Instructor and Student Take Part in JCC Play, ‘Middle of the Night’

Marc Hirshman, senior English major, and Joseph Salzburg, Berks, can-advisor, have important roles in the Jewish Community Center's forthcoming production of Middle of the Night.

This contemporary drama by Paddy Chayefsky, which revolves around the plight of a middle-aged man in love with a young girl, is in the direction of Mr. Salzburg while Marc portrays the girl's Frank Eismann and Arlene Rotstein play the leading roles in this modern "comedy" (as Chayefsky calls it) which will be presented tomorrow and Saturday nights at 8:30 p.m. and Monday and Tuesday at 9:10 p.m. in Weiss Auditorium of the Center.

Harris Tobias, another undergraduate, appeared in the JCC's first production, The Tenth Man, also by Chayefsky.

According to Salzburg, who is also an instructor in mathematics at the College, possibilities for the next production, to be staged in May, are now being reviewed.

Choruses to Compete

Following extensive rehearsals, the Women's Chorus and the Men's Chorus will combine to appear in the "Eisteddfod," an annual music competition this year scheduled for the whole of the College, possibilities for the next production, to be staged in May, are now being reviewed.

The Junior Class, which is sponsoring the annual event, has invited students from Retribut - view, a high school in the area, to treat two fifty-orange and from St. John's of Hillcrest; they lost to C. W. Fust.

David Levy placed second best performer in the entire tournament and was only three points away from being declared champion.

Charlotte Lord and Dick Bud

New York as coaches.

Annual Fund Campaign Reaches Quarter Mark; Students To Benefit

Contributions amounting to 25.1 per cent of the $100,000 goal of the Annual College Appeal for Funds have been reported as being received by Walter H. Mohr, Director of Development.

The purpose of the campaign, launched March 4, is to strengthen the services of the College.

Seventy per cent of the funds contributed will be used for scholarship aid. Over the years several thousand students have been able to gain an education at Wilkes because of scholarship assistance.

Last year 313 students received this aid, most of whom could not have attended college without it.

The remaining thirty per cent going toward the Graduate Program, will help expand the teach-ging and research staffs in chemistry, mathematics, and physics, and will further research projects now under way.

These projects include: (1) Basic research in the atomic structure of solids (The Aeronautical Research Laboratory of Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, recognizing the importance of studies of "internal friction," has awarded Dr. Daniel Detwiler a substantial grant for his study in the avian and reptilian research in Organic Synthesis. The Research Corporation has made a grant to support a study in this field.

Butler Men to Have History Lesson

The history of the campus buildings and the people who own them are sometimes lost in the files of an old cabinet or on the shelves of a library. Residents of Butler Hall, 113 South River Street, now have the opportunity to learn about the architectural aspects of their quarters on Thursday, March 21.

Major Bruce Payne will be pres-tent of the discussion. He will relate the story of Butler Hall, the building and its former residents. May 8th is the anniversary of the day in the history of the man who built the River Street dwelling. The men of Butler first became acquainted with Payne at its annual meeting last year.

Major Payne and his wife reside at 110 South River Street. Mrs.
Payne is also a Butler alumna.

Zebulon Butler, one of the first settlers of the town, was the father of Charles Butler, who in 1846 became known as "the founder" of Butler Hall.

ONE MAN'S REVOLT

Why Can't We Just Relax?

by barbara lore

"Americans are wasting their leisure time." These words lown- ing out of the black and white print of a popular periodical caught my eye, and I found myself saying to myself: "Bill, what are you doing here with this "stirring" pronouncement, since it is the cutting edge of the article, a noted psychologist, prescribed remedies for this evil by joining clubs, reading books, reading (since he didn't specify any- thing about the books, but only about the numbers of co- mics which would do), bowling, painting, swimming, or archery. To combat our "bourgeois' "fear of individuali- zation of mankind" pronounced the dean of the anthropology society "above all, keep busy.""

Keep busy — it's become almost a password of our times. Self-employment is in vogue, and while we are losing the time for evils ranging from juvenile delinquency to overwork, we are losing precision. Yet Al Capone and Boss Tweed were both very busy men. Are they to be set as our ideals? Society would have us believe that the only useful life is one filled with bustling activity. As a re- sult we see people playing hard and working hard, sometimes requir- ing a trip to Outer Mongolia or a week's time to recover from a so-called vacation.

Pressured by our peers we rush around at our daily work and then knock ourselves out at night with the Boy Scouts, Kiwanis, Chamber of Commerce, the Society for the Prevention of the Extinction of the American Buffalo, or any of the many other worthwhile clubs we are told is our duty and privilege to join. We are driven by the many churches sponsor extra-curricular activities such as ham radio, finger-painting, softball, a r c o r m u s, sewing lessons, and a myriad of other relaxing pastimes to keep their employees busy and well-adjusted.

