Circle K Challenges Campus Groups
In Blood Donor Day Competition

by Charlotte Wetzal

Next Friday, October 18, has been designated as Blood Donor Day for Wilkes College. All students who wish to participate have an opportunity to do so between 9:45 a.m. and 3:45 p.m. at the college gym.

To save time for the donor, appointments can be made well in advance. Thus the entire process will take less than a half hour from the student’s schedule for that day.

Members of the Circle K Club are presently contacting day students for pledges. Dormitory students have been contacted by their respective dorm presidents.

REGISTRATION FORMS
Students who wish to give blood and have not been contacted may obtain a registration form from members of Circle K, presidents of dormitories, or Student Government. The student who is under 21 years of age must have a parent or guardian sign a permission slip.

In addition, Circle K has presented a Challenge of Arms to the faculty and to any other campus organization that they, as a group, will donate more blood than the Circle K group. Judged on a percentage-wise basis, the winner of the competition will be awarded a trophy.

Any campus organization which is interested in accepting the challenge can become eligible by placing notice in the Circle K mailbox. The recipients will be chosen on the basis of the number of people in the organization and the tentative number which will participate in the Donor Drive.

CIRCLE K MAKES CHALLENGE

Last year, Blood Donor Day netted 137 pints of blood. The members of Circle K expressed the hope that this year’s response will be much more successful in attaining the current goal of 200 pints.

Marshall Evans, chairman of the Circle K Blood Donor Program, stated that the willingness and efforts of the students on campus will make this goal attainable.

One of the purposes which Blood Donor Day fulfills is to replenish the credits of the Circle in the blood bank. In order for a student to obtain blood for his own or his family use there must be a sufficient number of students on deposit in the blood bank from the Circle.

STUDENT GOVT. PREPARES FOR HOMECOMING WEEKEND
by Ruth Partilla

Although the weather still denies the fact, fall is here and winter is rapidly approaching. The temperature accompanying the fall weather will be the first outstanding social event this fall, Hometoon – Homecoming Week – end. Even though it will not take place until October 25 and 26, Student Government is already busy making the preliminary preparations.

Homecoming will officially begin on Friday night with the traditional parade to Kirby Park where a bonfire will be held. After these ceremonies, a pep dance will follow at the gym. Leslie Tobias and Marie Strock are in charge of these activities.

On Saturday afternoon, the football teams of Wilkes and Drewel will meet at the Athletic Field. During the pre-game ceremonies the selection of Homecoming King and Queen will take place. The first-year football players will be featured. At half-time the winner of the various displays exhibited on campus will be announced. The actual selection will be made during Friday night’s bonfire.

Homecoming would not be complete without the traditional dinner-dance. The ball will be held at the gym with the cost of tickets approximately $4.00 per couple. This price is set for the benefit of the Circle K Blood Donor Program.
LET'S GET WITH IT

Apathy on the part of our student body manifests itself on many occasions throughout the year. School sponsored social events, campus drives, and other projects usually meet with failure because of the lack of individual participation. One might attribute his impatience to lack of personal interest concerning the particular event taking place, and his position may be well stated in this respect.

However, on October 18, we as students, will be confronted with an appeal, the material purpose of which directly concerns each one of us vitally. This appeal is from the Red Cross for the donation of blood by the students and the faculty.

Although at first glance it might seem that students would offer their support to such a program, experience has shown that only 137 out of a possible 1200 donors took an active part in the same program in the past. It is my belief that this poor turnout is due primarily to the fact that many students do not fully understand the purpose of the blood program.

Each donor who participates in the program is entitled to receive blood, free of charge, for himself, family, friends or someone when the need arises. Combine this material benefit with the self-satisfaction derived from one's contribution and every blood donation becomes well worth the effort.

Our goal, this year, of 200 pints can be reached only through a concentrated effort on the part of the students and faculty alike. Wouldn't October 18 be an ideal day to dispel the apathetic attitude theory existing on our Campus? JJK

HOMECOMING NOTICE NOMINATE HER NOW

The Beacon announces the opening of nominations for the 1965 Homecoming Queen. Students are asked to submit their signed letters containing the name of their nominee, and her particular qualifications for reign as queen. Letters should be either to the Beacon mailbox at the bookstall, or delivered to the Beacon office in Pickering Hall.

LETTER TO EDITOR

Tonight is Thursday October 3, 1963, and I have just spent an enjoyable evening at Kutztown University for a screening of the Student Government Seminar committee’s two-hour film on the Student’s Right to Vote.

The film, made by the NAACP and directed by John Milton and Circle, or the School of Citizenship by Jean Arnauld. The acting done by the cast of the College with great originality and verve in my estimation. However, this was not the purpose of writing this article.

Out of a theater that could seat approximately one hundred people, only fifty to sixty seats were occupied. This lack of school spirit and intellectual spirit is quite evident on this campus. This is not the only instance.

A survey of different topics and interests are arranged for students by the Student Government Seminar committee; yet only one or six people show up out of a student body of approximately 3000.

