Library Plans Progress Rapidly

by Mary A. Quinn

The College has immediate need of additional library facilities. The recent, tremendous growth of our enrollment of both full and part-time students is evidenced by the stepping-up of construction plans. According to the College Director of Development, Walter Mohr, "We have literally grown out of our library facilities."

Construction has been slated to get under way in the near future. The tentative completion date has been timed to the beginning of the spring semester of the 1967-68 school term.

The structure will be located on the corner of South and Franklin Streets, its main entrance facing the present cafeteria. The allotted site encompasses the present parking lot of Ginn, Ginn Hall, and the entire area of the South Franklin Street entrance to the Christian Science Building, which the College has recently purchased. Although Ginn Hall will be torn down, the Christian Science Building will remain intact and its function in relation to the College will be designated at a later date.

The architectural design has evolved into a "modified Victorian" style, consistent with the general appearance of the other recent constructions of the College. The structures will be intensively concentrated, using special lighting and air-conditioning systems in order to accommodate the spaciousness of window-exposure space.

The building will be five stories, although it will give the impression of being three stories. This is due to the sub-level area, and the deceptive top floor, which has all the characteristics of a Victorian roof. The 60,000 square feet area will contain vital facilities in the disciplines of the Arts.

The library will have a maximum accommodation of 300,000 volumes, with adequate study areas provided for 600 students, requirements for national accreditation.

Due to the promptings and financial support of various local organizations, provisions will be made for "memorial" rooms, designed to enrich the cultural background of the institution.

The extensive campaign for the additional library facilities to which this construction has already amounted to great proportions. As Walter Mohr stated, "Thus far, in the early stages of this 1966 library campaign, more money has been pledged than in any previous campaign in the history of the College."

Fliss Hits Hoot Failure

Dear Editor:

The third annual Wilkes College Hootenanny was a financial failure. The reason for this is not the fault of the Hootenanny, but rather the fault of those who did not support the Hootenanny. I believe that this is the reason why the Hootenanny was a failure.

The Hootenanny was a failure because the students did not support it. The students did not purchase tickets, even though the tickets were for a good cause. The students did not contribute to the Hootenanny, even though it was a great event. The students did not attend the Hootenanny, even though they could have had a good time.

I believe that the students were not interested in the Hootenanny because they did not realize its importance. They did not understand that the Hootenanny was a way to raise money for a good cause. They did not understand that the Hootenanny was a way to support the students who were working on the Hootenanny. They did not understand that the Hootenanny was a way to have a good time.

I believe that the students should have supported the Hootenanny. They should have purchased tickets, contributed to the Hootenanny, and attended the Hootenanny. They should have realized that the Hootenanny was a way to raise money for a good cause, support the students who were working on the Hootenanny, and have a good time.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Sincerely,

We think it is time that the people of America realized that it will not be long before the United States is confronted with the decision of whether to support the U.S.S.R. or Red China. We believe that the United States should support the U.S.S.R. and Red China.

We feel that the decision of whether to support the U.S.S.R. or Red China will have a direct effect on the world. If we support the U.S.S.R., the world will be more stable. If we support Red China, the world will be more unstable.

We urge the people of America to support the U.S.S.R. and Red China.

Thank you for your time.

FLISS' POLICY INCLUDES NEW TUTORIAL PROJECT
by Paula Elke
In a recent Beacon interview, the newly-elected Student Government, Matt Fliss, was quoted as having the best for next year.

During the interview Fliss stated that he hoped to initiate a tutorial program on campus. Toward that thought he promises this he has made considerable progress and has issued the following statement:

"After doing some initial research on other college's tutorial programs for the past year, I came up with a good opportunity for the students of a Wilkes College tutorial program. The Wyoming Valley Council of Churches in cooperation with the local Office of Economic Opportunity, has set up a tutorial program for disadvantaged workers. This program will run from June 15 to November 15. Of the services of this tutorial program involves the establishment of a tutorial program. I am primarily concerned with the tutorial part of the program. The program is as follows:

1. Last year the college was given a grant by the Office of Economic Opportunity. The jobs which this program provides somehow reinforce education, helping the student in things as well as a college student would wish.

Books Chosen For Program
by Chris Sula
Next fall, Student Government will sponsor the third reading program by incoming freshmen. Matt Fliss, chairman of the Student Government program is "to foster understanding in incoming freshmen (while putting management to work)." Student moderators will be notified of their acceptance by mail sometime next week. They will be chosen on the basis of their evaluation of the ability of the president and director. The orientation for the teachers will probably be held before the first week of classes.