But I question whether these activities are truly relaxing. I think we have been relaxing out of recreation.

I can't remember the last time I picked up a magazine urging me to relax — to lie out in the back yard in a hammock and just dream lazily or to take a walk in the woods and commune with nature. Just try either one of these re- creations and you'll soon find yourself dragged back to reality by one of your conscientious neighbors who just "must" do his own chores.

We run around in circles like socially oriented robots making all the right noises and motions and yet not really aware of what we are doing. It's about time we stepped off the merry-go-round and decided in what direction we want to go. All too often whirling leaves no time for soul- searching. We are not even aware of the future if man is not permitted time for contemplation.

The schism of our society would cease if it was told that those who are discouraging the future artists of our era try as I may, I can't see its future in terms of "activities." The potential Thoreau of our time will be dragged back from their "Walden" and embroiled in Chamber of Commerce and movies. The Boy Scout work more fitted to the potential Wardsworth will be lured away from his "Tintern Abbey" stasis by that old pledge of fairness to the sports field.

Beaded Tops in Fashion For Evening Creations; Vivid Color Contrasts

by MiMi Wilson

MLLE MAG College Board Memo

Evening creations for spring are pure fancy. If your choice is nuptial or formal in character, it’s best to proceed with caution if it’s beaded. The fitted top or overblouse may be slightly beaded or a little jacket may be edged with beading. Whatever the beading style note, it provides the final feminine touch.

One leading designer, Pierre Balmain, shows a ball gown in amber yellow shantung. The fitted top is beaded in two full length sheath skirt to the décolletage. Dan Werlie does his wool jersey ball gown in yellow and styles it with a gold medallion fur.

Crepe, predominantly in black, shows a simple dress in black with a beaded high neck and white. Silk and lace evening dresses retain their traditional popularity.

Woman Sports Enthusiast Combines Math Skills with Domestic Abilities

Combining an interest in sports, mathematics, and engineering with a talent for cooking and other domestic chores and "volun — Regina Rutte. "Fritz", as she was affectionately called by her classmates, is a senior math major from Dubuque, Penn.

Regina is an avid sports enthusiast. Being the spectator or the athlete brings her hours of inestimable enjoyment. "The field of sports has so much to offer anyone. Take the basketball court, for instance. Here a person can learn about himself, get interested in other sports, and put into society groups more easily than he could imagine." Among the sports in which Regina is interested are basketball, hockey, bowling and volleyball.

One of the extracurricular activities to which Regina devotes her time is the University of Engineering Club, varsity basketball, women’s basketball and intramural bowling and volleyball. She was made a co-captain of the basketball team this past season.

One of her greatest hopes is for the materialization of a women’s athletic organization. "The plans are in the beginning stages, and I’m sorry I won’t be here to see them progress."

Concerning the math department Regina states that "Mathematics. Theoretical knowledge should be introduced to students sooner. The textbooks which are in use now for math courses seem too early a year to be accomplishing this. In fact, I’ve noticed that the stress on the fact that ‘the library is well supplied with basic algebra and trigonometry books’ as though students should have more advanced math reference books. I think we should have math seminars so that math majors ‘can work on puzzles or riddles, discuss problems, and maybe we’ll work out with another student or business majors, math majors don’t have labs in which they can work together and better understand and become better acquainted with one an- other.’"

For as Regina plans to do graduate work at Penn State. After that she plans to work in industry. She would like to work with the programming staff of a computer department.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Writers Club

Dear Mrs. Editor:

Ronnele Barone’s pencil for "following through on any interest she develops" is most admirable. How well I remember the one day when a pregnant interest in biology as mentioned briefly in The Pulse. To help Ronelle develop her interest in biology so that life might be richer and more meaningful", I rolled from my bunk at three in the morning to join Ronelle at the lake where we observed the mating habits of some nocturnal gasteria, a real project. We walked from the lake to Black Hall dawn, all the while making notes on the activities of certain worm-catching birds. Between six and eight we studied the general zoology, from eight until ten we finished comparative anatomy and embryology. Ronelle was not exactly satisfied with the work in embryology because we had to time to study only prematurely forty-eight hour embryos. But before ten we finished general zoology and then tackled the history of bi- ology. Through the afternoon Ronelle mastered the operation of the Warburg apparatus, the kynograph, the Omark. Ronelle made imme-asurable drawings (one of our mis-takes).

Bacteriology was a bit of a blur because the bacteria breed so rapidly. By night I think we both were left with a finished zoology and all the hysteresis. It’s strange because I remember that Ronelle’s life was cumbering with richer science and more advanced than I expected. I was interested in biology was satisfied. Sadly I signed her change of school- slip and turned her over to Pro- fessor Colson. I can’t imagine what has taken him so long.

