Students Vote Today for Cinderella Who Will Reign at Next Week’s Ball

One girl’s “castle of dreams” will come true May 17 when Cinderella will be crowned at the seventeenth annual Cinderella Ball. She will be selected today by the voting now being held in the lobby of the cafeteria. All students are eligible to vote. Each student selects three names from eleven already chosen by a previous vote. The girl with the most votes is Cinderella.

Circle K Representatives Complete Arrangements For Annual Convention

Last Fall, a number of representatives from our Circle K Club attended a district organizational convention in Allentown. At that time, temporary district officers were elected, and bids were submitted for the spring convention site. The bid from the Wilkes club was accepted, and on May 10, 11 and 12 the convention will be held at the Hotel Sterling.

Representatives from twenty-five Circle K clubs throughout the state will be present at this first annual convention. Each club will be permitted to send two delegrates and two alternates, with the exception of the host club, which will be represented by approximately twenty members. In the election, however, only the two delegates will be permitted to vote.

The main purpose of this three-day convention will be to elect a new state governor, secretary, and treasurer; however, the lieutenant governor and the state representatives for the individual districts will also take an active part in the work of the convention office at this meeting.

Douglas Burch, junior member of our Circle K club, was elected chairman of the convention committee. Donald D. Smith, junior, was selected as secretary of the convention committee and the election procedures.

Arrangements can get under way Friday evening, when an electoral contest will be held. The topic for discussion will be “Education and Freedom.” Mike Landesman will represent the host club in this competition.

On Saturday morning, the first general session will take place, with Governor John E. Gallagher,𬭼 attending the state convention in Harrisburg. Mayor Slattery will be the keynote speaker on the convention. In the afternoon, various sessions will be held between the clubs represented, and the actual elections of the new officers will be held. From 9:30 to 12:30 Saturday, the Governor’s Ball will take place, with music for dancing being provided by Bobby Baird’s orchestra.

The convention will close Sunday morning with a general session strictly for newly elected officers.

Candidates are: Merle Bentisch, Marahviee Daw, Bonita Jenkins, Elaine Rosenbach, Jeanne Mathews, June Palm, Annie Palka, May Regulis, Lorraine Raine, and Rowena Simms.

Freedom.”

The convention will be held at the Hotel Sterling.

Representatives from twenty-five Circle K clubs throughout the state will be present at this first annual convention. Each club will be permitted to send two delegates and two alternates, with the exception of the host club, which will be represented by approximately twenty members. In the election, however, only the two delegates will be permitted to vote.

The main purpose of this three-day convention will be to elect a new state governor, secretary, and treasurer; however, the lieutenant governor and the state representatives for the individual districts will also take an active part in the work of the convention office at this meeting.

Douglas Burch, junior member of our Circle K club, was elected chairman of the convention committee. Donald D. Smith, junior, was selected as secretary of the convention committee and the election procedures.

Arrangements can get under way Friday evening, when an electoral contest will be held. The topic for discussion will be “Education and Freedom.” Mike Landesman will represent the host club in this competition.

On Saturday morning, the first general session will take place, with Governor John E. Gallagher,ugi attending the state convention in Harrisburg. Mayor Slattery will be the keynote speaker on the convention. In the afternoon, various sessions will be held between the clubs represented, and the actual elections of the new officers will be held. From 9:30 to 12:30 Saturday, the Governor’s Ball will take place, with music for dancing being provided by Bobby Baird’s orchestra.

The convention will close Sunday morning with a general session strictly for newly elected officers.

Candidates are: Merle Bentisch, Marahviee Daw, Bonita Jenkins, Elaine Rosenbach, Jeanne Mathews, June Palm, Annie Palka, May Regulis, Lorraine Raine, and Rowena Simms.

Winter has gone, and spring has made its initial appearance. For Mollie MacIntyre, Barbara Gallagher, and Mimi Wilson as they stand down at their earth-bound fellow students from their perch in the blossoming Japanese cherry tree outside the Commons. Miss MacIntyre, born in Korea last year, was a sophomore Sociology major; Miss Wilson from Dallas, is a Junior English major: Miss Gallagher, a senior English major, is from Houston. A haven for those who enjoy walking “the petunia-covered garden paths,” this area creates a Mollie MacIntyre is worry-free.