Not only is an intellectual quizzing of the people that attend sporting events at athletic events is at a miserable low. One does not hear the cheers and songs echo round the grounds of Wilkes, as it has been in the tradition. Our cheerleaders carry out their job, but student support for their efforts are warranted.

As college students we have to take an interest in our school affairs. We cannot stand by and allow a possibility of no voice in the decisions that affect our lives. There is no reason for one to ashamed to shout and cheer for the home team; or to turn up late to a game and play the alma mater. We have to stand up and do something. If we, College students are going to make Wilkes College a better place to be, we must start doing it now.

The first attempt at a formal definition of church-state relations, and one that has been most widely adopted during, was made by Pope Gelasius I in 491 A.D. The Gelasian theory was a great step forward in the development of church-state relations, and it is the basis for most modern church-state relations.

Several points in the Gelasian doctrine are important to the development of the idea of a theocracy (in which gods exercise both spiritual and political power): a distinction between the "regim" (the political power), and the "sacred" (the religious power); and the recognition that the two spheres could not be separated completely. This doctrine, which was developed in the 10th century, is the basis of the traditional Catholic position on church-state relations.

STATE VS. RELIGION

St. Augustine (354-430 A.D.) first described in book, somewhat in different terms, the nature and power of church-state relations. He saw the state as reorganizing, and the church as providing moral guidance. Christianity, in its own way, is what we call nationality. It is part of the state in which there is a great diversity of religious beliefs, and of great interest in the development of the state. Christianity also reinforced the traditional idea that men are social creatures who need the state for their welfare.

Church and State in America

The social thought of antiquity, especially that of Greece and Rome, identified the state as the political state of men who were part of it. Stoicism, along with other philosophies, argued that a man's duty was to the public good. Public, the self-sufficient individual to the point of being most closely associated with the state was a man who lived according to the state's laws. Christianity also reinforced the idea that men are social creatures who need the state for their welfare.

Curtains for 'I Spy' and Calls for 'Cecile'

by Alia Paciulowski and Jeff Gallet

One wonders how Cue and Curtain, from which we have learned to expect excellence, could have been such a disaster. I Spy, along with the other plays of the evening, was a complete fiasco. By taking the characters and their relationships in a more realistic way, the play could have been much better. One of the most interesting parts of the evening was the scene in which the curtains were drawn while Harvey Whistler, a producer of the play, was reciting a review of the performance. It was fascinating to see the whole group of people participating in this wonderful scene.

One tragic flaw in the play is that the characters are not given sufficient development. The roles are not fully explored, and the audience is left with a sense of dissatisfaction. However, the setting and costumes are quite good, and the acting is well done. The play is not a complete failure, but it could have been much better if it had been more carefully planned and executed.

WINEBRAKE GAINS BEACON “Athlete” Award; ECAC Outstanding Lineman

Teamwork and rugged line play, as displayed in last Saturday’s contest with the Greyhounds of Moravian, have made Pete Winebrake recipient of this issue’s BEACON Award. Pete’s offensive and defensive performance, as a starting end for the Wilkes team, led him to further recognition by being chosen as the ECAC outstanding lineman for the second week in a row.

Pete, who now resides in Butler Hall, is a native of Clark Summit, Pennsylvania, where he attended Clark Summit High School. Pete played four years of football and four years of baseball and lettered in both while attending high school.

Upon graduating from high school, Pete then entered the 1957 freshman class at Wilkes. After completing one year, however, Pete set out to fulfill his military obligation and entered the Army for three years. With his tour of duty complete, Pete then returned to Wilkes, and to the good fortune of the Wilkes football team.

At Wilkes Pete also contributes his efforts to the basketball team, and he is currently president of the Lettermen’s Club. Now in his Senior year, the six-foot, 195 pound, Business Administration major has been receiving high acclaim as one of the most valuable linemen the Colonels have ever had.

In Saturday’s game Pete excelled on both offense and defense as he displayed the example of rugged grid play. On various occasions Pete raced through the trenches of Moravian, forward or backward, to completely stifle a coming Greyhound thrusts. After a series of Winebrake’s defensive work, the Moravian backs were a little more than slightly hesitant in running plays, and, through the middle of the line, Pete would not have been a surprise. Pete is not regarded as the spectacular hero who has his way through the line to throw the opposition for loss after loss. However, he is regarded as a steady defensive threat who seems to be at the right place at just the right time to wreak the hopes of his opponents.

As captain of the Colonel squad, Pete is an asset which the team is fortunate to possess. Pete feels that if the team produces in Saturday’s game with P.M.C. as it did last week, the outlook will surely result in a Colonels victory.

ASTROLOGY BOOK PROVES BOON IN NATIONAL GRID PROGNOSTICATIONS

by David Dusan

My new astrology book has proved to be an asset. By using the mystic star interpreter, I picked right and wrong last week, bringing my log to 10-8 for a .336 batting average.

