

SG Passes Popular Election Amendment AMENDMENT DEBATED AT ICG MEETING STUDENTS WILL NOW DECIDE FATE OF PRESIDENTIAL AMENDMENT

by Barbara Simms

At a recent ICG meeting, a debate was held on a proposed amendment to the Student Government constitution. If this amendment is passed, the President of the Student Government will be chosen by the student body, rather than by the Student Government representatives, as he is now. Dick Burns, President of Student Government, and Jeff Gallet, member of the Court of Appeals, argued that the President should be popularly elected. They were opposed by Rich Shemo, Chairman of the Student Government Constitution Committee, and Fred Smithson, parliamentarian of Student Government and chairman of the Court of Appeals.

Shemo opened the debate with the assertion that the students are not well enough versed on the abilities of each of the members to choose the President from among them, and for this reason, the choice heretofore has been left to the members themselves. He stated that since the student body elects its representatives, it gives a vote of confidence to them to choose their leader. He also pointed out some dangers of popular election. It might be reduced to a mere popularity contest. It might lead to bloc voting, in which a large group of students might get together and vote for a candidate for no better reason than that he is a member of their class. In an election where there is a lack of interest, a mediocre candidate might gain a victory through a small group voting for him.

Maturity Involved

Gallet opened the affirmative argument by stating that the question is not whether a small or a large group votes, it is whether a student is mature enough and capable enough to choose his own leader. He said that because college students are more intelligent than average people, they are less likely to vote for a candidate for poor reasons. Under the proposed amendment, he continued, the nominations would have to come from the Student Government members; therefore, the candidates would all be capable. He said, "There is little doubt in my mind that the present system of electing the Student Government President is objectionable and unacceptable." There is politicking within a small group, and although we have been lucky in getting good leaders so far, this does not always have to be the case. As far as the students not being aware of the qualifications of the members, he claimed it to be a poor argument. The purpose of the campaign in the general election is to acquaint the voters with the candidates' achievements.

Negative Argument

Smithson began his arguments by stating that in a campaign a candidate can give his qualifications by listing the offices he has held and the committees he has been on, but only the members of the Student Government know whether he worked at these jobs or not, or whether he would make a good leader. He reasoned that the analogy between the relation of the President of Student Government to the members and the President of the United States to the Congress is a weak one. In Student Government, the relationship is closer and is only developed by allowing the members to choose their own leaders. A popular election might create animosities by the fact that the members might not want to follow that particular leader.

Burns closed the affirmative argument with the points that an elected candidate would work harder and better to make the students notice him, that he would have to take stands on controversial issues. These actions lead to growth. The popular election would give the students a chance to show their material. As for animosities arising, he answered that in the present system, the group could be split by a 7-5 vote, that it is up to the President to mold the group into an efficient organization.

★ NOTICE ★

IDC President, George Evancho, has requested that students keep the Student Union, clean, or it will have to be closed.

by Rich Kramer

If current legislation is approved by a plebiscite of the student body, the next President of the Wilkes College Student Government will be elected by popular ballot. This resolution was the outcome of debate at the regular meeting of Student Government on Monday afternoon. The attempt to alter the constitution of the Wilkes College student body is the first tangible result in a series of proposals pending action by Student Government for some time.

A long-standing topic of debate in student government circles is the election of a Student Government representative to replace the newly chosen President of that group. Since the President is elected in the spring, several Student Government members felt that the replacement representative should also be elected at that time to maintain the membership in the organization at full force and to give the new member time to become acclimated to his new responsibilities. Many members, however, felt that the present custom of electing this replacement representative within the first three weeks of the subsequent fall semester would enable prospective candidates for the position to raise their academic averages in order to qualify. Since Student Government could not reach a decision on this matter, its presentation to the student body for their approval may be delayed indefinitely.

Below is a partial text of the proposed changes in the constitution of the Wilkes College student body. These amendments, in their final form as passed by Student Government, will be presented for the approval of the entire student body.