CAMPUS BLOSSOMS

Hampton Visitors Arrive To Complete Exchange

At Hampton

From their arrival Friday until their departure, the twelve students who visited Hampton Institute will have a very active time. They will bebusily with the activities planned for them. After a brief tour of the campus followed by dinner, they attended the Cotton Bowl, a dance sponsored by the sophomore class. Saturday morning a coffee break—fellowship hour—gave the Hampton students an opportunity to meet their guests and exchange news and views with them.

A meeting was held at which the president of the Institute spoke. Then they went to a picnic and boat outing at Emancipation Oak, an enormous live oak beneath which the Emancipation Proclamation was read to ex-slaves.

That night they attended a party honoring the independence day of Sierra Leone, one of the African nations.

Amidst these planned activities, the students of Wilkes socialized. Several evenings were added to their vocabulary. "Sack," they discovered, is the equivalent of "roommate," and "What is your classification?" is translated as, "What year are you in?" They compared their respective courses, food, college courses, future plans, and the like. Some new dances were learned.

On Sunday morning the visiting students were given the word that they could extend their stay. Many friendships had begun, and a number of new addresses were exchanged. The twelve students said that they were especially impressed by the warmth and friendliness demonstrated by their hosts. "A weekend to be remembered was the general feeling.

Dorms Host Hampton At ‘Mayhem’ Tonight

The visiting students from Hampton Institute who will be the guests of honor at the ‘Mayhem’ party tonight. The party, sponsored by Weiss and Naples in the lounge, will have a full capacity. The grill will be set up, and refreshments will be served. Music will be provided by the Arcadians.

The party will give the College students an opportunity to meet the visitors from Hampton on an informal, friendly basis. All students are invited to attend.

Student Artists Plan To Display Techniques In Annual Spring Fair

If the art students have seemed little bit busy recently, this may explain it. The art senior class has occupied lately, this is not only because of spring fever, but because they have been preparing for the annual Art Fair. This year the Fair will be held Friday, May 16 and 17, a week earlier than usual. Last year it conflicted with the Film Arts Festival. This year the response was not as great as in previous years because of the change in the date. The students will have an opportunity to display their work in their work in both the Fair and the Fiesta.

As usual, students will give actual demonstrations of their work to give the impression of work done by an experienced artist. Students dressed in the equivalent of "roommate," and "What year are you in?" They compared their respective courses, food, college courses, future plans, and the like. Some new dances were learned.

On Sunday morning the visiting students were given the word that they could extend their stay. Many friendships had begun, and a number of new addresses were exchanged. The twelve students said that they were especially impressed by the warmth and friendliness demonstrated by their hosts. "A weekend to be remembered was the general feeling.

Dorms Host Hampton At ‘Mayhem’ Tonight

The visiting students from Hampton Institute who will be the guests of honor at the ‘Mayhem’ party tonight. The party, sponsored by Weiss and Naples in the lounge, will have a full capacity. The grill will be set up, and refreshments will be served. Music will be provided by the Arcadians.

The party will give the College students an opportunity to meet the visitors from Hampton on an informal, friendly basis. All students are invited to attend.

Student Artists Plan To Display Techniques In Annual Spring Fair

If the art students have seemed little bit busy recently, this may explain it. The art senior class has occupied lately, this is not only because of spring fever, but because they have been preparing for the annual Art Fair. This year the Fair will be held Friday, May 16 and 17, a week earlier than usual. Last year it conflicted with the Film Arts Festival. This year the response was not as great as in previous years because of the change in the date. The students will have an opportunity to display their work in their work in both the Fair and the Fiesta.

As usual, students will give actual demonstrations of their work to give the impression of work done by an experienced artist. Students dressed in the equivalent of "roommate," and "What year are you in?" They compared their respective courses, food, college courses, future plans, and the like. Some new dances were learned.

On Sunday morning the visiting students were given the word that they could extend their stay. Many friendships had begun, and a number of new addresses were exchanged. The twelve students said that they were especially impressed by the warmth and friendliness demonstrated by their hosts. "A weekend to be remembered was the general feeling.

