Indian Village Found On Campus Land

by Barbara Simms, Ruth Partilla and Jeff Galler

Do you want to furnish your home in authentic America? Here's your chance to do it all! That is, you'll find something that is real in the presence of a new athletic field at 10:30 tomorrow morning. There's a slight catch to it, however. You have to bring along a long-handled shovel, trowels, and supplies, and spend the entire day excavating. This century American, is that the block, to own an authentic Susquehanna Indian peace pipe.

Recently, Robert Rusher, President of the local Franks Dorance Chapter of the American Colonial Society, and John Chwalek, Director of the College's Museum, found permission to dig on the site of the College's new athletic field. One of Rusher's excavation sites, which he discovered an Indian village, dat back to the mid-19th century. The village, which was burned under seventeen inches of river silt in the land earmarked for the field. Included in the excavations were remnants of wigwams, and arrow heads. The dig turned out to be a success after all.

Tomorrow's digging will be supervised by members of the Franks Dorance Society. Groups of approximately four students will be assigned a plot of land ten feet square. Since the relics are expected to be found underneath seventeen inches of ground, the students will not have to dig. Rusher suggests that these particular relics are buried not in the form of arrowheads, but as a long-Indian peace pipe.

Students interested in the project, which will be directed by Mrs. George Picton, are urged to be at the site of the new athletic field tomorrow morning at 10:30. The excavation will be watched by members of the Franks Dorance Society, and will be open to the public. No equipment will be allowed to keep whatever relics be excavated and can carry home. Mrs. Picton encourages excavating to the abundance of relics found in the past, almost everyone who digs finds some type of relic in the excavations.

Candidate Present Election Platform

Ungemah Plans Triple "A" Program

To the Student Body of Wilkes College:

My triple "A" theme is ACTION, ABILITY, and ACHIEVEMENT and its presentation is in the Student Government. In order for one to take action, he will have to move forward with ideas that can be cared for. Inability to do this will just produce a failure, and even content will not move forward along the same lines. We also must do more and better things for the Student Body. Action, Ability, and Achievement are what I believe for this job. I have not been a member of the Student Government, but I have a diversified background. I have in the past been a member of the Student Government, Board of Trustees, Treasurer of CCGU, Football Manager, Student Activities Committee, and President of an officer of the Student Body. My plan for the Student Body is working forward, where it is expected that the Student Government must represent the Student Body and the Administration. As a result, I intend to try to do the best way.

Now, I do not get it wrong. I am for Big Weekends on the campus and am always open for any suggestions concerning them. I am for the continuous and intelligent use of the Student Government representing the student body to dissolution from classes and policies. But this is not enough. We should not stop there. We should go further.

I do not think that there should be any hostility between Student Government and the College. I plan to work well, do the best of our ability, and make it better.

JONES, CLUB REP.

by Marshall Evans

Jim Jones, Treasurer of Student Government, recently conducted a discussion for representatives of all campus organizations. He explained the possibilities of increasing their club's treasury by the collection of membership dues during the year, these four of which are naturally well towards the goal. He said that the increase in Student Government's policy of promoting weekend programs on campus.

Jim also asked for possible suggestions for improving the student body. "I'm looking forward to our meeting and conference," he said. The meeting was called in response to an editorial appearing in the Beacon, April 10. The editorial called for more opportunities for small clubs to gain money for their programs.

DeAngelis Stresses "Experience"

The student body of Wilkes will be faced for the first time with the problem of selecting the best candidate for the office of Student Government President on Monday. This change to popular voting is expected to ease the transition that is beginning to take place at Wilkes.

Our College is moving forward academically and expanding its facilities to meet the demands of progressive times. Student Government has also recognized the need for expansion and the necessity of providing for the students, both intellectually and socially. This past year we have initiated a program towards this end. Such changes as the Student Seminar Program, Student Action Night, and the addition of facilities to the University will only have one election amendment along with nine candidates for the Student Government and will be held next year.

Travel Seminar Planned

The Student Seminar Committee under the auspices of Student Government will present a seminar for American Students Abroad next week. Chairman Sunier, Hayden announced that Gail Roberts has arranged for several Wilkes students who have traveled abroad to attend the seminar. The seminar will be held next week at the College and will be open to all American students.

Hayward requested any individual or organization interested in sponsoring the seminar to contact me.

Cathy DeAngelis

SG OFFERS 18 AMENDMENTS

Student Government will present nineteen amendments to its constitution to the student body for ratification on May 11.

Under these amendments, a three-fourths of a two-thirds vote of the total membership and one third of the Student Government members will be required to pass an amendment. And, on the other hand, the difficulty of obtaining a two-thirds vote of the student body has been somewhat reduced. The amendments, as noted above, are expected to be passed.

