles by experts in the field of international disarmament, and approved, as a result of discussions served as background material for the First Intercollegiate Conference on Disarmament held last weekend at Swarthmore College.

Steve Phillips and Jerome Krass, junior and senior respectively served as the Wilkes Barre delegates to the Conference, which ran from Friday evening through Sunday morning. They were two of the more than 300 delegates who came from 160 American colleges and universities to participate in a week-long discussion on disarmament. The conference, designed to clarify for the students the issues of disarmament and to work with international relations, was to present a variety of views rather than a dogmatic approach to the problem, and was sponsored with an address of welcome by Dr. Courtney Smith, at the University of Swarthmore College.

Senator Clark, to some extent, went against the grain of the Conference. Schelling arrived on campus to a dogmatic stand for the value of a stock, while he was more interested in choosing to present an eclectic approach; however, his views proved to be highly subjective and discussed in the student forums. This talk provided a good backdrop for the final event on Saturday, the day in the day, the campus will be open to the students.

Throughout the Conference, the students were housed in private dormitories and surrounded by communities. Phillips and Krass had the good fortune of living with the Morse House, to which both Dr. and Mrs. Elsbree, students who have gone to school with both "Gene and Eleanor" in Wilkes-Barre's history, were treated with special consideration and kindness.
