Opportunity Remains For Students To Name College's Athletic Field

Since school officials still have the opportunity to submit a name to be used in the permanent naming of the newly-completed college athletic field, the field is located on the site of the former Wilkes-Barre Barons—Artillery Park in Kingston.

The Student Government Trustees has decided to give the student body this chance to name a part of the college's expanding physical plant. There is still some time remaining in which students can submit the names they would like to see the field bear.

Ever since the Barons left the area, the field had been neglected. The college obtained the rights to use the field under the terms of a long-term lease which include care, taker services and a general improvement in the physical appearance of the field.

The area will be used as a combination baseball, soccer, tennis and football area. The college plans to make the area available to the community during the summer through the Recreation Association.

After a suitable number of suggestions, has been made, the Board will consider names submitted to be given to the field. To aid in this selection, the Board has requested that students submit names to include a brief explanation of the reason for their choices.

In order to facilitate the process of submitting names, the Beacon is including with this issue a suggestion box which can be filled out and returned to the Beacon office.

Cinderella Defies ‘Midnight’ Spell

Ticked pictured above are the eleven candidates for Cinderella, 1962. Seated: Judy Butchko, Estelle Manos, Airlene Jones, Marsha Hefferan, Joyce Glanville.

Activities Director Takes Leave of Absence To Pursue Graduate Studies at Penn State

by Mary DiGiuseppe

Summer is a time of change for college students when they leave their books and take up summer jobs. This summer will also mark a change for a non-student member of the college, but in a slightly reversed order. Mr. Robert Morris, Administrative Assistant to the President and familiar figure at Chase Hall, will vacate his desk and exchange it for another at Pennsylvania State University.

On June 13 he will depart for that campus, where he will spend a fifteen-month leave of absence attending to his doctoral degree.

Now the university is a familiar sight to Mr. Morris, for he has spent much time there during the past three summers compiling credits for his Master's degree. And "creditable" credits they have been, too—mostly of his marks have been F's or honorables, equivalent to 4's under our marking system. Mr. Morris modestly disclaims most of the credit, attributing his success to the excellent general training in gathering research material he received at Wilkes.

High marks were not the only distinction he achieved during his summer study. The last summer he won the State campus he was elected vice-president and program chairman of Iota Alpha Delta.

ICG Elects Officers; Two Win by Acclamation

At a recent meeting of the I. C. G. officers, Paul Hughey, B.B. in Commerce and Finance major, was elected president of the organization for the coming year.

Three juniors were elected to fill the other posts for next year. Gerald Moffatt and Nick Alexander, Commerce and Finance majors, were elected to the offices of vice-president and treasurer, respectively. The senior selected to hold the organization's secretary-treasurer position is James Walters, a finance major. The results

Mr. Robert Morris, a fraternity whose members are graduate students in education. As such, he will be responsible for directing the social and academic activities of the group, an office for which his position at Wilkes has ample prepared him.

Specifically Mr. Morris will be working for his Doctor of Education with a major in College Personnel Work. He will spend the fifteen-month period he is away taking courses mainly in higher education and psychology. The actual writing of his doctoral dissertation will come later.

Commenting on this dissertation, Mr. Morris brought up an interesting point in regard to his campus job as a reviewer of National Defense Student Loan forms. The honesty of the applicant in completing these forms, be he believer, has suggested the possibility of writing his dissertation on the values of college students today.

On his trip he will be assisted by a general working in the field of education.

Mr. Morris, told us that he had delayed recently to finish on the last year.

Suggestions Still Needed

Several weeks ago the Beacon launched a campaign to obtain more students for the college athletic field. As of this writing, no suggestions from the student body have been submitted. While we are well aware that everyone may not have talent in this area, we believe that it is obvious that these must be someone in a student body of more than 2,000 members who has some opinion regarding the field.

It has been suggested by off-campus sources that the field be divided into sections and some of these sections be held and attended by members of some distinguished personal and athletic accomplishments in this area as well. Students are invited to submit their suggestions to the Beacon at the Beacon office in Pickering 202, or to any member of the staff.

This is an opportunity for some Wilkes student to display his ability to bring acclaim to himself and to the general student body.

On Spring Weekend

Spring Weekend with a number of gala affairs is once again upon us and many students are hurriedly making final arrangements for this event. Many thanks in advance go to those who have given of their time and talent to prepare for the Weekend and to make it the success which we are sure it will be.

All of us can help, though, simply by being in attendance at these affairs. Every possible arrangement has been made to insure the students of this year's Spring Weekend an enjoyable and pleasant time and the location of the events makes them convenient to all.

