

Highlighting the Homecoming weekend was the crowning of Gail Roberts as Homecoming Queen, and Lorraine Dyers and Barbara Lore as princesses, at the Drexel-Wilkes football game.

During halftime, awards for the best Homecoming displays were presented. For the fourth consecutive year, Hollenback Hall received the best display award, and the best men's dormitory display award. Weckesser Hall won the award for the best woman's dormitory display, while the Education Club received the best organizational display award. An award for the best decorated car in the parade was won by the JC'S. Queen Gail then selected the winners of the Annual lettermen's Scholarship Raffle.

After all halftime awards and presentations were made, entertainment was provided by the Kickline and Majorettes to the accompaniment of the College Band. The Drexel Marching Band also demonstrated various types of Marching Bands.

Saturday evening consisted of two dinner dances. The alumni held one at the Host Motel, while the undergraduates gathered at the gymnasium for a catered affair.

LET'S DO IT BY CONVENTION

The Pennsylvania Constitution prevents the growth of industry, obstructs the attainment of judicial excellence, binds the executive to outmoded methods, and makes the legislature non-representative. These are just some of the problems caused by our basic document.

The constitution was written in 1874 as a result of the Civil War. It was written specifically for that period and is not adequate for our present age. Governor Scranton has said, "I feel very strongly that our state constitution is outmoded for the type of life that we have in the United States today and in Pennsylvania, particularly. I do think that it should be revised and very generally. My personal preference would be for a constitutional convention." In the Minority Report of the Pennsylvania Commission on Constitutional Revision, his opponent in the last election, Richardson Dillworth, and Miss Genevieve Blatt concurred in saying, "Our constitution is utterly inadequate. We urge that the legislature provide the necessary machinery for a general revision of the constitution rather than for piecemeal amendments."

How may the constitution be improved? One method is amendment, but this is slow. It takes at least three years to pass one amendment. Only a small number of amendments are considered by the legislature, and, of these, very few are able to pass both houses of the legislature twice and reach the ballot. The Woodside Commission on Constitutional Revision stated in its report that THE CONSTITUTION NEEDS 123 AMENDMENTS — 33 OF THEM CRITICALLY! This is in addition to the more than 60 that have already been passed.

We must make a basic choice; shall we patch up our constitution a little bit at a time or call a convention to write a document applicable to our modern society. We feel that the latter course is preferable.

Former Governor Lawrence in discussing revision by amendment said, "Amendments, after all, have a way of becoming quite specific and enormously detailed - and if there is one thing Pennsylvania's constitution does not need, it is more detail. Then, too, there is a natural tendency toward wordiness when documents are being amended piecemeal — and the constitution is verbose enough already."

A convention, on the other hand, would provide a method by which the whole document could be re-evaluated and re-written. It would offer the people of Pennsylvania a fast, efficient, democratic method to change their constitution.

The convention method has been endorsed by both major political parties and specifically by Governor Scranton, Senators Clark and Scott, and former Governors Fine, Lawrence, and Leader.

On November 5, we urge you to vote YES for a constitutional convention.

I. C. G. Assembly Enlightens Student Body On Problem of Constitutional Revision

by Virginia Todd

Pennsylvania, hampered by a post-Civil War Constitution that has earned such epithets as "poor," "doddering," "obsolete," "wasteful," "inadequate," has realized the need for improvement for the past number of a century. However progress in constitutional revision has been retarded by various proposals for diverse methods of revision. Representatives of organizations favoring the two most popular methods, revision by constitution and revision by amendment, debated the merits of their respective methods in yesterday's assembly.

Intercollegiate Conference on Government sponsored the assembly, which presented Attorney Reynold Kosek, in favor of constitutional revision by amendment, and Attorney Stanley Brockman, in favor of revision by constitutional convention.

Attorney Brockman is Secretary of the County Chapter for Constitutional Revision. He argued that a convention of non-partisan representatives elected specifically for the purpose of revising the constitution is the most effective method of revision coinciding with the democratic way of life. This portion is supported by Gov. William Scranton and former governor David Lawrence.

Alumni Elect Officers Recent Rains Offer No Relief For Drought-Plagued Eastern Penna.