Sorority Honors Senior Members at Banquet

Graduating members of TDR will be honored at the annual Senior Banquet on Wednesday, May 10. The sorority has chosen the Caruso Restaurant as the scene of this year’s dinner which will commence at 7:45 p.m. Participation of a TDR charm to each sorority graduate will highlight the affair. Another feature of the evening will be the installation of next year’s officers, each of whom will receive a red rose.

The banquet is open to all TDR members. Underclassmen may obtain dinner tickets for $2.00. Sally Skeens, TDR secretary, has announced that the menu will include chicken, ham steak, and omelet breakfast. Monica Anderson, TDR SGA president, will plan to attend the banquet menu. The members of the SGA will follow the musical presentation, at which time parents will have the opportunity to meet members of the family and sorority leaders.

Band to Entertain Parents

Band members will present their annual concert Sunday afternoon at 3 in the gymnasium. A new program is scheduled, and the faculty and the faculty a dormitory’s. The affair is open to the public without charge. Michael Landesman is in charge of refreshments: Edward Rose, invitations; Jeffrey Baschel, arrangements; and Joe Lipczynski, public relations. Assistant Dean of Men is the faculty resident.

Society Presents Concert

The public is invited to attend the annual Spring Society Concert at the Ancient City Temple in Wilkes-Barre on May 10th. This program, conducted by Mr. Robert Lovett, will begin at 8:30 p.m. Admission for students is 75 cents. The Girls’ Chorus and the College Chorus will perform. On Thursday, May 9th, the week before the concert, Mr. Lovett will conduct the orchestra as the audience of members will gather in the gymnasium.
Today is campus-wide election day. All classes, except the senior class who will vote only for Cinderella, will select those class members who will hold executive offices next year. Most seniors have circulated fliers and posters to solicit votes. Don't vote for the best poster, vote for the best candidate.

What would we do without the Cinderella Ball? The campus has at least one such activity in which many participate. Select the author, others decorate; most vote for a candidate; many attend the Ball. For a few weeks, then, the campus seems to work toward a common goal — a successful Cinderella Ball.

One of the eleven candidates will be the perfect Cinderella: active, intelligent, attractive, personable. Vote for her today.

Today's Voting is Most Important

An emotional experience is one of the most difficult experiences to explain. It can be best understood by one who has shared a similar experience. Friendship and understanding are qualities often experienced on an emotional level, and are, therefore, not readily to explanation.

The Hampton-Wilkes exchange program which enables both colleges to share not only ideas but also friendship is just such an emotional-experience vehicle. Through the program forum, students meet and exchange ideas. Moreover, they solidify friendship through understanding.

The campus once again heartily welcomes its Hampton guests inviting them to share in its life for a weekend.

---

The Apothecary Onlooker

A poem of 'The Corner'

Jack Hardie

Oblong Cheese

Had eve not stripped that apple

We'd still have our regrets,

For soldiers would but go to war

In 'eg-leaf' and 'prune' prose.

—Gabriel R.

(Name withheld)

A Lever: Harassed to Bias

Once I led a 'lily-white' life.

Once, before

You (cheek) ran, dripping, from

The growth of your wine glass toes

(lack of any thought in prose).

Are shattered now, beyond repair.

As this poem's divine despair.

Lilac. Jack Horn

Our 'Apathy' has been applauded,

Our audience seems dead and dumb;

The way a kid chews bubble gum.

Our 'looking-on' has not been foil-

Our bubble gum is seldom swallowed.

—Osten B. Schroeder

For the past few weeks the 'Apathetian staff main office has been deluged with inquiring mail as to what has happened to our column,

and we have no idea where we stand.

We are going to try in the future to x-wax whimsically poetic,

so it will appear upon the page

(tongue and gums in cheek). As an institution, 'The Apothecary Onlooker' apologizes for Olsen, our literary staff; but must, point out that his efforts are null and void, as the result of the total campus literary output.

Everyone laughed with Mr. Guton's reading of 'The Dentist' at assembly, yet students have been urged to read 'The Beanons' in its totally with the facial expressions of funeral orators, whereas 'The Beanons' is the most amusing of campus publications.

We refer not so much to the dedicated ranks of our newspaper's eager editors as to the generally illiterate poster advertisers, the

'scootch-tape' construction of fashion and living, and the home-articulate, and to the unfortunate quality of much of the submitted poetry.