Stephen College Signs Pact With U.S. Office of Education

Stephen College and the U.S. Office of Education recently signed a three-year contract giving the school the opportunity to use educational media to be used in the Stephen College of Learning Center.

Primarily the project will enable students to use modern and functional resources of the newer media for learning that are to be incorporated in the five years of the pact. The project is directed by James M. Wood Learning Center.

Steps will develop a comprehensive report on the use of new media of education, which will be distributed to schools in the area.

Chae Adapts to American Campus After Youth in War-Torn Korea

"Man is a pliable being, flexible, adaptable," says Dootevokski, who was born and raised in North Korea to a family of teachers. He was sent to a boarding school in Korea where he lived with his family for nine years. When the Korean War broke out he enlisted in the Korean Army, serving as an officer for five years.

Then in 1958 Choe Choe made a decision which he considers the turning point in his life. He was a student in Korea who were studying in America recommended that he come to Wilkes.

Shortly afterwards I received a letter from the College — a personal letter from Dr. Farley — saying that if I met the requirements I would be welcome to come here.

The transition from military to college life was not an easy one for him, since he had studied little during his five years in the army. "When I started at the College I only wanted to graduate quickly, but soon I developed a love for learning which has prompted me to further education — thus his turning point in life. After graduation Choe Choe plans to enter Columbia University where he will go for graduate study in economics with a view to return to Korea and teach or work for the government.

Choe Choe, an honor student in Seoul High School, has been twice on the dean's list at the College. He is a member of the Letterman's Club and the Sociology Club. He is a member of the Accounting Club and the soccer team. A senior business administration major, he was the student laboratory assistant at the College.

Having enjoyed his years here Choe Choe, a resident at Ashley Hall, says that he finds it a dormitory a family atmosphere in helping him with his problems and relationships. Yet he also receives an impression of discipline, since he has seen an addition of new dormitories and class buildings during his stay.

Traveling, soccer, and hiking are some of his favorite pastimes.

Buildings Have Background
Of Rich, Interesting History

Primarily a community college, Wilkes has roots that go deep into the city of Wilkes-Barre and all Wyoming Valley. At the time Wilkes was chartered as a four-year liberal arts college in 1855, it was dedicated to honor John Wilkes, an English patriot and one of the first defenders of American freedom in England, by naming the newly founded institution in his honor.

Chase Hall

They thus increased the esteem in which he is held by the community, and Mr. and Mrs. Mark Barrow, and, by doing so, gave the students their desire to create a true community college. The community, in turn, has been quick to show its gratitude.

Much of this gratitude has been shown in the form of gifts to the college of property used as part of its physical plant. Other properties have been purchased by the college and have been named after patriots who were important in the history of the community.

Many of the buildings thus presented to the college have a rich and interesting history of their own — a history that is known to relatively few people connected with Wilkes. The first building acquired by the college, when it was still Bucknell University Junior College, is perhaps symbolic of all buildings that have become part of Wilkes.

Chase Hall was presented to the college by Rev. Admiral Harold K. Stack, present chairman of the Board of Trustees, in honor of his sister and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Chase.

During the years it has belonged to the college, Chase Hall has been remodeled. It was used continuously as the Administration Building and now houses the offices of the President, the Dean, and other administrative offices.

In addition, Chase Hall was used to house the first college cafeteria which housed the language department, and has also provided space for recreation centers.

The beauty of the building, constructed about 1917, prompted its selection, in 1958, as one of the most prominent and interesting buildings in the area. The building was selected as Chase Hall by the Board of Trustees, and now houses the offices of the President, the Dean, and other administration offices.

The building housing Chase Hall, which has come to be known as Chase Hall, was dedicated to the students of the college by Mr. and Mrs. Mark Barrow, and was formerly a garage for the college.

Another property donated to the college combines with the lawn of Chase Hall to provide a traditional campus feeling. This is the former home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred M. Kirby; it was presented to the college by Mr. Allan Kirby, their son.

At the university, Mr. Kirby presented the main building to the school, Mr. Kirby also donated the Kirby’s former coach house to Wilkes. The main building serves as the college library while the coach house, enlarged in 1965, serves as the college cafeteria or "Commons."

The rough quadrangle thus formed by Chase Hall, Chase Theater, Kirby Hall and the Common provides lovely lawns which contribute to the atmosphere of a true college campus and form a natural gathering place for students.