The College Alumni Association recently elected the following officers: Leonard Mulcahy, president, class of '58; Att'y. Eugene Roth, vice-president, class of '57; Elmo Clemente, treasurer, class of '52; and Nancy Williams, secretary, class of '56.

Mulcahy is an accountant with Haskin and Sells Accounting Firm of Wilkes-Barre. Att'y. Roth is affiliated with the law firm of Rosenn, Jenkins, and Greenwald of Wilkes-Barre. Clemente is a Certified Public Accountant with the Charles S. Snyder Accounting Firm of Kingston. Mrs. Williams is a housewife residing in Dallas and was formerly employed by the Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Wilkes-Barre.

No relief is in sight for drought-plagued Northeastern Pennsylvania. The United States Weather Bureau Station at the Scranton-Wilkes-Barre Airport stated that the effect of the recent rains has been, for all practical purposes, negligible. The rains, it seems, have done little more than settle the dust; the problem persists.

According to a spokesman for the Pennsylvania Game Commission, Mr. Stephen Kish, all hunting and fishing and entry into state forests is prohibited. He said the water table is dropping, but there is no danger as yet to wildlife.

As of now there is no plan for refund of hunting fees for the 1,000,000 hunters in the state, but if the ban continues, the hunting season will probably be extended. Kish said that he was pleased with public cooperation on this matter.

Although experts disagree, it has been estimated that approximately three inches of rain during a short period would alleviate the problem.

No Imminent Danger

Mr. Rulison Evans, of the Pennsylvania Gas and Water Company, stated that there is no imminent danger of water shortage, but he advised discretion in its usage. He said, "Use all the water you need, but don't waste it."

Dr. Potter, of the Pennsylvania Department of Health, reported to the Beacon that some Pennsylvania cities have been forced to use secondary supplies of water because their primary water sources have dried up. He also stated there is no other danger to health as a result of the situation.

Mr. Louis Trax, of the Wilkes-Barre Fire Chief's office, stated that there has been a disproportionate jump in the number of brush fires in the city for the month of October. He reminds the public that there should be no burning of trash or leaves because of the obvious danger of these activities under drought conditions.

A spokesman for the Wilkes-Barre Park Department announced that city parks will remain open to the public as usual, but no fires will be allowed, and the public is cautioned to use care when smoking or using matches.

day afternoons. In the competitions there are several classifications for different types of sports cars and regular cars. The competition consists of speed trials through an obstacle course. The best time of each classification wins the race within his group.

The group hopes to have badges, which are being designed by Jan Petrick, by November 10 when they plan to enter a team in competition at Zayre's. Anyone interested in obtaining more information about the group, or anyone wishing to join the group, should contact Douglas Haughwaut.

Varsity Debaters To Compete In LaSalle Tournament this Afternoon

At 10:00 a.m. this morning, four varsity debaters departed for LaSalle College, 20th and Olney Avenue, Philadelphia. This afternoon, two varsity rounds will follow a coffee-and-donut social gathering and a briefing session at LaSalle.

At 9 o'clock tomorrow morning, a series of three power-paired rounds will commence. This session will see the most powerful debaters at the tournament competing against each other.

All participants in the tournament will have lunch in the College cafeteria. The same dining hall will be the scene of a banquet at 6:00 p.m. Seven permanent trophies will be awarded at this time. Recipients will be the three top debate teams and the two best-affirmative and best-negative speakers. The crew will return to the local campus late Saturday evening.

Brother C. Joseph will judge for the Wilkes team this afternoon. Miss Charlotte Lord, director of debate, will join the group tomorrow morning when she will take over on the judging.

SPORTS CAR ENTHUSIASTS PLAN CAMPUS ORGANIZATION

by Marshall Evans

"Tonneau-cover!" "Independent rear-suspension!" "Quad overhead camshafts!" Have you overheard students on campus discussing such subjects? If so, no doubt you have wondered what such things were. These terms pertain to sports cars, and the students who use these terms are either sports car owners or sports car enthusiasts.

Over the past few years sports car sales in the United States have been rising rapidly. The influx has also shown on the Wilkes campus for there are many proud sports car owners here. Because of the increased interest in sports cars, some of these proud owners are forming a sports car club on campus. Douglas Haughwaut is one of the students trying to organize such a club.

Douglas explained that the group not only welcomes owners of sports cars, but they would also like owners of other types of cars to join their group. The main object of the group is to form a team and to enter their cars in competition as a group.