ARTICLE 3, SECTION 1, PARAGRAPH 2. Upon the election of the President of the Student Government, the class which he represents shall thereupon be entitled to an additional representative who shall be chosen by a special election as stated in Article 4, Section 3.

ARTICLE 5, SECTION 2. The newly elected Student Government members shall meet within one week after their election to nominate from within their group candidates for the Student Government Presidency.

ARTICLE 5, SECTION 4. Nomination and election of the vice-president, treasurer, and secretary of Student Government shall be by the newly elected Student Government members from within their group at the last meeting of the spring semester. To be elected, a candidate must receive a plurality of the votes cast. All officers-elect shall take office immediately after all elected offices are filled. Their normal terms of office shall continue for the duration of the Student Government's term in office.

ARTICLE 7, SECTION 3, PARAGRAPH 1, SUB-SECTION (a) The appellant shall file with the Chairman of the Court a written summary, as determined from the minutes of past Student Government meetings, containing the argumentation and evidence presented by him. No new evidence shall be adduced at this time. The Student Government, in turn, shall also file a written summary on the same case, listing the reasons for its decision and including the minutes of the meeting(s) at which the question was argued.

ARTICLE 7, SECTION 3, PARAGRAPH 3. The Student Government may override the Court's decision if a three-fourths vote of the Government's membership is obtained in favor of such action. If not, the decision as rendered by the Court of Appeals will be final.

ARTICLE 9, SECTION 1, PARAGRAPH 4. Student Government meetings shall be open to members of the student body unless otherwise determined by the Student Government membership. Members of the student body attending meetings will be without voice until recognized by the president.

SMOKING SURVEY

Queens Do It, Pioneers Do It, Indians Do It, Mammy Yokum Does It

Have Wilkes students seriously heeded the recent reports linking lung cancer and other diseases to cigarette smoking? Are the students going to quit smoking completely? When presented with this question, none of the students interviewed in our Beacon survey answered affirmatively. Most are cutting down, or would like to cut down, on their smoking, while the rest are still smoking the same amount of cigarettes.

Dian Schoenfeld: "I cut down from a pack a day to about three cigarettes a day. The same thing will happen in the United States as it did in England. The people will go back to smoking as many or more than they did before."

Rosemary Baiera: "I am smoking as much as I did before; I have no will power to stop. If I stop smoking, I'd probably bite my nails. I enjoy it, and I feel healthy."

Sandra Dale: "I try to stay away from smoking, because I am afraid of cancer."

David Foglietta: "I know cancer is serious, but I still haven't cut down on smoking."

Sheldon Guss: "I'll smoke anything I don't care if I die."

Joyce Callahan: "I tried to cut down but every time I see my friends light a cigarette I felt as if I need one."

Donald Powell: "I will cut down, but I won't stop completely."

Mary Lou Snee: "I enjoy smoking too much to quit."

Dr. Bliss: "By smoking, I am recognizing the inevitable."

Pete Palmere: "I must have a reason to quit. To me the advice of the committee is not a valid reason, even though their findings might be true."

Sara Perugino: "The pioneers smoked, famous queens smoked, the Indians smoked, Mammy Yokum smokes, and they all lived a full, rich life."

Senor Valero: "I began smoking (American cigarettes) at the age of 25 when I was in the military service. After coming to America, I doubled my smoking — probably in accordance with the fast-moving pace of society."

Barbara Collins: "I know I'll get cancer with my luck. I'll stop if I get poor and can't afford it. If my mother stops, I'll stop; she'll make me. She's been smoking for 25 years, and I don't think she'll stop right away. I got so nervous when I heard the reports that I smoked more; my mother and I bought a carton."

Dave Kennedy: "I do not wish to make a statement because my parents don't know I smoke."