Ed. Note: Of the remaining college buildings, several were donated, others were bought, and one was constructed by the school. Some of these will be discussed next week in a continuation of this article.

Gridders Hold Spring Practice Under Schmidt’s Able Leadership

This year for the first time in the history of Wilkes College football, the Colonid gridders are engaging in a two-week spring practice session. Under newly-appointed head coach Roland Schmidt, the team is busy shedding excess poundage acquired during the winter months. In a meeting with the team last Thursday, Coach Schmidt presented a straightforward approach to football. He said that it was up to the players to put forth their best effort. Schmidt further stated that the team was capable of plying winning football if they could muster the desire and will to win.

Actual practice sessions began last Monday at the girls’ hockey field with the team undergoing rigorous calisthenics and running through plays. Notebooks containing most of the plays to be used next season have been distributed to the team to study over the summer. The team is practicing without pads, and, of course, there are no contact drills or scrimmages involved in the practice sessions.

Although the squad of thirty-odd players is running through plays, the purpose of the spring drills, according to Coach Schmidt, is to test the team in the basic fundamentals of the game of football. This is to enable the team to begin practice next fall in a smoother and more rewarding manner. As a result, the Colonid should be well-trained and better-equipped to challenge their MAC foes this fall.

Working with Schmidt at practice have been John Goebel and Frank Spudis. Goebel, who was formerly a halfback at Bloomsburg State College, is concerned with the backfield, while Spudis is performing in the capacity of line coach. His qualifications for this post are evident when one examines his record at Wilkes, when

Old-Timers Return Tomorrow for Annual Alumni-Varisty Contest

The Colonid will turn back the sands of time tomorrow to the baseball stars of the 1960-61 era return to the Wilkes diamond to participate in the second annual Alumni-Varisty baseball game. Game time is 2 p.m. Last year the stars of yesteryear took an early lead, but couldn’t hold back the tide of power as the Varisty outlasted them in a thrilling and somewhat humorous, 12-11, victory.

Alumni expected to return to action are Ron Reecmier, Bob Sokol, Ralph Henderson, Joe Sikorski, Jerry Ferris, Joe Parasky, Walt Foley, Ed Bierbaum, Joe Tenen, George Ralston, Jack Madden, Jim McNew, and John Harvey. The "Old-Timers" have pledged victory over sore muscles in this year’s fray, so plenty of action is expected.

Upset Scranton

Last Friday the Colonids upset a highly favored Scranton University team, 8-7, in 10 innings. The game, straight out of a baseball novel, took its toll on the heroes of the contest. The players were pushed to the back page of the newspapers. A sudden streak of good fortune sent the winning run to the plate in the 10th inning, led off by a double. Tom Trosko advanced the winning run when, after Aquilino grounded out, Matt Himlin sent the winning run home with a single off the third baseman’s glove. The Royals loaded the bases with two out in the half of the inning, but failed to score.

Wilkes University was founded in 1956. The school has a football team, the Wilkes Colonids, who play in the Pennsylvania Athletic Conference (PAC). The school is located in Wilkes-Barre, Pennsylvania.

During 1956, Wilkes' football team played its first game against the West Stroudsburg Panthers, a game that was won 3-0. This game set the tone for the entire season, as the Colonids went on to win their first 10 games before losing to a strong Penn State team. The Colonids finished the season with a record of 10-1-1, including a victory over the University of Scranton in the first ever meeting between the two schools.

The Colonids have been a staple of the Wilkes University athletics program since its inception. The team has had several successful seasons, including a trip to the Division III playoffs in 2010. The team is coached by Roland Schmidt, who has been with the program since 1980. Schmidt has been a key figure in the development of the Wilkes football program, and has guided the team to success on the field for many years.

Jim Brunza Named Athlete of the Year

Little All-American Places First In Beacon Sportswriters’ Vote; Edges Ten Others To Take Title

Jim Brunza, who brought national recognition to Wilkes College by virtue of his stellar performances on the gridiron, was named the Beacon’s "Athlete of the Year" in voting held this past week by members of the sports staff of the newspaper.

In the voting, Jim edged out a number of fine athletes among whom were Tom Kruslueh, Erwin Guetig, Brooke Yegger, Ted Tollebe, Harvey Rosen, Frank Lepore, John Moore, Don Eiler, Lou Zampetti, and Chuck Weiss.

Jim is a senior secondary education major who competed in football and wrestling and was outstanding in both areas of intercollegiate competition.