Locally, the sanctioned contests are held at Zayre's in East End on Sun-

In Memoriam

We are gladdened by the death of a very good friend, a friend who in these arid weeks offered us many cathartic experiences. He succumbed in New York, Oct. 18, 19, and 20. His lingering illness was due to his altruistic desire to be heard. Unfortunately, he was misunderstood. People thought his only concern was for those who took him to dinner, those who enjoyed reading his mail, and those who lovingly put him to bed every Tuesday night. Now, he sleeps the sleep of the down-trodden apostle.

Due to the recent Associated Collegiate Press Conference, the editors who attended have decided to formally announce the death of the old BEACON and the birth of the new. This conception, mothered by Necessity, indirectly gave rise to a new philosophy, Beaconism. The adherents, called Beaconites, have postulated their own commandments:

- 1. We promise to take a firm stand on all issues brought to our attention that are of vital importance to the student body.
2. We promise to present a wider range of articles that are of interest not only to the student body, but to the student body as individuals interested in world events.
3. We will ENTHUSIASTICALLY support those events which have as their genuine purpose student unity.

At this conference, we discovered that there are three major problems on almost all campuses; namely, apathy, parking space, and cafeteria food. Since these problems are so "world-wide", we have decided to "define" them. We intend to dismiss the first, apathy, by working from the point of view that THERE IS NO APATHY ON CAMPUS. When this editor questioned people as to whether or not they were apathetic, all said no emphatically. Therefore, if no one deems himself "that way", then "it" does not exist!

However, the case is different with the other two problems. Since there seems to be no alternative solution, we are literally "stuck" with them. Should anyone have an idea concerning their correction, he should write us.

The new Beacon is also offering a new column, which was seen in the past few weeks. 'Rants 'n Raves' was instigated so that those students or faculty members who have more to say than the average 'Letter to the Editor' contains, may say it here. Those who wish to rant or rave don't necessarily have to sign their names to the articles, but should.

We hope that students take advantage of these changes, instead of sitting in the caf and discussing "what's wrong with this place." As college students we must take a step forward. The Beacon has opened the door. Step in.

The Apathetic Onlooker

Jack Hardie
Olsen Schroeder

Just yesterday we were speaking to John Alverzo, the foreign exchange student from Netcong, New Jersey about our column; John is our favorite Art major and mentioned that he had just come from an Art History exam.

'How'd it Gogh?' we asked. 'There!' accused John, 'Why can't you say things like that in The Onlooker? You don't even raise laughs in the cafeteria on Fridays anymore; nobody likes a crusader; c'mon down off it, you guys, off the high horse.' John had obviously prepared this speech for weeks; obviously delivered it in toto (an obscure East Peruvian dialect).

'But there's so much to be said and pointed out; answered our Olsen, 'college students seem to see life the way they read textbooks. They glance through the pages, memorize the trivia, and cram for exams with the Index. Few readers ever go more than a few pages deep into their lives and rarely encounter any meaning; there's some significance in the Biology department's practice of using one question in the Freshman exams for the student, to identify the author.' Olsen had prepared this for days.

'In a way this all reminds me of how we're going to write our next column,' mused Jack, a certain glow coming over his philosophic pallor. 'If History exams, for example, were approached with the vigour and enthusiasm of Homecoming displays, for example, certainly a greater number of our students would become alumni, and be coming home to see the displays.'

'Hogwash,' said John. 'Exactly,' we answered.

Intricate Persian Rugs Add Oriental Aura To Weckesser

by Leona Sokash

With the acquisition of Weckesser Hall the College also acquired a number of very valuable oriental rugs. Their worth is quite difficult to determine precisely, but if a tentative guess would be helpful in judging their significance, Dr. Michelini surmised that they could range from fifty to a hundred thousand dollars.

When some of the people of Weckesser were queried concerning the rugs, the responses varied from deep appreciation of their beauty and workmanship to Joanne Zuchoski's remark, "Actually, I didn't know we had any," and Margaret Gallagher's practical comment, "They slip."

The nine rugs are either of Persian or Chinese origin. The carpets of Persia crown the field of oriental rugs. They reach the zenith of perfection in their employment of various combinations of subtleties of color and in their hues which were not even attempted by craftsmen of other countries. These subtleties and combinations were harmoniously resolved throughout the carpet's design.