Class officers will be nominated the ninth week of the Spring semester instead of the previously advertised tenth week, thus allowing for two weeks to campaign.

The change in the number required for a quorum from ten to nine is felt necessary to facilitate the transaction of business of the Student Government in the early part of the Fall Semester.

This meeting is called in response to an editorial appearing in the Beacon, April 10. The editorial called for more opportunities for small clubs to earn money for their programs.
Letters to the Editor

Who's to Say Who's to Cuth

Dear Editor,

I would like to avail myself of the opportunity to express my ideas and adventures concerning the subject of moral ethics. I am using this publication as a substitute for the opportunity to attend the upcoming seminar.

It is my belief that a student code of moral ethics is out of the hands of the governing body of the college. It is also my belief that this is not a project to be hung on the graduates. It is my belief that the question of moral ethics belongs to the students as individuals, repeat individuals, to make their own decisions as to what is right and wrong. If we do not see how Student Government or the Administration assumes the responsibility of making excuses as to behavior, morality or in any other way, the students will make their own decision.

Sincerely,

[Signature]

MORALS ON CAMPUS

by Jeff Gallier

Morals, Inc., an internationally known survey company, has just announced the results of its latest poll. The company, following the recent trend toward public morality, made a survey of college students.

The survey, in which some 500 girls participated, was done on an anonymous basis. The girls were asked to fill out questionnaires, but were not required to give their names.

The results were, in the words of one college official, "shocking." On the questions dealing with their opinion of a code which stated that on another place they held hands with a member of the opposite sex. Of those, 54%, said they had done it in public and 37% with more than one partner! Even more shocking was the fact that 52% of the girls admitted wearing Bermudas and bikinis in public places; 89% had even worn them in the vicinity of their town's central business district.

The college administration lost no time in taking action. Immediately the Deans sent letters to the dormitories forbidding such actions under penalty of expulsion. A student official was made the Dormitory Council, acting with characteristic speed and dispatch.

The Dormitory Council, meeting in executive session as a committee of the whole, decided to postpone any action on this subject. They postponed it in order to study the situation and for an extended period of time as the women had demanded. The college administration deeply regrets the delay.

The Dormitory Council, after meeting in executive session as a committee of the whole, decided to postpone any action on this subject. The president of the college is of the opinion that further study of the situation is necessary. We would not want to take any impetuous action on a subject as grave as this, "He said, though, that the Council planned to hold a student seminar on the subject.

Various explanations have been given for this situation. Leading among them is the fact that one of the college administration is the only one who has not been found guilty of anything. In fact, only 22% of the students admitted to the college administration the first time.

Some community leaders, agast at the survey's revelations have demanded that the college administration take immediate action, and that some new code, morales, prevent infecting our young citizens. One college official best summed up the adult community's reaction to the whole farce by saying, "It's so unbecoming to wear shorts than to cath ."

WHATEVER HAPPENED TO BABY CHASE?

by Andrea Templar

An obscure legend has it that Chase Hall was once used for the shooting of horror movies. Chase’s career supposedly blossomed about forty years ago under the direction of the Diamond Motion Picture Company.

The building’s abundance of secret panels and passages provides a setting for any Gothic novel, or fitting residence for panels and passages effectively ago under the horror wister of skaters. If the young lady is perceptible, she may suspect her host’s intention. If the young lady are to suspect her host’s intention, the young lady will escape from the room through the secret underground passage. The young lady will exit through the secret underground passage and enter the secret garden behind the house. The young lady will then make her way to the secret garden behind the house.

During the period of Chase’s stars, high schools in the area, including Silas McCall, were known to be leading to toward motion picture fame. According to the Chamber of Commerce Journal, the most prominent of the group was Chase Hall. What was once a secret garden behind the house is now a public garden and attracts many visitors who come to see the various plants and flowers that grow there. The garden is a popular spot for weddings and other special occasions, and is open to the public year-round.

A Russian language course is first time initiated during the fall semester by the Evening School. The course will continue through four semesters, similar to other language courses already offered. The course will be offered Tuesday and Thursday evening 8:30 p.m.

Amnicola staff at work?

by Helen Dorman

A very interesting yet overlooked aspect is the budget on which the Amnicola is working. Even though the budget is extremely tight, the yearbook is only still $41, while the average cost in other colleges is about $30. Some college administrators say much about themselves. No question, their yearbook is not of the quality of the Amnicola.

The Amnicola staff wants to remind students who have ordered a yearbook for the past year. They are responsible for picking it up next September at the Book Store. Graduates will have the book sent to the address in the student roster. If any student has an address change or wants to order a yearbook, they should notify the Amnicola as soon as possible.
CORE Initiates Book Drive, Housing Survey

by Marie Parcell

The local chapter of the Congress of Racial Equality conducted a survey for the Wyoming Valley Human Rights Commission recently. The purpose of the survey was to find out if there are any housing discrimination incidents in the Wyoming Valley. The survey was twofold, the major one being to obtain for the Commission the names and addresses of those people who would be willing to be located in an integrated community; and the secondary one to answer charges that Wyoming Valley does not need Core.