The Beanons does not stand in this inferiority; an approximate fifty per cent of student work submitted was rejected, an optimistic twenty per cent of what remained was of an acceptable quality, and cafeterias

'flyers' and bulletin board posters constitute the even lesser level of expression. Compounding the fenomenal, the romantic Holmes of an almost 'Suarey' quality chosen for dances and social affairs (as 'Castle of Rhymes', 'Paradise for Birds', and the like) fall directly into the same category. The author of 'The Dentist' himself would wonder as to how so many obviously talented students are able to found a printed and widely read book on a column.

Is this what they mean by higher education? the little fence of Puritan Hall?

The general student body should be acquainted with the fact that both Manuscript and The Beanons operate as independent periodicals with corresponding periodicities in a paltry group of schools, and that, with the views of a contributing author are most definitely his own, the ap-

The Beanons staff is capable of more prose as seen in last week's issue) who,

this, however, does not excuse a word of the inarticulate composition published on campus.

At present, the Beanons staff is be much wailing and gnashing of student teeth as to the level of achievement required to the Freshman Composition courses; the faculty's editor is very pleased that students, when they have the gift of writing, do not need to be forced to be better; indeed, it is sometimes better to end writing when they are able to write be forced to.

---

NEWS and VIEWS

THE FAR-OFF RIGHT, PART III

by Doug Bennington

lists, on the radical-right present an immediate, full-blown threat to American democracy, or is it merely a temporary, noisy protest against the social, political, and economic changes that have altered American society during the past thirty years? Does the radical-right have the power now or in the future to dismantle the "Welfare State," or turn the historical clock back fifty years? A complete answer to these questions requires many pages; a partial list of the implications of the far-right is offered here.

Concerning political power, thus far none of the radical-right movements — despite their grandios plans for saving the nation — have had any practical prospects of winning the Presidency, of taking over even national party (though the Republican party is faced with extensive rightist activities, especially in party finances), or of having their fantastic policies enacted into law. Commentators on the far-right assume that the American tradition of moderation, compromising politics, and the influence of responsible groups will prevent the radical-right from attaining national power.

However, this may be too comfortable a reassurance as one commentator (Alan Westin, Harpers, April 30, 1963) has said, the radical-right today presents the same type of threat to democratic processes and institutions that the radical-left presented in the "thirties" and "forties." The far-right threatens the freedom of choice and action of any national administration that attempts to formulate and carry out realistic anti-Communist programs in the difficult, grey areas of twentieth century politics; it threatens to confuse or confust homes-debate on sensitive, vital issues; it threatens the reputation and integrity of groups and organizations; it seeks to penetrate and control (as the Communists did in the past).

The presence of the far-right in America cannot be viewed with yawns by conservatives, nor could those liberals who might see an John Birch lurking behind every conservative opinion. American democracy will continue to function despite the radical-right attacks on the establishment and conservative institutions. The reasonable assumptions that the radical-right will not be able to achieve its goals (whether in the political, economic, education, business, politics, religion — fail or fear to challenge the "rampaging right," stormy days lie ahead for many communities.

American democracy and its values are threatened by the far right's attacks and fanatics of the contemporary far-right, with their illusions, fixed on the past, cast out of society with a sufficient amount of intellectual homework and refusal to panic by democratic citizens, this democracy will live long after the far-right fades into the shadows from which it came.

---
The tennis team upset their season record to 3 wins and 1 loss, with a 6-3 victory over King's College and a 9-0 victory over Lebanon Valley College. Captain William Klein, Gary Einhorn, Gary Frank, and Bill Douglas won all their doubles, Austin and Einhorn, and Douglas and Frank.

A replica of the Moorehead Patterson Award is presented to Ted Akin, a sophomore majoring in electrical engineering. Akin topped three starters, finalists from an original field of more than 11,000, in winning the singles and all events championship. The tournament is sponsored annually by AMF, the American Bowling Congress and the Association of College Unions.

A 19 year old Texas southpaw turned the best over-all performance in the 1963 National Intercollegiate Bowling Championship. Jerry A. Rapp of the University of Texas, bowled the all events crown and the coveted Moorehead Patterson Award that is given to the low handicap man.