In general pattern the rugs are precisely plotted; and although designs may overlap, they do so in such a manner that they remain coherent throughout the rug.

Persian rugs are divided into various types and the Persian carpets in Weckesser are of the Kerman class. These carpets are characterized by their light surroundings.

The Chinese carpets are distinguished by their clearness and simplicity and especially by their wide, free, background spaces when contrasted with the tight concise design of the Persian rugs in Weckesser. The prevailing background color is yellow and the carpet in Dr. Farley's office substantiates this generalization. This particular carpet has, superimposed on its lemon background, rose, pink, and purple geometrically-styled vases and flowers spaced at regular intervals.

Oriental rugs generally have been esteemed throughout the ages. To the receptive mind, the display of color, design, and workmanship are especially attractive, and the carpets of Weckesser are no exception to this statement. Even the cruel, barbarous Tammerrane felt their magnetic hold, for he spared the rug craftsmen in order that they might be able to make carpets for his palace.

However, G.K. Chesterton's crime-solving, umbrella-toting Father Brown casts a "nay" vote. The plump little priest remarks, "I have seen wicked things in a Turkish carpet." (There must be a moral or something in this contrast.) And unfortunately, Weckesser has no Turkish carpets.

Professor Studies for Ph.D. at Penn State; Presently Writing Book On Logic In Math

by Helen Dugan

Mr. Boyd L. Earl is the newest addition to the Wilkes College mathematics department. He was born in Kingston, and he still lives there with his wife and two children. In his spare time, Mr. Earl likes to play chess and softball.

After completing his bachelor of arts at Wilkes, he went to Bucknell University where he received his masters degree. At present, he is working on his Ph.D. at Pennsylvania State University; this he hopes to achieve by next year. As he looks back to his student days, Mr. Earl remembers Wilkes as having a very pleasant atmosphere.

Introduction to Probability is the latest book that Mr. Earl has had published. His first book, Groups and Fields, was issued last year. Presently, he is working on Mathematical Logic.

Before coming to Wilkes, Mr. Earl taught at Bucknell University for six years. His reason for changing was simply that he liked Wilkes. He says that Wilkes has a good mathematics department, and he looks forward to working with his former teachers. Mr. Earl's special interest is in the area of topology.

When he first studied math in his freshman year in high school, he realized that it was what he wanted ance to him as an individual, and it has come to be of greater importance to many more people since the space race has begun.

On the whole, he says the classes he teaches at Wilkes show as much interest as any other classes he has taught "There is one class", he adds, "that I can say is the best class I've ever had."

Mr. Earl has lectured at such functions as the Pennsylvania Council of Mathematics Teachers and at many teachers' meetings in the Bucknell area.

'HALLOWEEN HOOT' TONIGHT

The gym's going to be decorated tonight! If you stop down to see it, while you're there stay for the Senior class dance, Halloween Hootenanny. If you come before 8 carrying a guitar, banjo, or other instrument, they'll let you in free, even. The hootenanny begins at 8 and will continue until 9 when the Rhythm Aces will take over. During intermission, there'll be another hootenanny.

Some of our campus celebrities will be disguised and a folk album will be awarded to the person who guesses the identities of all of them correctly.

And all this fun costs 50 cents, no more than any other Friday night dance.

Tredinnick's Inspiration Sparks CORE SIX STUDENTS FEATURED IN CLASSICAL CONCERT

by Andrea Templar

Four years ago, James Tredinnick was a cynical, agnostic, freshman, engineering major. Three years ago, James Tredinnick read a book entitled Black Like Me by John Howard Griffin. Griffin's book, telling of the sensations of being a Southern Negro, initiated a spark in Jim, who by now was beginning to accept Christianity, that was to grow into the flame eventually setting off a chain reaction of bonfires, both for Jim and for Wilkes.

Jim switched his major from engineering to psychology, aiming for acceptance into a seminary and eventually a parsonage in the deep South. All his further plans were directed toward this goal. He began following racial problems in Birmingham and other southern cities. And finally this past summer Jim got a chance to taste some of the problems of his future.