Wilkes-Barre Clinches 3rd Spot; Defeats Mercs in Last Home Game

Last weekend produced some very interesting results in the Eastern Basketball League. In a game at Allentown on Saturday night, the Allentown Jents whipped the league leading Camden Bullets, 129-117, to come within one half of game of the top spot. The Jents was high scorer, dumping in 38 points while five of his teammates also made double figures. Former Roane Joe Ellis also contributed generously to the Allentown cause by a half of a score by 64.1, but was outscored in the final two periods, 51-28 and 37-20, to drop the decision. The following night at Cam- den, the Bullets lost the return game, 123-117, and with it, the top spot in the league.

In the meantime, the Wilkes- Barre Barons clinched third place and a spot in the Eastern League playoffs by downing a hopeful Sun-bury team by a score of 129-113 at the West Allentown Armory in the Barons’ last home game of the sea- son.

Every member of the Barons’ squad reached double figures with the exception of Sherman White, White, with Leroy Wright who scored 10 of the Barons’ team, was busy keeping tabs on John Richter, a thorn in Wilkes-Barre’s side in the last four games. Richter was held to three points.

Bob Keller led the Barons in the scoring department with 23 points, while teammate put six dual meets, and 29 rebounds in Wilkes-Barre. The part of the playmaker was capably taken by Hal Schroeder who was responsible for setting two of the Barons’ tallies.

Baynard, of the Mercers, was the game’s leading scorer with 29 points, and three other Sunbury players hit double figures. Sun- bury’s loss to Williamsport on Saturday and their defeat by the Barons has dropped the Mercs to fifth place. Monday night the Barons travel to Sunbury for their final game of the regular sea- son.

With Camden faltering and the Barons on five, hopes are high for the local club in the playoffs.

1963 WILKES COLLEGE BEACON
Wilkes students are probably well aware of two of the functions of selling textiles — that of the Bookstore, with its nice little character, and the Bookstore, which sells University bookstore, with its nice little character, and the Bookstore. The first is an extension of the second, as the Bookstore is also the LOST AND FOUND DEPARTMENT of Wilkes College. Those who have lost money, keys, jewelry, and other articles are encouraged to visit the Bookstore, which is open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. The Bookstore is also the place to find the latest books and newspapers, as well as a variety of other items, including clothing, stationery, and gifts. The staff is friendly and helpful, and they are always willing to assist students in finding what they need. So if you're looking for something specific or just want to browse, the Bookstore is the place to go.

LOVE, WAR, POST-WAR
Are Themes of Books
Added to Library Shelf

In keeping with its policy of "reading for fun and relaxation," the library has added several new books to its collection. A novel entitled "Cienfuegos," by Celia Reilly, offers a unique perspective on love and life in the Cuban capital. The author draws on her own experiences in Cuba to create a vivid and compelling story. The novel explores themes of love, loss, and the complexities of life in a changing society. It is a must-read for anyone interested in Latin American literature.

Silver Opinions Worth Thousands in Awards; Contest Needs Closing

There are only two days left in Reed & Barton's Silver Opinion Scholarship Competition. The competition, in which Wilkes College has been selected to participate, is open to all undergraduate women on campus who can demonstrate a genuine interest in silverware design and production. The first prize is a $1,000 cash scholarship; Second Grand Award, $800; Third, a $250 scholarship; Fourth, Fifth, and Sixth Awards, $200 scholarships each; Seventh, Eighth, Ninth, and Tenth Awards, $100 each. In addition, there will be one $100 other awards consisting of sterling silver, chicken dishes, and a daily value of approximately $60 each. In the Silver Opinion Competition two designs of sterling and eight designs of both chintz and chintz damask will be included. The entry forms must be turned in by April 15. For complete details concerning the competition rules, see the April issue of "Silver" magazine.

BRACELET Sells Assortment of Sterling Silver

The Silver Opinions Competition judges are seeking help from students and faculty who may have ideas for winning designs. The judges are interested in seeing different styles of sterling silver, including antique patterns and modern designs. The judges are looking for both chintz and damask designs, as well as other styles that can be made into sterling silver. The judges are looking for ideas that are both innovative and practical, as well as ideas that can be mass-produced.

In the event that someone has items to add to this list he is urged to present it at the Communication Department so they can be returned more quickly to their owners.

Students have Complete Confidence in their way (i.e. a matter of mutual action and reciprocal).

Any faculty member who chooses to stay in an examination room after his hour has been put into action will really be asking for social pressure from both students and faculty, poor soul.

Does your discussion of an honor code appear to be centered around examinations? This is the least important aspect of being honorable.

Have you noticed who brought up that term cynical?

S.N.W.A.

(Name Withheld Again Again)

Dear Editor:

Some people on this campus believe that an honor system will work at Wilkes. However, one needs to be more specific about this statement. Are we talking about cards being handed in at a class meeting and then counting the cards to see how many people are in violation? Or are we talking about the meeting to see that the students at Wilkes are not morally ready for an honor system?