Core members interviewed both those people who were being affected by urban renewal and other who live in poverty-stricken areas of Wilkes-Barre. The people who were affected by urban renewal and others who live reaction to it, and both groups were asked if they thought that there was any housing discrimination in Wyoming Valley. Eighty-two percent of both groups said that it was difficult for Negroes to find housing, and approximately forty percent of those interviewed said that they had been personally involved in incidents of racial discrimination.

Thorburn Presents Findings

The findings of the survey were presented by Andrew Thorburn, who is co-chairman of the project with Jim Fendrick. In the last meeting of the Human Rights Commission on April 31, Mayor Frank Slattery attended the meeting, along with several minority leaders, and two local directors of the urban renewal project.

According to Thorburn, this survey has been useful in pinpointing the number of people who would be willing to relocate for the Human Rights Commission, in obtaining for Core information which it can act upon, especially concerning one apartment house which is violating the housing and sanitation code, and in acquainting the members of Core with the current situation of housing on campus.

Another Project

Core is also beginning another project, at present, that of getting textbooks for students in Negro communities in the South, particularly in Greenwood, Canton, and Meridian, Mississippi. The chairman of this project is Judy Morrison. Core is now writing to clergymen and schools and organizations in Wilkes-Barre and the surrounding counties, asking for any textbooks or other books which are not in use. The books will be driven to New York by Core members, and from there will be forwarded by National Core through the Core Educational Project Committee, to the schools which are in need of aid.

The College's students and faculty are being asked to contribute old textbooks and other books. Receipts for these books will be placed at convenient points on campus.

A third project which Core is undertaking this semester is that of tutoring an integrated group of junior high school students who are deficient in basic mathematical and grammatical skills. The tutoring of these children in basic English, math, and science will be done at G.A.R. High School. More tutors are needed, any core members of Core who would be willing to give their time to this project should notify its Ann Margolis or Dr. Eugene Hammier.

Money, money, money! There's never enough, is there? But clever college gowns now cope with the High Cost of Living in a very pleasant way. They're becoming part-time (or summer-time) Tupperware dealers. Which means, they demonstrate these famous plastic food containers at home parties and earn up to $50 a week, or more. Sounds like fun? It is. Ask your Financial Aid Director about it and call your local Tupperware distributor, listed in the Yellow Pages under Plastics or Housewares. Or send in this coupon...

The student body, some members of the Student Council, and Student Government taking a stand on increasing the quality of assemblies.

Both candidates have agreed to limit the number of students to twelve, with much of the publicity being in the form of impartial notices issued by the Student Government publicity committee.

The election will take place in the Cafeteria on Monday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. All students should vote in this important election.

EXPLANATION OF TENNIS RULES

HOPED TO INCREASE INTEREST

by Emily Wright

Editor’s Note: The tennis squad has shown outstanding effort in winning 4 of 6 meets. Nevertheless, the student body has failed to exhibit moral support by attending the contests. We feel that one reason may be due to an inadequate knowledge of the rules. In carrying through with a precedent set by a similar article on wrestling earlier in the year, the staff wishes to briefly outline some of the rules of play and the method of serving in an attempt to boost attendance at the meets.

Starting the game – Each game is started with one player acting as server. The server stands behind the baseline. The ball is served directly over the net to the receiving court diagonally opposite the server. A second serve is allowed if the first fails to land in the designated area. A point is gained by the receiver if both serves are faults — that is, if both balls fall to the receiving court.

Return of the serve and rules of play – The serve must be returned on the first bounce, but other balls may be returned either on the first bounce or before touching the ground. The ball is hit back and forth between players until one fails to return the ball across the net, or hits the ball out of bounds. The server makes a new serve when the ball is not returned.

The first service is from the left side of the baseline. The serve continues to alternate from side to side until the end of the game. At the end of the game, the server becomes the server and vice versa. The winner of six games, by a two game margin, wins a "set," and the winner of the best out of three sets wins the "match." In college play, there are six singles matches and three doubles matches.

Scoring – Each ball not returned gives the opponent a point. The points are designated as follows:

- 1st point = 15
- 2nd point = 30
- 3rd point = 40
- 4th point = 40

In order to win a game, the margin of victory must be at least 2 points. If both sides reach 40, the situation is called deuce, and one side or the other must gain a 2 point margin to win. A score of 0 is called love.