Takes Part In March

When Jim heard of plans for a march on Washington, he decided that his place was with the peaceful demonstrators. He went to Washington expecting to spend a few days and return to Wilkes-Barre, having had an enlightening, if uneventful experience. But fate had other designs on Jim. During the Washington demonstrations, a Negro minister from Danville, Virginia, asked for volunteers to march on that city, some one hundred miles from Washington. Jim, feeling his duty lay in Danville, hitch-hiked the hundred miles at night, slept in woods outside of Danville, washed and shaved in a near-by gas station, and appeared in Danville at 11 A.M. He immediately went to the Negro Baptist church where the demonstration was being planned. Inside the church thirty Negro students and two white students were informed how to carry out the two small demonstrations. The group Jim was in was instructed to go to the court house, passing inconspicuously through the streets, carrying small signs and buttons concealed under their clothing. They were told that police action would be brought against them, and that arrest was probable. They were instructed to go limp at the time of arrest and to allow themselves to be carried away to jail.

The eleven students and Jim went to the courthouse and began marching on the steps, singing "We Shall Over-Come", the national anthem of the Civil Rights Movement and "Black and White Together". In a few minutes the police arrived, informed them of their arrest, and literally carried them to jail. They spent two days in a prison farm, Negro and white in the same cells. They were transferred to the county jail for five days, taken back to the prison farm for an additional day, and finally set free on a two thousand dollar bail, provided by various Negro groups.

Out On Bail

James is now out on bail and must remain prepared to go back to Danville if the Federal Court which is scheduled to review the case decides to carry out the charges against him. He is charged with violating a city injunction against demonstration, inducing minors to commit misdemeanors, and resisting arrest. If the courts decide to review the case, Jim faces a heavy fine and a possible prison term.

Jim, however, being a singular young man, did not allow these forboding events to darken his bright outlook. When he settled down to Wilkes again, he found other students interested in the N.A.A.C.P., and now he and Margie Harris have become the backbone of the Wilkes chapter of CORE. Through CORE, Jim and other individuals like him, intend to set the foundations of what all people hope will be a new frontier in justice.

who feel that any attempt to revise the present outmoded constitution would result in another ineffective document bogged down in excess verbiage.

On the other hand, Mr. Kosek contended that since revision by amendment would necessitate public approval through referendum, it is the only way to construct a constitution that would put democracy into action without jeopardizing the rights of the people.

Six students of the Wilkes College Music Department will present a Concerto Recital Sunday. It will feature selections by Rachmaninoff, Bach, Sans-Saens, Kabalesky, and Mozart. The recital will commence at 4 p.m. in the College gym.

by Pauline Bostjancic

Recently, the Wilkes-Barre Philharmonic Orchestra, of which many Wilkes College music majors are members, presented its first community concert. A special feature of the concert was a performance by Tocco Fujii, an internationally known Japanese concert artist. She sang selections by Puccini and Rocini. This orchestra is under the direction of Mr. Ferdinand Liva, a member of the Wilkes College Faculty.

CHASERS

by Linda Edwards

National Defense Education Act student loan applications for the spring semester will be available in Mr. Hoover's office beginning Monday, November 4. The deadline will be Wednesday, November 27 at noon.

Because of the appropriation cut, loans cannot be guaranteed. Also students must remember that unless the applicant has a cumulative average of 2 he cannot be considered.

The Administration has already begun to plan for the 32nd annual open wrestling tournament which Wilkes sponsors every year. The tournament, which is the largest of its kind in the world, will take place December 27 and 28.

Riley's Resignation Accepted; Schimmelbusch Elected to Board

by Richie Kramer

The resignation of Pat Riley, a sophomore representative of Student Government, highlighted the meeting of that group on Tuesday evening. Miss Riley's resignation has created a vacancy in the sophomore representation which will necessitate a meeting of the class, on November 5, to nominate new candidates for the position. The members of the Freshman Class, it was indicated will also nominate officers on Nov. 5.

Following a report by the United Fund Committee, it was decided that the United Fund Campaign would be extended for another week to enable those members of the student body who have not yet made their contributions to do so.

Ruth Schimmelbusch, a junior French major, was unanimously elected to the Student Union Board, the group that is responsible for the maintenance and operation of that institution.

S.G. reviewed and accepted the constitutions of the Physics Club and the Wilkes chapter of C.O.R.E. and the budgets for these and other campus organizations were approved pending acceptance by the administration.