CCUN Represents Finland In Assembly

by Marshall Evans

Members of Wilkes' CCUN are attending the National Model General Assembly being held in New York this weekend. Colleges from all over the United States send representatives to this conference each year to take part in a model assembly. Each school represents one country. Its representatives consider and debate the same problems that face the actual General Assembly. The initial meeting will take place in the General Assembly of the United Nations, while other meetings take place at the Commodore Hotel. During the conference, students attending will be addressed by officials of the United Nations.

Wilkes' CCUN delegates will be representing Finland, and, as such, will visit and be briefed by members of the Finnish delegation before they attend the assembly. They will be advised as to the Finnish stand on issues, and the delegates will then vote accordingly when resolutions are drafted. Members of Wilkes' CCUN attending will be Alan Krieger, Jim Jenkins, Pauline Homko, Carol Mayer, Don Ungemah, Jeff Roberts, and Dr. Bronis Salsan, advisor to the group.

LMC Committee Solves Disputes

by Ruth Partilla

Due to the high unemployment rate caused by the decrease in anthracite coal production in the 1940's, Wilkes-Barre attempted to attract new industries to this area. With these new industries came the problem of labor-management relations.

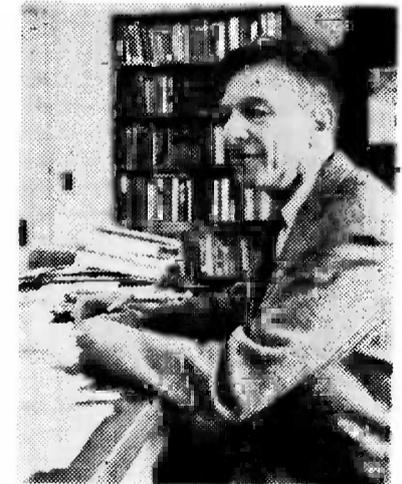

Late in 1956, this problem was partially solved by the establishment of a Labor-Management-Citizens Committee containing thirty members: ten representing organized labor, ten from management, and ten chosen from the public, one of which was appointed chairman. The purposes of this committee, as stated in the charter, are to "mediate industrial disputes after they have occurred or preferably before they started; to offer industry and labor the best management-labor climate in the country; and to establish and build up a national reputation of excellent labor-management relations and a positive favorable labor-management, and the public will all participate to their mutual advantage."

The executive director of the LMC, Dr. Samuel Rosenberg, explaining membership on the Committee, stated, "All members are individuals of stature in the community. Some represent various churches, some are presidents and vice-presidents of their companies, and some are officers of labor unions. All are vitally interested in community affairs."

Five Principles

The charter under which the LMC Committee operates is founded on five basic principles:

1. Workers have the right to join a union.

Dr. Rosenberg

2. Management has the right to direct the operations of the enterprise.

3. There should be no racial or national discrimination against workers.

4. Labor and management are to be offered voluntary use of the LMC Committee in the areas of mediation, fact finding, and arbitration.

5. An educational program should be made available for better understanding between workers, stewards, union officials, foremen, supervisors, and managers.

The Committee is usually consulted when local organizations are involved in a dispute in which local

APATHY

As you are well aware, our campus seems to be no exception when it comes to being a target for accusations concerning the apathy of our students. Some individuals seem to have a great knack for inflating minor incidents where students have failed to show interest and stating, "Boy, are the students on our campus apathetic." But, on the other hand, these very same students fail to recognize the amount of activity in which many students are participating and displaying a great deal of concern.

In the past few weeks, Jeff Gallet has taken the time to express his views on a number of political subjects, and we are pleased to say that his views were not passively accepted, but that he was challenged by a letter from one of our students. The week before last, our campus was the site of a fashion show. Students not only absorbed what they saw, but through this paper, one particular person expressed his feelings on the manner in which this affair was organized.

