The School Champion

BY MARIE BOLES

Brooke Yeager, captain of the Wilkes College wrestling team, added another award to his long list of achievements last Saturday night by topping a second place in the NCAA mat tournament held at the State College of Iowa, formerly Iowa State Teachers College.

Yeager clinched the silver medal by dethroning last year's champion, Dan Goughy, of Western State College, Colorado. Yeager's victory did not come easily as Goughy forced the Colonial to overtime but Yeager scored a decision to win the match and clinch the second place. At the end of the match the score was tied 8-8. However, Yeager gained the nod by adding one point for time advantage.

In addition to guaranteeing Yeager at least a silver medal, the victory assured Yeager of a place in the final competition in the NCAA national tournament to be held at Cornell University on March 27-28. He also qualified to take part in the Olympic team trials to be held later this year in New York City.

Howard Ganstrum of Manhattan (Minnesota) State College spoiled Yeager's chances of winning the NCAA division championship when he gained a 9-6 decision over the former Meyer in the finals.

Yeager's impressive showing marked the first time a Colonials wrestler has gone on that far in the NCAA tourney. Marc Antonee, a former mat star at Colleton and now coach at Plymouth High School, participated in the finals of the NCAA several years ago.

Yeager's performance was outstanding! In view of the fact that this was his first contest in more than a month. He was tripped by a cracked rib injury sustained in the Wyoming meet and was forced to sit out the remainder of the season.

Yeager has long exhibited his skillful performance both at Wilkes and in the past. At Meyers High School he was the number one boy in his school wrestling and was named "Prep School Champion of the East," while attending Wyoming Seminary. At Wilkes, Yeager has placed second in the Wilkes Open Tournament and in one season he grappled to the NCAA quarterfinals.

Yeager was honored by having been chosen Most Valuable Player by the BEACON and has also been named "Athlete of the Week" in the past.

ECONOMICS MAJOR AWARDED FELLOWSHIP

by Leona Sokash

A Woodrow Wilson fellowship has been granted to Richard H. Hohn, an economics major. He is among 1,507 college seniors from 337 colleges and universities in the United States and Canada who have received this year's award. Hohn plans to do graduate work in the field of economics at either the University of Pennsylvania, Cornell, or Emory.

As a Woodrow Wilson Fellow, Hohn is awarded full tuition and fees for his first year at the graduate school of his choice and a stipend of $1,800 and dependency allowance.

Commenting on the honor received by Hohn, Dean Raislon said: "Woodrow Wilson Fellowships are administered to the Ford Foundation, and provide prestige to the winners and to their colleagues. It is a honor to the student chosen to Wilkes, for there are only over a thousand winners chosen, and the competition is very stiff."

An honorable mention has been awarded to English major Barbara Gallagher, who is one of 1,216 students receiving this honor. Notice of it will be sent to the deans of graduate schools in the United States and Canada College accountancy federates will be considered for awards for these universities or from other sources. Because the number of Foundation grants are limited, these honorable mentions will not be considered.

In order to become recipients of the fellowships, students must be nominated by the faculty members of their respective colleges. The list of eligible students is narrowed considerably by the criteria of the respective regional and national committees. It is the basic principle of the foundation to aid outstanding students with funds for graduate work in the hope that they may become teachers at the college level.

Hohn is the College's second fellowship winner. According to one source, most small colleges see only one fellow during its lifetime. By Gwen Evans, an honor graduate in English, obtained a fullbright to study in France. She later received a Woodrow Wilson fellowship and did graduate work at the University of Chicago.

Accounting Club Hosts G.A.O. Representatives

Keeping in line with its function of exposing accounting students to the various phases of the accounting profession, the Wilkes College Accounting Club will host representatives from the United States General Accounting Office Tuesday at 11 a.m. in Parrish 45. John F. Willey, presently in charge of the audits of the Veterans Administration, will speak about G.A.O. and its function and opportunities.