FOCUS SWITCHES TO WNAK

The subject of "Focus" for Sunday, November 3, should be one of interest to college students and the voting public alike. "The Proposed Amendment to the Pennsylvania State Constitution to Grant Loans and Scholarships to College Students" in the Commonwealth will be discussed.

"Focus" airs Sunday at 1:30 p.m. on WNAK.

Booters Victorious Over Mules; Suffer Defeat at Hands of Hofstra

Dick Morgan — these two words best describe last Wednesday's 6-3 victory over Muhlenberg. Setting a new scoring record of goals per game, Morgan boomed the ball into the net 5 times as the Colonels completely overpowered the Mules.

The first goal came midway through the first period when Morgan took a beautiful pass in front of Muhlenberg's goal and zipped the ball past the goalie. Not content with a one point lead, Dick stole the ball at midfield and headed toward the Mule's goal. His fancy footwork completely deceived the goalie, and Morgan scored again.

The Colonel defense, playing another outstanding game, once again stole the ball in the closing minutes of the first period. Morgan set himself before the opponent's goal, received the pass, and again outmaneuvered the goalie, splitting the net for his third goal of the period.

The second period saw a fierce battle between the enraged Mules and the stubborn Colonels. Each time Muhlenberg attempted a drive, the Ferrismen stepped in and took the ball away. Led by Al Cubanich and Dick Bucko, the Colonel defenders refused to yield to the hot-tempered Mules. With time running out in the half, the Wilkes booters set up their play and ended the period with Dick Morgan's fourth goal of the game.

Refusing to become complacent, the Ferrismen continued to maul their opponents in the third period. Two minutes after the opening whistle, Bob Eurich took a pass, sped down the sidelines, and iced the game with a 30-foot boot. Dick Morgan padded the margin four minutes later when he scored his record-setting fifth goal.

With a comfortable lead, Coach Jim Ferris decided to rest his starters and inserted some of the new men on the squad. Muhlenburg capitalized on the mistakes of the Colonel novices, and scored three goals in the period.

Not since 1953, when they defeated Lock Haven, have the Wilkes booters scored six goals in one contest. Morgan's five goals, of course, were instrumental in this win, but the fine passing of Walt Prusakowski and Al Gilbert and the 17 saves by goalie Lou Szabados should not be overlooked.

Lose to Hofstra

On Saturday, however, the soccer men got off to a slow start and suffered a 4-1 defeat at the hands of the flying Dutchmen of Hofstra University in the Homecoming event. The loss gives the Colonels a 2-4-1 log thus far this season.

Duplicating their 4-1 decision over the Colonels last year, Hofstra scored two goals within the first five minutes of play against goalie Szabados. Hobbled by an ankle injury suffered in a practice session Friday, Szabados was replaced by John Karpiak early in the game.

It was Karpiak's first varsity competition and he responded admirably to the situation, registering 21 saves in the game.

The Ferrismen were also without the services of right halfback Al Cubanich whose leg was broken in an inter-squad scrimmage last Thursday. The loss of these two stellar performers was very evident as the Colonels were unable to stop the Hofstra attack.

Wilkes scored its only point early in the third quarter when Bob Eurich picked up a cross by Dick Morgan. The Dutchmen, however, dug in and thwarted any further threats by the Wilkesmen.

The booters will play the last home game of the season tomorrow at 2 p.m. when they entertain Wagner in the College athletic field.

DICK MORGAN SELECTED "ATHLETE OF THE WEEK" IN MUHLENBURG CONTEST

by Merle Bolen

For the first time this year the BEACON is traveling to the Soccer team in search of a recipient of this week's "Athlete of the Week" award. Having long overlooked the fine performance of the Ferrismen we feel that their efforts are long overdue the recognition which it deserves.

Upon visiting the team the one name that seems to stand out above all is that of center forward Dick Morgan. An outstanding performer all year, Dick has proved his value to the squad many times. However, in last Wednesday's game with Muhlenburg he really outdid himself. Setting a new scoring record of goals per game, Morgan boomed the ball into the net 5 times as the Colonels completely overpowered their opponents for a 6-3 victory.