In citing these instances, I am not in any sense trying to say that the students should constantly disagree among themselves and thereby accomplish nothing. I am saying that through such actions, more individuals become involved . . . someone's feelings are hurt . . . someone is disturbed to the point of action. We can never hope to encourage participation merely through group efforts. People just won't respond. But stimulate their ego, and they are immediately brought to realize the importance of participation, if only for the purpose of defending their own ideas.

Another instance which probably might have gone unnoticed is one in regard to Freshman Weekend. During this weekend the potential freshman students visit the campus for two days and are oriented to various phases of college life. This weekend had been part of our school's policy for a number of years, and under the direction of IDC, it has developed into quite an enjoyable weekend. A few weeks ago, the administration decided to cancel freshman weekend, saying that it was not valuable to the freshmen, because it failed to present any phase of academic life. Had our students been apathetic, this decision would have been sustained, and freshman weekend would have vanished. BUT THIS DID NOT HAPPEN. Through the efforts of IDC and the Accounting Club, the weekend was reinstated. Both these organizations not only expressed the desire to contribute their time and effort, but also each decided to personally assume all the respective costs for the weekend, thus relieving the administration of their burden.

All the previously mentioned cases are examples of non-apathetic students actively pursuing their own fields of interest. This goes to show that students do respond, and I am sure that if one would carefully examine the situation, he would find that the majority of the students at Wilkes College are not apathetic.

AWS ANSWER

Dear Editor:

I would like to answer Mr. Squier's letter of February 28, concerning the judges of Glamour Magazine's contest for the Best Dressed Coed. Associated Women Students is aware that fashion experts are more capable than college teachers of rendering an accurate opinion concerning current styles. The object of the contest, however, is not to choose a coed with a professional look, but one who exemplifies the dressing habits of the American college girl. Glamour Magazine believes this purpose is achieved by having members of the faculty participate as judges, since they have the opportunity of seeing these girls every day.

Sincerely,
 DANA SALADON
 President, A.W.S.

WHO'S TO BLAME?

Dear Editor:

For some time now people on this campus have been waging a losing battle with apathy. The students of Wilkes College as a whole seem to do much complaining, but never actually do anything else. As an interested person, I have looked into this problem. One answer to it consistently comes up.

This answer seems to put the blame on the administration. The feeling is that the students are tied down by conservatism. It is my contention that, before such a complaint is made, the students should first look at themselves and their own organizations.

It seems that there is more dissension between the different organizations on campus than there is between political parties in a troubled Asiatic government. Dates for events are so juggled, or else so hard to get, that no one can organize any function adequately. Clubs and other groups have to struggle so hard against themselves, in order to survive, that the average student gets no benefit from their existence. Every time a new and fresh idea or a spark of spirit is conceived, it is quenched by all the "red tape" and "party politics" of almost every group on campus.

I feel that the Beacon as the voice of the students should expose these goings on to the entire student body, so that they (the students) will be aware of the problem and arise to do something about it. This the students can accomplish by writing letters to the Beacon, attending Student Government, IDC, and their own class meetings.

Respectfully submitted,
 DIANNE ALFARO

THANK YOU

Dear Miss Lore:

We would like to take this opportunity to thank everyone who helped make the first 1964 Senior Art Exhibit the great success that it was. First, Mr. Colson and Mr. Richards, our advisors, Mr. Jervis and the crew, and the two hundred and twenty people who attended the show. A special thanks must also be given to Joan Klos for her valuable help in hanging and taking down the exhibit and also George Butwin, whose tape recorder and tapes provided just the right background music.

In closing, we wish all other senior art majors much luck with their exhibits and hope that they can benefit from our mistakes.

Thank you,
 Bill Williams,
 Jan Pethick,

WHERE'S THE MONEY FROM?

Dear Editor:

It is not our purpose to continue a controversy with the Student Government, but we do believe that all organizations at Wilkes College should operate under the same standards of equality and treatment. Certain actions of the Student Government in the recent past seem to violate the very principles which were laid down to the Interdormitory Council earlier in the school year. We now merely raise a point of information, and we hope that the Student Government will clear up our feelings of curiosity.