The General Accounting Office, a wholly governmental body responsible only to the United States Congress, reviews the financial operations, activities, and management of the executive and judicial agencies of the Federal Government and private corporations having government contracts. It then reports its findings to Congress and its agencies.

It also conducts independent audits of the activities of the various agencies which make up this enterprise as a part of the system of exercising congressional control on these activities. In addition, the office reports on the reliability of the financial data on which independent public accounting firms do performing services for private, industrial, and commercial corporations.

The advisor of the General Accounting Office is included in reviews of the way in which the government agencies discharge its financial responsibilities. This year, the G.A.O. will be present in the Accounting Club.

THE BALLOT BOX
THE REPUBLICAN DILEMMA
by Andrew Thorburn
As the 1964 Presidential election approaches, the situation remains cloudy and crowded. In a few months Republicans will be faced with a choice of business of deciding who will carry their banner into the political cauldron of 1964. They could decide to establish a clear line in American politics and campaign for the one candidate who stands out from the pack. He is Senator Barry Goldwater. The liberals

refer to him as the "prophet of the revo-tution," and the Republicans see him as their way to the White House. But it will not, it will, at convention time, turn not to the most Republican candidate, nor to the one most clearly within the Republican tradition, but to the politician most likely in their eyes to defeat President Johnson in the election.

Rockefeller Resurgence

Governor Nelson Rockefeller, the Republican front-runner before his return to New York, is still a possible candidate in 1964. He was in 1960, a liberal-in-chief who seems to have found a platform. Of all the Republican aspirants, his views are closest to the President, and there seems no reason to believe that his divorce announced last month will do him more damage, and it is doubtful that he could swing the northeast away

from Johnson.

As Rockefeller lost much of his support after his divorce, Goldwater's candidacy gained momentum. Yet, even if Rockefeller does not seem to be a serious candidate, he may be as damaging to the Republicans as the one

he could swing the northeast away

from Johnson.

Goldwater's Problem

Suppose, for example, that Goldwater switch, as Eisenhower and

Nixon did not, the entire once-solid

Republican bloc could crack, and it

Ewing's Visit to Russia Enlightens by Andrew Thorburn

During the McCarthy witch hunts in the early fifties, both Elia Kazan and Arthur Miller were called to testify before the House Un-American Activities Committee. Kazan, in connection with their political activity in the thirties. Miller refused on principle to give the Committee other names to investigate. Kazan, however, not only gave the committee the fuel it needed, but also told them about his experiences. Times to explain that his action was dictated by feelings of high patriotism. Now, in his last movie, America America, Mr. Kazan has once again made a public display of his patriotism.

...just as Kazan's great uncle and his dream to reach America. The film is insensitively made, over-narrated, and trite. The hero is

My words, I am confident, are not sufficient to convince you. Therefore, I would like to appeal to the President and the President of Princeton University, who wrote the following letter:

I heard President Johnson's speech to Congress and hope that he will follow President Kennedy and in his turn will do much for peace. We must stop now, when the first steps have been taken, and it's easier now to turn back than later. If we don't, a sudden, but gradually, step by step. So the New Year has brought new hope. I hope you all of them to come to reality.

Letter From Russia

This year Linda received a letter from her friend, Ivan, who is a student at Moscow University. Ivan, who is teaching Russian in his native country, writes, "In Russia, in the last two months after the death of President Kennedy, I have been much impressed by the atmosphere of non-violence that pervades the country. I feel sure that the President would have been pleased with the way his policies have been carried out."

Ivan continues, "The young people here are anxious to see the President's policies continued. They believe in the principles of peace and non-violence and are working hard to ensure that these principles are upheld."