Golfers Play In Rain; Bow To Susquehanna

by Don DeFranco

Playing in a driving rainstorm, the Wilkes College golf team bowed to Susquehanna University last Thursday, 13½-4½. Coincidentally, last year’s match between the two foes was played under similar conditions and the identical score was turned in, with Wilkes the victor, however.

In Thursday’s match, the only victors for the Colonels were Jim Ward, who downed his opponent 2½-1½, and Bob Myers, a 2-1 winner over his foe. The loss brought the Wilkes record to 1-3.

Monday, theuffers of coach Welton Farrar will play in the annual MAC Tournament being held this year at Susquehanna University.

INTRAMURAL TRACK MEET SET
MAY 21st AT KIRBY PARK

Athletic Director John Reese has announced an intramural track meet slated for Thursday, May 21 at 4:15 p.m. at Kirby Park. The idea of an intramural track meet was initiated last year; however, it did not attain the enthusiasm and support which was hoped for. Although many team rosters were submitted only two teams actually participated in the meet. It is hoped that this will not occur again this year.

This idea of an intramural track meet was suggested last year by Beacon Sports Editor Clark Little. Clark got the idea from Temple University, which he attended in his freshman year. An intramural track meet is common in many schools and should be an exciting addition to the intramural program at Wilkes.

Let’s say for a minute, this is you.

Once you wear the gold bars of a second lieutenant in the United States Air Force, what’s in store for you? Well, you may fly an aircraft entrusted with a vital defense mission. Or you may lead a research team tackling problems on the forefront of knowledge. You’ll be helping to run an organization that’s essential to the safety of the free world.

Sounds like you’ll be called on to shoulder a good deal of responsibility, doesn’t it? But when you come right down to it, that’s what your college years have been preparing you for. You’ve got ability and a good education. Now’s the time to put them to work!

You’ll have every opportunity to prove your talents in the Air Force. By doing so, you can put yourself and your country ahead.

If you’re not already enrolled in ROTC, you can commission at Air Force Officer Training School—a three-month course that’s open to both men and women college graduates. To apply, you must be within 210 days of graduation.
ASSISTANT TO DEAN OF MEN SELECTED BY UNANIMOUS VOTE

by Merle Bolen

At the recent Annual Athletic Awards Dinner held on April 12, the highlight of the evening came with the presentation of the newly created Coach of the Year Award. An award of this type was non-existent in the past; however, due to the superb performance of rookie coach Arthur Hoover, it was deemed necessary to present such an award.

Although somewhat hesitant and nervous, coach Reese and Schmidt with the cooperation of Chuck Robbins concluded that Hoover was undoubtedly entitled to the award. Unfortunately Hoover was unable to attend the dinner due to previous commitments; however, the award was presented at a later date.

Hoover’s great performance came when he was asked to fill in for Reese at a crucial juncture. Gary Popovich pitched a one-hit game to secure the 4-0 win in 4 starts for the Colonels. The Wilkesmen dropped a tough contest to Scranton to bring the season to a close.

Popovich was named the winner of the game and walked out with the championship trophy. The Colonels fell below the 500 mark by bowing to Scranton on Monday, however, as Rick Rick was hit by Rick and struck out 6. The Royals plated all of their runs in the top 2 innings and Wilkes simply failed to put their hits together, gaining only 3 runs against Hoover. The Wilkesmen lost the game, 1st against 2 wins.

The Colonels expressed their anger at having dropped the contest as they figured they should have owned the game. The Colonials came out for revenge when they met the Royals again on May 16th. The Steers game, originally scheduled for tomorrow, was moved up and these games were not available for publication.

Popovich Gains ’Athlete of the Week’; Colonel Mound Ace Hurls 1 Hitter

by Ivor Smith

The strong left-handed pitching of Gary Popovich, junior mound ace, gave the Wilkes Colonels the decided edge last Saturday when the ballhounds downed Ursinus College 2-1. Gary’s mound performance that day has earned him this year’s Athlete of the Week honors.

The 6’1, 250 pound, math major is an alumnum of Meyers High School, where he lettered in football, basketball, and baseball. At Wilkes Gary also contributes rugged efforts to the football team. He highlights theColonial offense with a speed offense and a crushing defense. A transfer student from Lafayette College, his high level of performance on the academic scene.

With a 215 pound thrust behind every Popovich pitch, most batters find it difficult to get a hit to the Wilkesmen. Play against Ursinus he struck out five, but was troubled by wildness and issued eight walks. Gary’s one hitter and some strong base hitting held Ursinus to one run, with Wilkes coupling it together for the winning margin.

Of the Colonels nine encounters in MAC competition this season, Gary has gone to the mound 3 times, toasting 2 wins and 1 loss. For his performance in the contest with Ursinus, Gary Popovich is presented with this issue’s nod for “Athlete of the Week.”