During the discussion over the budget requests, we understood that gifts, whether financed by allotment or by earnings, could not legally be made by any Wilkes College student organization. Specifically, this limitation referred to the gifts which the IDC had for many years given to the Cafeteria Staff and to its advisors as part of its Christmas Party. We were led to believe that administrative policy absolutely forbids such use of student funds.

We now wonder how and by what right the Student Government was able to provide gifts for both Homecoming and Winter Carnival Queens and Courts. We do not necessarily question the granting of the gifts per se, but we believe that the student body is entitled to know from where these funds came and by what right they were granted.

LAYING IT ON THE LINE

Dear Editor:

Why is a Wilkes cafeteria line like a middle-aged adult? Answer: because it grows in the middle where it's not supposed to. Why do some people feel that it is their right to cut into line in front of those who have been waiting quite a while? The purpose of a line is to maintain order while being served. Can you imagine the chaos that would ensue if everybody would demand to be served at once?

The purpose of a line, in normal behavior, is to move forward. To the astonishment of the student at the end of the Commons line, however, he finds the line moving backward! Some students, who think Manners is the name of a butler, install a fifth column in the line to move along with the unsuspecting innocents. When the space retainer reaches the bulletin board, the cutter, apparently starving beyond all power of imagination, waltzes up and performs his "Open, Sesame!" act with a "Hi! Let me in, will you?" Not only does he get in, he brings his relatives, friends, and anybody else he happens to pick up along the way.

IDC is aware of this problem and has discussed it, but it is up to the students to act. It's time we taught these people some manners. If these line penetrators are that hungry, perhaps some special provision could be made for them. In any case, they should at least remember that it takes more than one person to make a line.

CZAJKOWSKI'S ANSWERS QUESTIONED

by Andrew Thorburn

Although the liberal-conservative controversy on this campus has so far been a discussion between Mr. Czajkowski and Mr. Gallet, I hope this column will not be considered an intrusion.

In his last letter Mr. Czajkowski, apparently angry with Gallet's charges of dodging the issues and committing logical fallacies, responded with as concise a statement of some conservative positions as I have ever seen. Even Barry Goldwater, the high priest of American conservatism, has rarely expressed himself so unequivocally. Despite his firmness and honesty, however, I find Mr. Czajkowski's last letter as empty as the others. He states his views, but does not defend or explain them. He gives his firm convictions on issues, but supplies us with no supporting arguments. Perhaps he thinks his conclusions are self-evident. It has been suggested that Goldwater's support is essentially mystic; perhaps this mysticism is the underlying fault of conservative thought.

Test Ban Treaty

Mr. Czajkowski is against the Test Ban Treaty because "it can only weaken the nation." How? In what way will American and Russian cessation of nuclear testing weaken the United States? If our military establishment is to be believed, then there is no way in which the Treaty will hurt our preparedness or military capacity. Both Secretary of Defense McNamara and the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff testified before the Senate that our nuclear supremacy will not be jeopardized by the Treaty. Furthermore, no substantial increase in knowledge or effectiveness could be gained by continued atmospheric tests, and the U. S. already has several times the nuclear potential to destroy the Soviet Union in case of war.

There are, then, two other possible results of the Test Ban Treaty. First, it may merely perpetuate the present nuclear stalemate without weakening the U. S. The other, and now imminent result, is the opening of increased avenues of East-West cooperation, the lowering of cold war animosities, and at least hope for general disarmament. In addition, the already high level of radioactivity in the atmosphere will not be increased. The Treaty cannot hurt anyone.