Ivan ended his letter with, "I hope that President Kennedy's policies will be continued and that the world will move towards peace and understanding."
Circle K Donates Wheelchair To Be Used On U.S.S. Hope

Wilkes College Circle K Club held its initial luncheon meeting this week at Hotel Sterling. During a brief business session Warren Meyers, President of the Wheelchair Club, Inc., explained how the project of the local Kiwanis Club has distributed hundreds of wheelchairs throughout the world. The club then unanimously approved a pending motion providing for purchase of a wheelchair to be donated to the Wilkes-Barre Kiwanis Club in appreciation for their help to Wilkes’ Circle K. The wheelchair will be sent to the U.S.S. Hope, which will tour the world providing medical assistance to underdeveloped countries.

At this special luncheon meeting Rev. Dr. Jule Ayers was guest speaker. Dr. Ayers explained the group how recent trends toward interfaith cooperation have been leading to a more cohesive policy in the world and particularly in Wyoming Valley. He explained how Pope John XXIII initiated this new trend in individual thinking and how this has affected

I.D.C. Plans To Work For Zoes;
Ralston Clamps Down On Parties

One of the primary topics at the last I.D.C. meeting was the scholarship fund for Zoe’s Maymoments. I.D.C. adopted Greek orphan. To raise the funds for Zoe’s educational career at Wilkes, I.D.C. formulated plans for a student workday, and a ‘Fly for Zoe’s day.’

On the workday, to be held April 1, student volunteers will work in approximately fifty businesses in Wilkes-Barre and Kingston, with the money they earn to be added to Zoe’s scholarship fund. Students who are able to work for Zoe’s on Wednesday, can leave their names in I.D.C.’s post-office box.

The other fund-raising plan is the ‘Fly for Zoe’s day.’ In the past this has not always been profitable, and I.D.C. decided to wait until after

Visitors Comment On 4-Man Show

The Senior Art Exhibit, now being held in Conyngham Annex under the direction of J. Philip Richards, will close today. Jane Kindervater, Ron Kurtz, Sandra Leibman and Joseph Lipinski will display their work until 6 p.m.

The following are some comments from students on the exhibit:

Edward Comstock: The show is an enjoyable excursion for all of us who have been so influenced by facts and figures as to have them obscure most of the artistry and creativity of the human mind.

Pat Wamole: I was very impressed with the show of talent and expect to be hearing a great deal more about these artists in the years to come.

Michael Stretezsanski: Both the college and the community by their sparse attendance did not take full advantage of an excellent opportunity to see work our students are doing. The show taken as a whole exhibits great variety, although two of the artists did not prove to be too versatile or give an indication of their work in other media.

The Photography Club has chosen Joyce Callahan as the candidate for the unpredictable month of March. Miss Callahan, being just as unpredictable, has modeled for L. S. Perrotti and has served as a social assistant in helping retarded children at Maclin School.

Miss Callahan resides in Wilkes-Barre and is concentrating on psychological studies in the field of Elementary Education. After school, she is a typist for Merit Enterprises, Inc.

The deadline for contestants of the Miss April contest is April 27. Entries should be taken to the photo lab in the basement of Chase Hall.

‘Miss Seasons’ will be selected in May.

The five schools. It was also moved that the costs incurred in any I.E.C. function be undertaken by the college located geographically closest to the event to be held, and financially capable of bearing such costs. This measure is to avoid the red tape of having representatives from all of the participating sign and approve everything. The deficit will be divided later. Any profit will go to the ‘host’ college or to charity. The motion was tabled pending action by the individual councils. All motions are discussed in this manner.

Discussion followed Maccaroni’s report, and it was moved and passed that Wilkes College officially join I.E.C. and that Wilkes participate in the proposed outing.

DONKEYS, HOOTERS HAVE BIG WEEKEND

by Helen Dugan
The Third Annual Donkey Basketball Game was something not to be forgotten very quickly.

Although the score ended in favor of the faculty, the game was the real winner of the afternoon.

For some reason Dickie Burns didn't seem to appreciate the referee, and felt that whenever the referee was close, it would break into a gallop down the court.