This week, as football swings into its fourth big weekend, I am going to select a top ten, which will include the teams that I think are the top teams in the country. My selections are based on the number of games won by a team, the opponents these teams have faced, and now convincing the victories have been. Here is my top ten:

1. Oklahoma
2. Alabama
3. Texas
4. Navy
5. Wisconsin
6. Southern California
7. Georgia Tech
8. Pittsburgh
9. Northwestern
10. Penn State

BOUTERS DOWN MORAVAN, BOW TO E. STROUDSBURG IN 3-0 SHUTOUT AT HOME

Last week, the Wilkes College soccer team, which was ranked eighth in the country, faced both hard fought with teams that were quite evenly matched. The Greyhounds, exhibiting their best defense, were successful in keeping their opponents out of the goal. However, they were unable to score themselves, and the game ended in a goalless tie.

In the second period, the Ferrymen gained possession of the ball and were able to score on a free kick. The goal was the result of a well-timed pass from Bob Byrd to the goal. The following day, the Greyhounds faced another tough opponent, this time a team from Northeastern University. The game was played in front of a packed crowd, and the Greyhounds were able to defeat their opponents with a 3-0 shutout. The goals were scored by Bob Byrd, John Gough, and Mark Houghton. These victories brought the Greyhounds to a record of 7-1-1 for the season.
Gone culinary with journalistic touch.

This column may be called the Mulligan stew of journalism, containing a little bit of everything and not very much of anything.

Women's Hockey Team Shaping Up

That headline might be taken literally. Mrs. Scaricone is calculating a good year for the team. The figures in her estimate look pretty good to us. (What else could we say after their 5-0 victory over Marywood?)

Ted Travis-Bey, Colonel scatback, glittered in gold on Saturday. The "Bey" scammed yards for a TD on the opening kickoff of the second half, besides intercepting a pass and returning in several other fine runs for the afternoon.

Good Show By Second Team

Tom Trosko, generally a defensive quarterback, took over signal calling chores in leading the second string backfield deep into Moravian territory. Trosko performed admirably and gained once on a nice keeper for a first down. The team moved pretty nicely but stalled on a 4th and 1 situation close to the Greyhound goal line.

POCHEMUTI Retains Farm

Fullback Gary Popovich retained his excellent form last week in gaining 111 yards on 18 carries for a 6.2 yard average, and an ECAC outstanding back scroll. Not meaning to slight the rest of the team, we feel that the squad as a whole played a good game and lost a heartbreaker. As I understand it, there were several mix ups on plays sent in from the bench when the Colonels had driven deep into Moravian territory. In our opinion the score should have been more like 26-17 in favor of Wilkes.

To Scorn Or Not To Scorn

It may be well to state the policy of this page and this column. The page will contain news of the sports world which in the opinion of the sports staff is worthy of the attention of the student body. This column will contain, as an editorial, opinions of the sports editor and/or staff, little known facts, points of interest, etc.

I was asked by a member of the football team to adopt a policy of favorable publicity. I would like to say, I will adopt a policy which does not scorn the team mercilessly, but attempts to bring facts to view.

WOMEN'S HOCKEY TEAM DOWNS MARYWOOD; TO MEET MORAVIAN THIS AFTERNOON

The women's hockey team has embarked on its 1963 season, getting off on the right foot with a win over Marywood College in the initial contest 5-0. The team appears to be one of the strongest since its origin three years ago. There are seven members of last year's squad returning to lead a wealth of newcomers. It may be a little premature, but looking to prospects for next year, the future looks bright, as there is only one senior, co-captain Carol Pionte, on the current roster. Carol shares the captain's duties with Jo Signorelli, a junior.

The team practices nightly, except weekends, by means of scrimmages with such local high schools as Meyers, Wyoming Seminary, and C.A.R.

Mrs. Saracino, the team's coach, is looking forward to a bright season and is pleased with this year's turnout. She does wish more girls would take an interest in field hockey and other sports activities for women.

ECONOMICS CLUB

A unique feature of the Wilkes Economics Club is that it participates in a Stock Investment Plan. Richard Hohs, president of the club, stated that this system has been inactive for the past year. Raising money through dance and bake sales, a committee is set up to keep the stock market active. The process of Dr. Samuel Rosenberg, the club's opens, has been sold. The club hopes that the plan will be activated in the coming year.

Other officers of the club are Gerald Williams, vice president, and Joseph Biliontin, treasurer.

DEBATE SOCIETY

The College Debate Society recently heard Dr. John Huchler and Dr. Eugene Hammer, education professors, who offered "invaluable assistance in helping the Club to get a proper perspective on the organization of material for this year's topic on Federal aid to education.

Drifting the Society members on certain facets of the education world and giving a broad analysis of the overall picture of modern education, Dr. Huchler and Dr. Hammer provided a more lucid picture of education and its facilities.

Forty-Two Seniors Participate in Student Teaching Program

October 14 marks the beginning of the student teaching for 46 education majors. They will enter near-by schools in the Northeast region of I.C.G. Anyone may submit his opinion on current events or may comment on people and books that have in some way affected society. Karen Volgamore is managing editor.