Included in the singles title with the second highest handicap was Ted Akin, a sophomore majoring in electrical engineering. Akin topped three starters, finalists from an original field of more than 11,000 students representing 160 campuses, bowled in the tournament hosts in Buffalo, N.Y.

Buffalo is the site of the 58th Annual American Bowling Congress Tournament, equipped by AMF. The college tournament is sponsored annually by AMF, the American Bowling Congress and the Association of College Unions.

In winning the all events crow, Akin also captured the singles title with the second highest handicap. Akin taped the record in the 1963 tournament. He hit games of 210-214-212 for a 636 series.

Akin's 606 was 21 pins less than the record 677 series by James Anderson, a sophomore at Washington University, in the team event. Anderson and his teammates dominated the tournament's all-time high game, 259.

All the bowlers in the 1963 National Intercollegiate Bowling Tournament played in Detroit in the ABC Classic Division.

Anderson and Hanson, runners-up for the all events title, were members of the Region 7 team, which included 1286 team, which is the second best over-all team in all ABC tournament play up to April 9 of this year.

All records of previous ACU tournaments were shattered by the 95 finalists in the 1963 championships. Most impressive was the 2390 series bowled by Harold Johnson of the University of Southern Mississippi in the 7-man, 12-game competition.

Included was a 1246 team, which is the second best over-all team in all ABC tournament play up to April 9 of this year. All records of previous ACU tournaments were shattered by the 55 finalists in the 1963 championships. Most impressive was the 2390 series bowled by Harold Johnson of the University of Southern Mississippi in the 7-man, 12-game competition.

Akin received a replica of the Moorehead Patterson Award from Bob George, Chairman of the AMF Board of Directors. Akin is the first non-college bowler to win the tournament this year. Akin is a sophomore majoring in electrical engineering. Akin topped three starters, finalists from an original field of more than 11,000 students representing 160 campuses, bowled in the tournament hosts in Buffalo, N.Y.

The 1963 tournament was the climax after four months of competition by more than 11,000 students from colleges and universities in the United States and Canada who aimed at one of the 55 final slots in the Tournament of Champions, a quarter of a million games were played, 258,000 in the regional and national playoffs.

Akin received a replica of the Moorehead Patterson Award from Bob George, Chairman of the AMF Board of Directors. Akin is the first non-college bowler to win the tournament this year. Akin is a sophomore majoring in electrical engineering. Akin topped three starters, finalists from an original field of more than 11,000 students representing 160 campuses, bowled in the tournament hosts in Buffalo, N.Y.

Akin received a replica of the Moorehead Patterson Award from Bob George, Chairman of the AMF Board of Directors. Akin is the first non-college bowler to win the tournament this year. Akin is a sophomore majoring in electrical engineering. Akin topped three starters, finalists from an original field of more than 11,000 students representing 160 campuses, bowled in the tournament hosts in Buffalo, N.Y.

Akin received a replica of the Moorehead Patterson Award from Bob George, Chairman of the AMF Board of Directors. Akin is the first non-college bowler to win the tournament this year. Akin is a sophomore majoring in electrical engineering. Akin topped three starters, finalists from an original field of more than 11,000 students representing 160 campuses, bowled in the tournament hosts in Buffalo, N.Y.

Akin received a replica of the Moorehead Patterson Award from Bob George, Chairman of the AMF Board of Directors. Akin is the first non-college bowler to win the tournament this year. Akin is a sophomore majoring in electrical engineering. Akin topped three starters, finalists from an original field of more than 11,000 students representing 160 campuses, bowled in the tournament hosts in Buffalo, N.Y.

Akin received a replica of the Moorehead Patterson Award from Bob George, Chairman of the AMF Board of Directors. Akin is the first non-college bowler to win the tournament this year. Akin is a sophomore majoring in electrical engineering. Akin topped three starters, finalists from an original field of more than 11,000 students representing 160 campuses, bowled in the tournament hosts in Buffalo, N.Y.

Akin received a replica of the Moorehead Patterson Award from Bob George, Chairman of the AMF Board of Directors. Akin is the first non-college bowler to win the tournament this year. Akin is a sophomore majoring in electrical engineering. Akin topped three starters, finalists from an original field of more than 11,000 students representing 160 campuses, bowled in the tournament hosts in Buffalo, N.Y.