The intermission featured the girls vs. the boys in a regular basketball game, but everybody's attention was on the fantastic antics of 'Mas' Dick Morgan. While on the court, Dick played such roles as, Queen of the Ball, Monster Morgan, and Haed Ballerina at Vienna. Dick Morgan-Trick-Shooter for the Baron, and Morgan-Molester of Girls. He kept the audience in perpetual hysteria throughout the entire intermission.

Upon the return of the donkeys, the student riders tried in vain to tame the faculty, who might add did their share of roughing up.

Pete Winebraeke made a perfect connection in the third quarter. Unfortunately it was his head connecting with the floor. Jimmy Jones, although playing a great deal of the game, was only on the donkeys back for about thirty seconds. He is still taking a pillow to classes. In the final quarter, the girls who played at the intermission claimed the donkeys. They stayed mounted for a longer time than the boys before the faculty won 16 to 8.

BASEBALL TEAM DRILLS IN THE GYM FOR OPENING OF DIAMOND CAMPAIGN

Coach Schmidt Has Wealth of Talent; Full Team Returns

by Don DeFranco

With spring drawing near, the Wilkes College baseball team is preparing for its debut on April 1. Coach Roland Schmidt is conducting daily workouts in the gym due to the inclement weather which prevents outdoor practice.

The outlook for the season this year is extremely bright, with the entire starting lineup returning from last year. Augmenting the vets will be a host of rookies, giving Coach Schmidt depth at every position.

The pitching staff is headed by Joe Krueger, Rick Klick, and Gary Popovich.

At present, the squad is concentrating on fundamentals at the practice drills, but it is hoped the weather will clear and the players will be able to concentrate on their sluggimg and fielding. These two assets will play an important part in the team's fortunes this year.

Independent League Title Decided As Trojans Capture Championship

by Lee Wasklewski

The championship of the Independent League was finally decided last week as the American League winners and the National League winners met in the best of a three-game series.

The Trojans of the American League won the playoff game from the Rejects on a forfeit. In the second game the powerful Rejects found it difficult again to raise a sufficient number of players, but they put together a 'skeleton crew' and set out against the sharp-shooting Trojans.

The Rejects jumped out to a 1-0 lead at the end of the first quarter on the strength of fine defensive play by Al Wayman and Pete Paline. In the second quarter the Trojans strength began to show itself as they scored on the abandoned base.

At the end of the half the Rejects led 10-26. In the third quarter Sharock and Yester hit the nets with amazing precision, and the Trojans took the lead at the end of the third quarter 46-44. In the fourth quarter the teams matched each other point for point and the Trojans emerged victorious and deified the Rejects from their perennial berth as champs 61-59. Matt Himlin of the Rejects was the high scorer in the game with 30 points.

Many upssets characterized dorm play with a three-way tie emerging after this week's play. The League leaders, Butler Hall and Gore Hall, both with unblemished records, met head on in a game which was set to decide the champ for one of the most exciting weeks in Intramural play. Gore held a 9-5 lead in the first period, but Butler Hall quickly rebounded on the scoreboard offensive and edged back to take the lead at half 15-16. Gary Popovich then took charge of Gore's offense and was aided by J. Holst and N. Milford and Gore regained the lead at the end of the third period and from this point they were never headed as they went on to beat Butler 32-25.

Gore's only obstacle to the Dorm Championship was once beaten Butler Hall. Butler Hall had no intention of relinquishing their title as Dorn champs. In the first quarter Barre jumped out to a 7-4 lead, and this was the closest that Gore came for the rest of the evening as Dunn and Houlston split 3 points in leading Barre to a 55-27 upset. Gary Popovich was high for the losers with 15.

With Barre's win over Gore the Dorm League was thrown into a three-way tie for first place between Butler, Gore and Barre. Each team sports a 1-1 record and will meet this week in a round robin playoff to decide which will represent the Dorm League against the high flying Troyo-