A QUESTION OF CIVIL RIGHT

by Margi Harris

Mr. McHale, for the sake of one million taxed and unrepresented individuals, please re-read Article 1, Section 8, Clause 17, of our United States Constitution. In pertaining to the District of Columbia, it says that Congress shall have the power "to exercise exclusive legislation in all cases, whatsoever." This may be interpreted that the Congress has the power to legislate home-rule to the inhabitants of Washington. In other words, Congress has the exclusive right to legislate its own exclusive governing power right out of its own exclusive hands. Is the law so divine that it cannot be re-interpreted to fit the times? According to the Supreme Court, no law is so divine. But this is not pertinent to the question.

Taxation without representation, that is the question.

Washington, D. C. does not even have territory status. We do not even have a nonvoting representative in either of the legislative chambers, as do the territories. We have three presidentially elected and congressionally confirmed commissioners, who have no legal power whatsoever. This is the extent of our representation.

You say, "A fully autonomous Washington, D. C. would have no more legitimate right to demand money from the Federal Government than would any other place that has a post office, a military installation, or a federal building within its boundaries." You say, "... the status of our nation's capitol does not differ from that of any military installation anywhere in the United States." May I inform you that we do have the legitimate right to demand money and we do differ from military installations in that there is no limit to our population and therefore no limit to civic necessities, like education.

We are taxed, but rather than calling it tax, perhaps charity would be a better word, since we get nothing back in return, but the gratification that we are giving. Of course, we should be allowed to deduct the income tax from our income tax, since it is charity. If you don't want us to vote, that is A-OK with me, Mr. McHale, but you pay my taxes, you support our schools, water works, parks, and our marble column dedications to freedom for all mankind — without representation. If I want to give to charity, I propose I pick the charity, not you or the Federal Government. I'm dedicated, but not that dedicated.

Manuscript Presents 'Loneliness' Film Here

Manuscript, the College literary society, is bringing The Loneliness of the Long Distance Runner to the campus tonight. Directed by Tony Richardson, who also directed Tom Jones, Loneliness tells the story of a boy who is sent to reform school because of stealing. Using flashbacks and the boy's life at the reformatory, Richardson directs the audience's attention to the boy's reasons for stealing.

At the school, the boy becomes a favorite of the master because of his running ability. He gains prestige, something he has never had before.

The scenes of the boy running have been considered the best scenes shot. As he is running, he reminisces about his unhappy home life.

The film presents a battle of motivations as to whether he is in sincere agreement with the rules of the reformatory, or whether he is running to gain prestige.

The English movie gained the plaudits of the N. Y. Herald Tribune, The New Yorker, The New York Post, Life Magazine, and The New York Times.

The movie will be shown in Stark 116 at 7 p.m. and 9:30 p.m.

nothing, and can easily help the cold war situation.

The U. N. and Our Interests

Mr. Czajkowski is also "against the U. N. because it has done nothing to promote our interests above the rest of the world." What are our interests, and should they be promoted over the rest of the world? Clearly our overriding interest is the maintenance of peace without the loss of our own national sovereignty or freedom or undue intrusion on the sovereignty of others. In numerous instances in the Middle East, in Africa, and now in Cyprus, the U. N. has shown its ability to help maintain peace.

The U. S. has, of course, other interests as well. We protect our investments abroad, and we have a vested interest in democracy and capitalism. The U. N. does not, and never should, promote these narrow U. S. interests, just as it never promotes the narrow interests of any other nation or bloc. Does it negate the value and function of the U. N. if it can not be manipulated to American purposes?

One final point. "The rights of the states have been unnecessarily usurped by the Federal Government." Undoubtedly the Federal Government now operates in shares previously reserved for the states. Has this usurpation been unnecessary? In many areas the states proved themselves either unwilling or unable to cope with the problems of modern society. Segregation, mass unemployment, urban deterioration, and industrial development of areas like the Tennessee River Valley are problems that the Federal Government has been forced to handle. The government has been forced to intervene in matters of interstate commerce and mass communications only because the states were unable to do an adequate job. This is not usurpation. It is a necessary extension of government if a nation is to achieve full and equal prosperity for all its citizens.

