Newcomer to Biology Department Reveals Varied Interests, Background

This article is the first of a series of articles, the purpose of which is to introduce the new faculty members of Wilkes College to the students. The article is written by one of the new professors from the science department.

He is Mr. Gerashenowitz, professor of biology.

Mr. Gerashenowitz, a New York native, received his B.S. degree in Chemistry at St. John's University in New York. He then pursued and later received his A.B. and M.S. degrees at Long Island University also in New York. Upon graduation, in various New York colleges, he is working for his Ph.D. at Columbia. His thesis is a biology Science for Non-Science.

Gerashenowitz does not limit his biological endeavors to the classroom, but rather derives great strength from being a member of several groups that are devoted to various aspects of biology.

Aside from the enjoyment he derives from lecturing, Mr. Gerashenowitz enjoys writing and reading about biology, while continuing to pursue the latest news in the field. He is an avid follower of developments in space medicine. Being a “man of science,” Mr. Gerashenowitz has also made a point of being involved in the purpose for serving in scientific, academic, and governmental groups of the American Rocket Society, a member of numerous scientific and mathematics study associations, and a consultant to Tech- Nology and Metrology, a representative of the National Institute of M.I.T. In addition to holding membership in all these organizations, he has also been honored by the distinguished honor of being listed in Who’s Who in American Education.

When asked his general opinion of teaching at Wilkes, Mr. Gerashenowitz replied, “I’m very happy that I have the opportunity to teach biology. It is my greatest pleasure coming from teaching biology one hundred. In the classroom, I have met some of the non-science majors at the freshman level and I have a great deal of pleasure to introduce to these people the world of the earth sciences. As a result of this relationship with these students, I hope to someday break the gap between the two cultures. This is the purpose of my endeavors.”

After being asked what his hopes for the future were, Mr. Gerashenowitz replied, “In the future, I hope I will be able to teach undergraduates a course in evolution, for this is an area of science which is of great interest.”

In closing, Mr. Gerashenowitz commented, “I am very happy that I have been asked to teach biology here at Wilkes, and I hope that the students will accept an invitation to visit me at my office at any time.”

School Spirit Arranges Bonfire, Car Caravan

Plans for Homecoming Weekend activities include a bonfire, to be held on the campus, on Saturday evening, October 13 at 8:30 p.m. The parade, led by a police escort, will proceed from the campus to the bonfire, scheduled for 7 p.m.

A pep rally will follow in which the cheerleaders, majorettes, and other line and band will participate. The bonfire will be lit by Mr. and Mrs. John Ralston, and the celebration will continue.

On Saturday, the car caravan will leave from the front of Butler Hall, at 11:00 a.m., and proceed to the football field for the game. A prize will be awarded for the best decorated car at the rally.

Plans were discussed at the meeting for providing cars for football game during the parade. The students were asked to volunteer for decorating of homecoming cars.

Solons Fine Sorority; Meeting Involves Plans For Newsletter, Seminar

Student Government representatives discussed a wide variety of issues at their second meeting, held Monday evening, October 7.

Various activities for the year were approved, with a fine being imposed on TFR for that organization's tardiness in submitting its minutes. The students agreed that the reason for this tardiness was due to the many successful affairs, as well as to serve as a warning to other organizations.

It was agreed that freshman elections would be held during the sixth or seventh week of this semester in order that the newly-elected officers might take over as quickly as possible.

The body discussed the possibilities of a central headquarters, a National Student Association, and the possibility of a newsletter for the student body.
Editorial:

Same Old Song and Dance

Good old "Friday night sport dances" have once again become the rage on campus. Tonight we have the United Fund dance which will probably draw a good crowd mainly because of student interest in the United Fund.

As a rule, though, the "usual" Friday night dances lack appeal. Clubs and organizations, looking for a scoop to blame for the apparent student disinterest in these dances, blame the Beacon. We don't give them effective coverage, they complain.

But we of the Beacon can pad stories only to a certain extent. When a publicity director comes tearing into the office late Tuesday evening with a "story" on the dance, the usual information goes over as in one: on occasion panic - always known three weeks in advance; two: a bomb - the name of which is never known for sure until the Wednesday immediately preceding the dancing; and three: a last naming of the three hundred committee members.

With all this information, then, the club would like at least front page coverage with banner headlines, a nice long story with full details, and a picture of the committee members if possible. This may sound a little fantastic, but it often is a fair appraisal of the situation.

May we make a suggestion? Since a club spends much time thinking of a "different" name for its dance, it should attempt to make the dance fit the name. Appropriate theme decorations - crepe paper isn't terribly expensive - and a good old-fashioneditution complete with gimmicks, and interest and promotion.

At the beginning of the semester clubs may have an appreciable attendance at their dances, but dance fans will soon grow tired of the "usual." Consequently clubs with later dates on the calendars will suffer especially.