Akin received a replica of the Moorehead Patterson Award from Bob George, Chairman of the AMF Board of Directors. Akin is the first non-college bowler to win the tournament this year. Akin is a sophomore majoring in electrical engineering. Akin topped three starters, finalists from an original field of more than 11,000 students representing 160 campuses, bowled in the tournament hosts in Buffalo, N.Y.

Akin received a replica of the Moorehead Patterson Award from Bob George, Chairman of the AMF Board of Directors. Akin is the first non-college bowler to win the tournament this year. Akin is a sophomore majoring in electrical engineering. Akin topped three starters, finalists from an original field of more than 11,000 students representing 160 campuses, bowled in the tournament hosts in Buffalo, N.Y.

Akin received a replica of the Moorehead Patterson Award from Bob George, Chairman of the AMF Board of Directors. Akin is the first non-college bowler to win the tournament this year. Akin is a sophomore majoring in electrical engineering. Akin topped three starters, finalists from an original field of more than 11,000 students representing 160 campuses, bowled in the tournament hosts in Buffalo, N.Y.

Akin received a replica of the Moorehead Patterson Award from Bob George, Chairman of the AMF Board of Directors. Akin is the first non-college bowler to win the tournament this year. Akin is a sophomore majoring in electrical engineering. Akin topped three starters, finalists from an original field of more than 11,000 students representing 160 campuses, bowled in the tournament hosts in Buffalo, N.Y.

Akin received a replica of the Moorehead Patterson Award from Bob George, Chairman of the AMF Board of Directors. Akin is the first non-college bowler to win the tournament this year. Akin is a sophomore majoring in electrical engineering. Akin topped three starters, finalists from an original field of more than 11,000 students representing 160 campuses, bowled in the tournament hosts in Buffalo, N.Y.

Akin received a replica of the Moorehead Patterson Award from Bob George, Chairman of the AMF Board of Directors. Akin is the first non-college bowler to win the tournament this year. Akin is a sophomore majoring in electrical engineering. Akin topped three starters, finalists from an original field of more than 11,000 students representing 160 campuses, bowled in the tournament hosts in Buffalo, N.Y.

Akin received a replica of the Moorehead Patterson Award from Bob George, Chairman of the AMF Board of Directors. Akin is the first non-college bowler to win the tournament this year. Akin is a sophomore majoring in electrical engineering. Akin topped three starters, finalists from an original field of more than 11,000 students representing 160 campuses, bowled in the tournament hosts in Buffalo, N.Y.

Akin received a replica of the Moorehead Patterson Award from Bob George, Chairman of the AMF Board of Directors. Akin is the first non-college bowler to win the tournament this year. Akin is a sophomore majoring in electrical engineering. Akin topped three starters, finalists from an original field of more than 11,000 students representing 160 campuses, bowled in the tournament hosts in Buffalo, N.Y.

Akin received a replica of the Moorehead Patterson Award from Bob George, Chairman of the AMF Board of Directors. Akin is the first non-college bowler to win the tournament this year. Akin is a sophomore majoring in electrical engineering. Akin topped three starters, finalists from an original field of more than 11,000 students representing 160 campuses, bowled in the tournament hosts in Buffalo, N.Y.

Akin received a replica of the Moorehead Patterson Award from Bob George, Chairman of the AMF Board of Directors. Akin is the first non-college bowler to win the tournament this year. Akin is a sophomore majoring in electrical engineering. Akin topped three starters, finalists from an original field of more than 11,000 students representing 160 campuses, bowled in the tournament hosts in Buffalo, N.Y.