Number One Man . . . Jim Brunza

This past fall Jim received national honors by being named to the second team of the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics Little All-American football squad. The players nominated to this all-star aggregation are those from the 325 NAIA-affiliated small colleges throughout the nation.

As both offensive and defensive units are chosen, Jim was named as a tackle on the offensive second team. The players are nominated by NAIA coaches of teams opposing the particular player during the season. This honor is voted on by a majority vote to the high caliber of play that Brunza has displayed during his career at Wilkes.

It is impossible to estimate Jim’s true value to the team, for he was in all ways a steady, aggressive dependable performer. His week-to-week performances, may not be termed spectacular, since a line- man seldom, if ever, attracts the attention of the fans. The 5’11”, 200-pound right tackle, however, has received much attention from the sports writers who follow the small-college gridiron. It was a result of this scrutiny, he was named to the second team of the week on several occasions.

Perhaps his finest effort of this past season was against the Bears of Ursinus College. In this contest, Jim with his steady right hand to smash down any Bear ball-carrier who tried to break the tough Wilkes line. He earned Beacon Athlete of the Week honors for his performance. His phrase, "Athlete" honor several times during his grid career at Wilkes.

Although Jim is considered a defensive player of the first magnitude, he is equally proficient on offense. He has been a constant and dependable aid in opening gaps in which his backs have flourished. He has been most proficient in pass blocking and run blocking.

Golfers Win Thriller From East Stroudsburg; Play Tournament Today

Tournament time hits the Colonial golf course this weekend as the men and women’s teams prepare for play in two post season tourneys. Today the linkmen are in the semi-finals of the annual Harpur Golf Tournament. This is the third year of the event with equal individual and team champions chosen.

On the road for their second tournament of the fall the Fox Hill Country Club of South Bend, Indiana, will host the Intercollegiate Athletic championship. Scranton is the host college this year when Wilkes hosted the Penn State affair.

The intercollegiate golfers on the Fox Hill course and will be "dark horses" for the individual event.

Edge East Stroudsburg Last Saturday the Wilkes linkmen topped the Eastern Pennsylvania Conference with a score of 9-9 in a regulation match. This year the team has shown a sudden-death overtake between the two-number-one men for the team. Bob Adams and Frank Lepore, both stalwarts for the Warriors, and John Occhato played in the Door-Door playoff. Both linkmen bagged the first hole with nervousness and pressure taking its toll on both teams as Lepore drove 300 yards off the tee to the left while Occhato’s second hit. The Colonial number-one then dropped the ball about two feet from the pin to capture the hole, and the match.

Very impressive in the play of the Wilkes team was Bob Adams and Rich Bellis who each captured three points from their opponent. Adams was named the man of the year for the differers against two of the best records ever by a Wilkes golf team.

Intramural Softball Intramural softball headed into the home stretch the past week with the Ashley Hall nine and the Seagulls’ 7 squad leading their respective leagues. The Ashley Hall nine is a 6-1 point leader of the Dorm League while the Seagulls man an unblemished, 6-0 record. The Naughty Nine and the Trojans have mathematical chances of winning the Intramural Softball while the Seagulls will be the inevitable champions.

On Monday a three-game series between the two teams started in hopes of crowning a "kam- pion" for the year. The second game will be played on Wednesday with a rubber band scheduled for Saturday in Germany, Jim pursued his football career. He entered Wilkes College as a first-year student.

An active member of the Letterman’s Club, Jim is a friendly person. We on the Beacon Sports Staff extend congratulations to Jim for truly earning the honor of "Athlete of the Year".

AWARDS NOTICE

All organizations making awards at the final assembly should consult Mrs. Dueno’s office as soon as possible.

Tennis Teams Meet Royals Tomorrow; Drop Susquehanna

Tomorrow afternoon the Colonels tennis squad will take to their home court to meet the Royals of Scranton University. The visiting team are eager to avenge last year’s humiliating defeat. However, the Colonels won last year saw the Wilkesmen crush the Royals, 8-0 and 9-1.

Scranton is reported to be a much-improved aggregation this year and are expected to provide their number-one men, whom Bud Menaker has boasted twice, their best performance of the season. However, it is expected that Scranton will show vast improvement over Scranton’s last visit a few years back and play a splendid game.

On Monday the Colonels will travel to Bethlehem to end the season by battling the Greyhounds of Moravian College. Last year the Colonels won a 6-3 victory over Wilkes and are expected to provide the Colonels with a tough match again this year.