Final Basketball Statistics Released

The Colonels' cage team closed out a disastrous season by bowing for the 17th time when Juniata took the measure of the Wilkesmen 93-80 at Huntingdon last week. Over the past three seasons Wilkes has gained only seven victories and dropped 54 decisions. The Colonels only two wins came at the expense of Harpur and Lycoming. Lycoming lost to Wilkes 61-45 after downing the Colonels 83-57 early in the season. As the final statistics show, Wilkes excelled in only two departments - free throw attempts and personal fouls committed. Wilkes drew even in the number of games played.

Dale Nicholson scored the most field goals with 101, but was tied for high point honors by Dick Morgan. Both Morgan and Nicholson scored 246 points for the year.

Wilkes will lose both Al Doner and Dick Morgan through graduation, but the Colonels have some underclassmen who show much potential and will be looking forward to a better season next year.

Wilkes Wrestlers End Winning Season By Logging Impressive 5-2-1 Record

Yeager Idle From MAC Tourney Due To Chest Injury In Lycoming Meet

Under the able direction of coach John Reese, the Colonel matmen have again produced a winning season as is evidenced by their very respectable 5-2-1 record. This is a slight improvement over last year's 5-3 record. However, considering the gloomy situation with which coach Reese was faced at the beginning of the season, it is a tremendous performance.

The Colonels, in a period of rebuilding, were lacking in experience in the heavier weights and had to rely on freshmen to fill the 157, 177, and heavyweight classes. This, however, proved to be no problem, since these men exhibited exceedingly commendable performances in their endeavors. The first outing for the Colonels was against the Ithaca Bombers. In this meet the Wilkesmen bested their opponents 17-9 as the bombers showed an impressive, but futile, attempt to down the Colonels. In their next contest, the Reesemen produced a decisive 28-7 win over C. W. Post. In this meet Ned McGinley, Brooke Yeager, Bob Weston, and John Gardner remained undefeated to lead the Colonel attack.

Following the C. W. Post meet, the Colonels then traveled to Hofstra for their next endeavor. Here the grapplers met a strong foe, but edged the Flying Dutchmen in a close 19-15 contest.

The Colonels were destined to defeat, however, as they set out to take on the unbeaten grapplers of East Stroudsburg State College. The ESSC team proved to be too much and overpowered the Reesemen to bring their log to 3-1. In their next meet the Colonels rebounded by soundly defeating Moravian College 31-5. The meet was highlighted by the 137-pound match in which Tim Adams, trailing through most of the match, reversed to make the score 10-5 and then clamped his opponent with a cross-body ride to gain a fall with only 12 seconds remaining.

The Colonels then brought their record to 5-1 by downing Millersville State College 19-9. In winning, the Wilkes team avenged last season's 14-13 upset by the Marauders. The victory was the first in two years over Millersville, as the 1962 encounter ended in a 14-14 deadlock.

The next contest on the Colonel card was with the Warriors of Lycoming. The Reesemen's winning streak was stopped short as the Warriors crushed the Colonels 17-5. The only Wilkes victory of the evening turned out to be a tremendous loss, as captain Brooke Yeager suffered a chest injury in decisioning his opponent 7-4. Yeager missed the next meet and in all probability will not enter the coming MAC Tourney.

The Colonel grapplers ended their season on an unexpected note when Gettysburg forced the Reesemen to settle for a 15-15 tie. The meet was saved from defeat by freshman Bill Tinney who turned in a thrilling performance by pinning his opponent within two seconds of the final buzzer to knot the meet. The Colonels suffered a blow when Tim Adams was forced to concede his match because of an eye injury.

Today and tomorrow the Colonels are sending a full team in an effort to make a showing in the MAC Tourney at Bucknell.

Swimmers Place 8th In College Division At MAC Tournament

by Chuck Petrillo

Last weekend the Middle Atlantic Swimming Championships were held at Lehigh University in Bethlehem. For the first time the MAC was divided into University and College divisions which has ended the larger college domination of the past and has added incentive and increased competition among the small colleges of the Conference.