Akin received a replica of the Moorehead Patterson Award from Bob George, Chairman of the AMF Board of Directors. Akin is the first non-college bowler to win the tournament this year. Akin is a sophomore majoring in electrical engineering. Akin topped three starters, finalists from an original field of more than 11,000 students representing 160 campuses, bowled in the tournament hosts in Buffalo, N.Y.
POLITICAL SCENE

by Vince Mc Hale

The present Pennsylvania Constitution is being amended with such dispatch that for the State, became effective on January 1, 1974. The framers of our present Constitution most likely hoped to prevent abuses in government, and curbing; but in doing so, it appears as if they saddled the State with a fundamental document that carries with it strict limits and governs on all occasions. It is now regarded as being out of date and a handicap to all our citizens. It is impossible to develop within a single generation after its adoption. Almost 90 years have passed since it was adopted and is needed. Its inadequacies have become "notorious" and have serious consequences to our State, notably within the last 60 years. Since 1901, every amendment has been proposed to make the Constitution more applicable to the needs of today. The voters saw fit to accept only 60 of these proposals. The end result — a basic law more modified and less expensive than ever.

Curiously, the present controversy is merely a need for revision, but the means of getting about it. The Committee for State Constitutional Revision Hands from on general revision, a complete restatement, and a new document. Many of those of the legal profession and several other interested groups endorse revision as the best means of effecting the change. Whether the two methods is the better, of course, is difficult to decide, both have their advantages and disadvantages. While the fate of separate amendment plans can be decided over a period of time by the electorate on an individual basis, the question of calling a Constitutional Convention is a "one-shot affair," being either accepted or rejected.

The most stubborn obstacle in either case has been voter apathy and lack of interest. As stated previously, the electorate has accepted only 60 of the 90 amendment proposals since 1901. On the other hand, it is a recognized fact that the voters have shown repeatedly that they have no desire for a Constitutional Convention. Five times (1891, 1921, 1924, 1935, and 1953) since 1891 the Legislature has submitted the question of calling a Constitutional Convention and has twice times the question has been defeated. In the lack of interest was most clearly dem- onstrated in 1953 when less than 11 percent of the registered voters took advantage of the opportunity to vote for a Constitutional Convention; despite the active support given to the proposal this time in power of and numerous of citizens' groups and organizations.

Perhaps only when each Penn- sylvania citizen and voter is made to realize that his own personal welfare and economic betterment depends upon a new State Constitution will the way be open to that group in power of and numerous of citizens' groups and organizations.

Although a new State Constitution is a desirable objective of any individual, it is the responsibility of all our citizens to vote. The Constitution was written by the people of the Commonwealth to be revised by the people of the Commonwealth. It is the duty of each individual to read it, analyze it, and decide if it is improved, or needs to be revised. We are all responsible for it to the same extent as those who wrote it. How many of us read the Constitution? How many of us study the changes which have been made? How many of us vote for or against amendments? Each of us should make a personal effort to become more informed about our Constitution.

Babbit' Discussed by Brominski at Forum; Popularity Explained

Sinclair Lewis' Babbit was discussed at the Forum this week by Dr. Brominski. The book, appeared around 1924, Babbit was introduced by the novel concerning a businessman who is an almost caricature of the mid-western society. Dreams of a fairy girl, seated Brominski, are Babbit who is a man until he is his rebel friend, Paul Riebling. Babbit was somewhat estranged from his step in the caste system of society when he becomes a profiteer. After the death of his rebel friend, Babbit turns his eyes to his son elopes, Babbit is at last happy because he hopes his son will be free of sin. Brominski then stated that the book was written before the Great Depression and a decade it was written because of the satiric handling of Babbit, the businessmen the book's permanent value, he said, is due to the development of Babbit, the individual.

Brominski feels that the satire of this character is rather ob- vious, but that Lewis is not as satiric as satire. Lewis is also obvious, which ruins the effect. Brominski then contended by say- ing that Babbit is not a satire, but attempts to cope with the prob- lems of the day. Dr. Brominski achieves this purpose in his por- trayal of Babbit. Because the reader is not familiar with the real Lewis, Babbit is a "real" individual, which makes it more difficult of handling of Babbit's mind. Brominski concluded by citing Mark Shear's book, Sinclair Lewis, An American Life, as "the bible on Sinclair Lewis." Harris Tobias is scheduled to speak next week.

Frost Entertained During Full Weekend of Activities

Ninety high school seniors spent part of the last weekend in a haze of telling tales and being glib with questions as a part of I.D.C. Fresh- men week activities. Part of the yearbook staff was brought to campus to give those students a preview of the academic and social life on the campus.

The whirlwind of activities began Monday with the showing of the English comedy "School for Scoundrels," followed by the Ac- counting Club's "Henry IV."