A well conditioned athlete, Dick always displays a maximum effort in both games and practice sessions. His hustle on the field has earned him three Stagg Awards and has led him to receive high acclaim as one of the finest soccer players Wilkes has seen in many years. Dick's leadership ability is evident having been chosen co-captain of the team. This can be seen by reviewing last year's games in which his efforts were awarded by receiving his letter for his stellar performance.

Dick is a native of Spring City, Pennsylvania, and now resides in Gore Hall. The 5 foot ten, 150 pound English major attended Phoenixville High School where he captained the basketball team and the cross country team. Also contributing his efforts to the track team, Dick holds letters in all three of these sports.

The skill displayed by Morgan on the field cannot be fully appreciated until one stops to think that he never played the sport before coming to Wilkes. Because of his capacity for leadership and inspired play, Dick Morgan has been selected as the BEACON "Athlete of the Week."

The Wilkes swimming team held their organizational meeting Thursday, October 31, after assembly. The team will begin regular swimming practice on Monday, November 4. Anyone interested in joining the team should contact Mr. Young at the YMCA or Jack Barnes.

Coach John Reese has expressed his dismay at the rather lean turnout at the initial practice session last Monday. Only 15 candidates appeared. Coach Reese remarked that he is in need of wrestlers at all weights, and especially in the heavier classes above 157.

Dick Morgan has won the "Stagg Award" for the 3rd time. Tom Trosko gained the nod for the football team, undoubtedly for his excellent performance against Drexel last Saturday.

The Drexel Dragons discounted a brilliant 67 yard touchdown run by Colonel quarterback Tom Trosko in coming from behind to hand Wilkes its 4th loss in 5 games by a 23-14 margin last Saturday.

The Wilkes team was worn down by the Dragons until the Philadelphia institute finally exploded for two touchdowns and three extra points in the final stanza, and just about defeating all hopes of an anticipated stellar season. The cause for the Colonels being ground away was attributed to the fact that several key players were on the injured list.

Among the injured last week was speedy halfback John Gardner who saw limited action, and stalwarts Ed Comstock, Frank Wallace, Ralph Hendershot, and Ed Brominski.

Tomorrow Wilkes faces Juniata. Last season the Indians scaped the Colonels 21-14 in overcoming a late Wilkes rally which saw Wilkes lose the ball on the Juniata 14 yard line.

The Indians are under new leadership, with Fred Prender in his first year as head coach. Prender will be trying to live up to last year's 6-2 record. It is hoped that Coach Schmidt of Wilkes will be able to overcome the injury jinx which seems to be plaguing the Colonels.

ROAD RUNNERS WIN 33-0;

BUTLER HALL VICTORIOUS

The Road Runners clinched a virtual tie for the Independent League by defeating a strong Rummy's team 33-0. The Road Runners used their defense to full advantage as they picked off 5 enemy passes. Gionetti, Covalim and Balewski were outstanding on defense. The Road Runners have not been scored upon in three games.

In the Dorm League, Butler Hall played a tough Miner Hall squad and emerged victorious 26-6. Butler is now in contention for the Dorm title as they moved within one game of league leading Barre Hall.

Other results were: Barre over Ashley 19-13; Butler over Miner 27-6; Rummy's over Spartans 20-12; Road Runners over Macedonians 25-0.

BIG REWARDS FOR SHOPPING AT THE HUB

3.95 - 5.00

The college campus is a place of great contrasts, and possibly the most striking of these is the great variation in student attire. Most colleges, whether large or small, contain a number of distinct social groups which may be differentiated by their dress as well as their esthetic interests and beliefs. An analysis of these groups, therefore, provides down, oxford dress shirt. Clothesmen admittedly prefer a pin-striped shirt which they find in both bold and reserve stripes in the furnishings department of the Hub.

Many western campuses exhibit the growing importance of a faction which we shall designate as the Fringe group.

Fringe men were found to discuss Vance Packard, Cassius Clay, and the state Liquor Control Act, but they failed to show ANY interest in compulsory assembly attendance or Dr. Reif's labels for trees. By far the most distinguishing mark of the Fringe man is his preference for sweaters which may range from bulky pullovers to casual vest types. The most wanted item on the Fringe Man's shopping list this season is the zippered jacket sweater. This sweater is available in a great variety of colors and patterns at the Hub's sweater bar.