The newspaper staff will help publicize all affairs on campus, but we need information. It's now entirely the responsibility of publicity directors to present affairs that will attract dance fan attention.

WILKES COLLEGE BEACON

Student Sketch

Senior Class President Reveals Philosophy of Life - "Keep Busy"

"Keep busy and really interested in your college." This is the advice that Brent O'Connell, senior, offered students who would give anyone who would like to know more than he knew. Brent has been the rule by which he has lived during his three years at Wilkes.

Being the president of his class for three years has made it very easy for Brent to give such advice and keeps him quite busy.

Brent decided he would not wait to graduate, however, to become busy. His busyness with sports, music, football, basketball, varsity debating, public speaking, and, not the least, his school work has been in those areas.

When he came to Wilkes in the fall of 1960, Brent had no idea where he was going. He did not go unnoticed by his classmates, however, and within the first semester Brent was elected to lead his class in his junior year.

It was just about this time that Brent met his future wife, Maryann Wilson, in the chemistry class he was taking which she was also taking. Maryann is the daughter of Mrs. Robert J. Wilson, dean of women at Wilkes, down the aisle of the Baptist Tabernacle Church. Now Brent and Maryann are engaged and hope to be married after Brent's graduation.

But Brent's class leading duties were not over with his junior year. He was asked to serve as chairman of the freshman orientation program, which would, he says, "helped me a lot."

This has extended presidency been a hard on him? On the contrary, the Janes says, "I have really enjoyed it. I learned to budget my time, plan my extracurricular activities, there is a void in a student's life. If I close my eyes for five o'clock on Wilkes, I would miss a great deal of what is going on.

Brent is an active student leader, his class officers, his, his classmates by name and a great many other people. Brent enjoys the friendship of a large number of people and has fun "trying to get something organized."

Considering other aspects of the college, Brent expressed a high regard for the "administration," and feels that it "is doing a fine job."

"You are really required to make sure you do not let something be a problem, but, it helps. It's hard to get people working wherever you go."

Brent believes that the college will be much improved with the addition of the fine arts building and that this building will benefit not only the college but also the entire community.

"The music department and the students in general are handicapped at a disadvantage. This building will provide them with proper facilities."

The president feels that there is a lot of "wasteful expenditure" of the community. It is his belief that Wilkes will do "a fine job" of serving the community.

Brent has teachers of quality for the most part, who will bend over backward to help you. To get a third course seems to be a problem, but, in the case of Brent he is hard to get people working wherever you go.

D. J. Solinger has stated, in an explosion of candor, that he lives in Westport with his dog.

And the American democratic solidarity between the European peoples sounds sensible, then the Common Market makes sense," So spoke Dr. Ceas Fritters in an interview fairly satisfactorily.

Born twenty miles from Amsterdam, Holland, Dr. Fritters, who presently teaches French and German at Wilkes, is a co-founder of the group which was launched in 1960. He left then to Paris to prepare his doctorate degree in general linguistics. In 1955, he earned his certificate, superior degree, of the Free University from the Sorbonne. From Paris, he then proceeded to attend courses at the Sorbonne and at College de France, and received in 1957 his doctoral degree from the University of Amsterdam. He came to the U.S. in 1960 and completed all courses required for an American Ph.D. in Linguistics.

He worked as a camp old during two summer vacations in the camps for displaced persons in Germany, and he practiced keeping order and handling difficult teenagers as duty master at the Apprentice Orphanage at Amsterdam.

In all modesty, Dr. Fritters states that his future plans consist of a move to Detroit where the presentation of a book on poetry.

And so ends the first cigarette.

Standing in the Dallas Hall library, somebody said that of Louise Armstrong, he is his favorite performer. Someone else thought, "Through these forms the true soul of each performer is felt. He judged correctly."

"It is his way," someone else said, "having a special passion for American songs, a great love for art, and modern art. The German Eil Noe is one of his favorite painters. As an artist, he is said to know how to do it, whereas in Europe he is told to do it..."

Dr. Fritters has also noted that "in New York with much to do, the American immigrant is so different from the European students that it is difficult to study and work, and in America, the student is much more trade; he is asked whether he can do it, and in Europe he is told to do it..."

Speaking of marriage, Dr. Fritters said that he married a New York to Dutch woman who holds a doctorate degree. Mrs. Fritters is currently employed in New York as a management consultant.

Discussing the present problem in the U.S., Dr. Fritters has stated that an European cannot fully understand why people with an acerbic intellectual has agreed upon a real democratic reality and human rights, which can defend this attitude toward... segregation.

Dr. Fritters, the dedicated educator, who said, that the deciding factor in choosing his vocation was his keen interest in people as individuals. One need only watch him light a match, for his face, at first blank, becomes instantly bright forward, he waves his arm with enthusiasm, and he forthrightly says, "There is no other language that expresses what I feel." He searches for words, and when he finds some, he uses them."