Jim Kilpatrick, who has coached tennis at Moravian since 1947, has a nucleus of five lettermen from the 1961 team that posted the 10-3 record. The five lettermen are expected to hold starting posts, with three other players named to the No. 1. Last year he paced the Greyhounds in nine victories and 13 matches in the league spot. He was named most valuable player in the NEAC last season and is a group of experienced players returning for the 1962 season.

Wilkes saw its season fag fall to a disappointing third place in the conference as they dropped a 6-4 decision to the Greyhounds. The Colonels
Ginzel Encourages Membership In Campus Theatrical Group

Barry Ginzel, president of Cue and Curtain for the past two years, fulfills the quotation from Shakespeare, “Strong reasons make strong actions.”

Barry’s strong reasons for his active participation in the college theater group are a desire to be in the production end of either television or the legitimate theater, and an interest in dramatic presentation, perhaps from high school experience.

Barry has never performed as an actor, either in his high school group, or in Curtain and Cue. According to Barry, most people interested in the theater make the mistake of not joining a theatrical group because they, “can’t act.”

Barring this from the act, all other facets help to create the illusion, the staging, makeup, lighting, and so forth.

Take for example, as Barry did, the production of Ibsen’s Enemy of the People. Work on this play started immediately after the One Acts presented in March. Theater members began working on scenery or “flats” as they are referred to in the theater. As soon as the hardest section of the script is ready, it is placed on the stage to help the actors become accustomed to it.

Soon the lighting people begin to strive the lights above and along the stage. They work with the color and placements of the lights, as the play moves through rehearsal. In the meantime, makeup, costume, and stage properties are being utilized as they fulfill their ending of the production.

This aspect of theater plays has involved Barry for the last eight years, as he is one of the members of the Assembly Committee since the end of his sophomore year. This committee is a whole plane any assembly that does not involve students or faculty members. Barry’s particular responsibility is making staging arrangements for every assembly program. In his experience on the Assembly Committee Barry has found, “It is difficult to get an assembly program that is both entertaining and educational.”

Barry commented on the Jazz Concert programs, “Fantastic idea, if you get the right performers, the right organizers, adequate support, and eliminate the word jazz.” This particular word has a stigma that is unfortunately not understood accurately by many people, and may not invoke the response that is needed for this type of event. It has to be of the type program that will appeal to a large group of people, not partially because of the finance involved.

Off campus Barry has served as stage manager and lighting technician for the Fine Arts Festa.

Students and Faculty Members Judging Auditions Throughout East

Mrs. Anne Liva, faculty member of the Wilkes College Music Department, has returned from her tour of the Opera Theatre and Piano Auditions, sponsored by the National Guild of Piano Teachers. Since April 8 she has been traveling in South Carolina, she left May 10 for North Carolina and will return May 26. On June 15 Mrs. Liva will open the new auditions at Metuchen, New Jersey. Upon her return in late June she will judge the competitive pianists of the 1956-57 of the New York Institute of Music in Brooklyn.

Mrs. Laura Trim is the Scranton Chair- man of the Piano Competition; a faculty member and addition to the faculty of the Pennsylania Music Teachers Association.

The National Guild offers many goals for the aspiring young pianist. In September it will sponsor the Van Cliburn International Piano Competition with a first prize of $10,000. This is the largest cash award ever offered in a concert competition.

In October the Guild offers $5,000, $3,000, $2,000 and $1,000 for the second, third, fourth, and fifth prizes.

The biennial Recording Festival of the Guild offers over $20,000 in cash prizes to young performers who perform in the National Auditions and receive gold medals. The $100 cash awards are presented to pianists who play each year a memorized program of at least ten pieces and maintain an excellent plus average for ten years.

A Wilkes College piano major will receive this award in June. Miss of The Nan Sal Guild of Piano Teachers is a member of the National Auditions and will receive the gold medal. They will perform the requirements of the College Junior Diploma.

Barbara Kozemchak, Goldstein and Tom Hryniaw will also play a Concerto Junior Program. Their routine will include Chopin’s Concerto No. I, Opus 11, the entire affair being performed by the Wilkes College Symphony Orchestra.

Each pianist must enter a fifteen piece program, which must top the major works of B-c through the Classic, Romantic and Modern periods. Each solo pianist will also play a concerto must also be performed.

The Piano Audition will involve technical and rhythmic phases, ear training and sight reading.

The adjudicator will be Stanley Snaza, Preparer of the Music Department at the University of Michigan, in the fifteenth year of the competition. All five pianists will compete in the National Recording Festival in the Fall. They are students of Anne Liva.