Saturday gave the visitors a view of the intellectual life on campus. They attended various seminars and discussions, before lunch, and discussions after lunch. The Accounting Club seminar or the Biology Club fair. According to I.D.C. representatives, this scien- tific fair was very successful in giving the incoming freshmen an idea of the opportunities and accomplishments of biology majors at the college.

For the final day, some other dawn students responded to the Business Club's "Afternoon of the Whirlwind." The Business Club's "Afternoon of the Whirlwind" was spent in discussions about the similarities of the "real" world of business and the "real" world of campus. For the final day, some other dawn students responded to the Business Club's "Afternoon of the Whirlwind." The Business Club's "Afternoon of the Whirlwind" was spent in discussions about the similarities of the "real" world of business and the "real" world of campus.

Student Government Concludes Plans for Annual Spring Weekend Affair

Student Government is making final preparations for the an- nual Spring Weekend to be held May 10, 12, and 13. Full days of activities are scheduled to offi- cially conclude the social ac- tivities of the 1963-64 school year.

On Friday evening, the Cinderella Ball will be held in the Parrish Hall parking lot. This Carnival will end May 10, 12, and 13. Full days of activities are scheduled to officially conclude the social ac- tivities of the 1963-64 school year.

On Friday evening, the Cinderella Ball will be held in the Parrish Hall parking lot. This Carnival will end one week before the commencement of the Sunday's activities. All these booths will be attended by the vari- ous classes and organizations on campus. These activities will include softball, volleyball, tennis, archery and canoeing. Refresh- ments will be served.

Music DEPT. NOTICE

All of those students who might be interested in helping to form a marching band are invited to attend an organizational meeting on May 6th in Gles Hall, Room 101A, at 4:00.

STUDENT SKETCH

Commerce & Finance Major Achieves Ideal Combination of Sports, Studies

Through the ages blondes and brunettes and brown and brownies seem to have acquired equal notoriety as impossible combina- tions. If these combinations are impossible then Charles Weiss, senior Commerce and Finance major, proves them wrong. "Chuck" is not only blonde and brassy but brawny too.

Present captain of the soccer team, Charles recently com- bined his six foot height and 165 pound weight with another statistic, a near Dean's List average, to cop the President's Award which is given annually to the highest cumulative academic average. He has played fullback on the College soccer team for three years, was co-captain of the team last year, and was a member of the All-East soccer team for the past two years.

Presently, Charles says, "I'm re- tired from everything really competi- tive other than my church bowling league." In this, his first year of bowling, he has attained a 160 average. "I'd like to pick that up considerably."

After graduation Charles intends to make golfing his sport. "Mr. Farrar says that everybody rich plays golf."

Because of his interest in busi- ness (and money), Charles worked in a supermarket and as a door-to-door salesman of encyclopedia and cookware. He was especially interested in the training period because of the "salesman" he was taught. But he doesn't like selling. "I always had the feeling that I was putting something over on the people."

Then Charles' spare time isn't engaged in sports, it's spent painting still lifes in the "midwest" and selling "amateur" capacity. He stated, "It gives me a feeling of accomplish- ment, but I don't think it pays off.

His future plans include "wed- dings bells in June" and a position as staff trainee with Western Electri- cal in Allentown.

KEARNEY'S BAR-B-CUE

Route 11
South Wyoming Avenue
Kingston, Penn.

Chuck Robbins
Ready to Serve You
With a Complete Line of Beverages, Jellies, Embroidery, Sporting Goods
28 North Main Street

IT PAYS TO PATRONIZE OUR ADVERTISERS

JORDAN'S
MEN'S FURNISHINGS
AND
HATS OF QUALITY
Est. 1871
The Narrows
Shopping Center

BOOK & CARD MART
10 S. MAIN ST. WILKES-BARRE, PA.
Phone 825-4787
Greeting Cards - Contemporary Cards
BOOKS - PAPERBACKS AND GIFTS
PAINT - PARTS - TOOLS

GRAHAM'S
96 South Main Street
Phone 925-5625

WILKES COLLEGE BOOKSTORE
Millie Gittins, Manager

PHILIPPINE NOTE: The world is like a sewer. You get from it what you put into it. — T. Lehrer

Wilkes College