Ronald Daggett, Harry Heesch, Jon Carsman, and Mike Scholey represented Wilkes. Ron Daggett would have made the finals, but was disqualified at the end of his heat. Harry Heesch was not up to par, either, as he finished behind swimmers whom he had beaten during the regular season. In the 100-yd. free semi-finals Harry pulled a 57.7, breaking the Wilkes record he shared with Jack Barnes.

In the University Division, Bucknell easily won with a total of 158.5 points, followed by LaSalle with 79.5.

West Chester edged out Dickinson in the College Division 107-103, followed by Lycoming, F & M, Swarthmore, PMC, Drexel, and Wilkes.

Bray-Ve Players Clash

Next week the gym will be echoing with the 'clap-clap-clap' of dirty feet. After the entrance of the student riders, hereafter referred to as the "Sidistical Six - Minus - One," the "F-F-Flithering Five," fondly known on the campus as the faculty, will make their appearance. Immediately following these masculine displays of the stronger sex (?) comes the ponderous, gray creatures with big floppy ears and the sparkling ivory tusks, commonly identified as — That's Right — THE DONKEYS.

A recording of the Wilkes College Collegians singing folk and classical selections will be released during the first week of April. Those wishing to purchase, one of the two hundred available records, can make advance orders by contacting any member of the Collegians. The records will cost $4.

BEACON Honors Dick Morgan With 'Athlete Of The Week' Laurels

Cage Captain Holds 3 Game Records On Season In Ending Court Career

by Ivor Smith

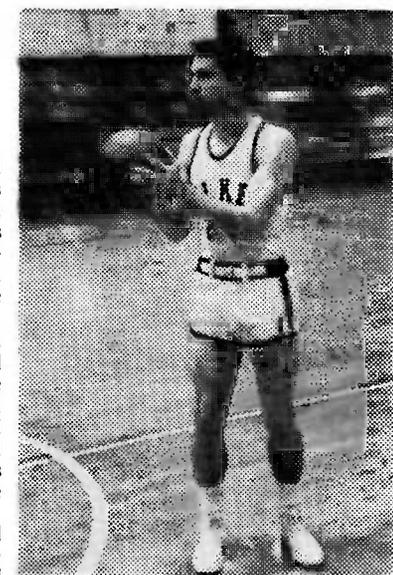

The Beacon turns to the basketball team in search of a recipient of this week's "Athlete of the Week." Team captain, Dick Morgan, is given this issue's Beacon laurels. An outstanding performer all year as a guard, Dick has proved his value to the squad many times.

Dick is a native of Spring City, Pennsylvania, an English major and current resident of Gore Hall. He attended Phoenixville High School where he captained the basketball and cross-country teams. His high school track team also had the use of Dick's talents. Dick holds letters in all three of these sports.

The Colonel soccer team has had advantage of Dick's fine work for the past three seasons. He has also lettered in that sport. His soccer talents have earned him three Stagg awards, and he is one of the finest soccer players Wilkes has seen in a number of years. It is interesting to note that Dick never played soccer before he entered Wilkes.

On the basketball court, Dick has been invaluable to the team as a playmaker and sparkplug for the Wilkes cagers. Although the team has not produced a winning season, Dick Morgan is still to be noticed. When the current of the game slows, he manages to keep life in the team.

Dick's record this season demonstrates his spirit and drive, along with his defensive skill and role as playmaker. He holds the current season's high for Wilkes in total points scored in one game - 27 against Albright. He also made the most field goals scored in one game also against Albright. When Wilkes challenged Harpur, Dick had the free-throw high for the Colonels, dropping in 8 out of 11 from the foul line.

Dick Morgan is to be congratulated for his efforts on the basketball team, and the BEACON sports staff does so in awarding him "Athlete of the Week" honors in this issue.