The books chosen are Edith Hamilton's The Greek Way, James B. Conant's The Changing of the Colleges, Brian Vickers With Giants, The Prophet, and a book concerning Negro relations in America still to be chosen.

The committee studies the roots of our culture and concepts in Greek thought. Cencer's book demonstrates how the empirical inductive approach and theoretical deductive approach influenced the United States and European concepts of law and education. This book provides a philosophical explanation of the value of education.

The criterion for choosing the books was a variety of approaches. The committee's general forum and a broad outline of information to both science and humanities majors. Most of the books are available in other paperback or expensive hard bound editions.

Chairman Fliss said that he would like to thank Miss Lord, Dr. Rosenbuch, Mrs. Mitchelc, co-chairmen of Math, Science, and English Group, come their help and cooperation.

Teachers to Study, Tour, Visit, in Foreign in Colleges
by Steve Kish
It seems that every year near the end of the semester the cafeteria turns toward the long-awaited summertime fun and food. We students ask each other where we're going and what we will do for the next three months of bliss. Does anyone ask the instructors and professors how they will spend their vacations?

It might interest you to know that four of our faculty members will be spending their vacations in various foreign countries. They are: Miss Olson of the sociology department, Mr. Valerino and Mr. Sweary of the modern language department, and Miss Lash of the English department. The countries they will visit include: Spain, Italy, France, Germany, and Okinawa. Miss Olson, who will not return to the College, plans to spend some time in the Far East. In her travels she will visit a number of the Philippines. This being her second trip to that part of the world, her trip might be of interest to those of us who might be planning a visit to the Philippines.

Mr. Quay, from her plans is that those of Mr. Valerino who plans to return from Italy, France, and Germany later this spring.

The Committee on Academic Integrity has made considerable progress since last fall. This fall, the committee is composed of five representatives from the administration, the faculty, and the student body. It represents the first time on campus that the faculty and students have joined on an equal basis.

The general purpose of the committee is to study the responsibility of the three groups toward each other and toward the College itself. This responsibility is studied in terms of the College's Constitution, By-Laws and Regulations.

Since October the committee has been involved mainly in what might be called fact-finding, that is, doing research on what other campuses with similar problems have done. It is working toward decisions about what to do.

One of the main questions now being studied is the possibility and feasibility of the initiation of an honor code on campus. Much research has been done with regards to variations in the honor code system. Live the degree to which the character of a college affects the function of the honor code system. However, the practical question that is being asked is the possibility of the initiation of an honor code system on campus.
Alice is so impressed by the finished product that she decides to con- tinue the BEACON’S advisors. She goes to Canyonville to complain about the current situation. While there, she informs her that she’s been replaced by a new advisor. So Alice trounces down to Williams’ Building, to find, to her consternation, that there is no advisor. Turning to Mr. Wallison, Alice then travels to Woodland for another con- ference with Mr. Wallison on his advisorty, but he refused credits. As this chapter concludes, we leave the BEACON’S advisor in the game of BEACON. Rockets, perhaps, the clue goes to Dr. Cox! Dr. Fuely!

A slightly numbed Alice is now standing on the roof of the Cressett Car. She steps to the roof and stands in the cowl of the building. She then looks at the clouds overhead and plans her escape from the cowl. Alice is determined to get her story. She is prepared to make her escape from the cowl of the building. She then walks toward the clouds and plans her escape.

A man in the breeze is worth a bath on the beach.

An air of tenseness and excitement pervaded the college as the students eagerly awaited the arrival of the new advisor. The air was broken by the tingling of bells and the sounds of students trumpeting in the background. Alice, recognizing the opportunity, made her way to the beach. She watched the sky as the sun set in the distance and the colors of the sky changed to a brilliant orange and red. Alice was pleased with her new advisor, and she knew that she would be able to continue her work.

Miss Mary Lynne Strevell was chosen as the College's "Best Dressed Coed" in the fashion contest conducted by A.M.S. for Glamour magazine.

The unexpected suspension of Dr. Vincent McCrossen as head of the English Department sparked the most controversial campus issue of the school year.

"Hurt Thinking"

As a student body (act- ually, ony one-fifth of you were interested enough in demo- cratic processes to vote, or you just didn't know about the election because you weren't in assembly) chose me as a senator. In selecting me, you have in effect said, "His program is good and my ideas coincident, so let me vote on this basis, or if you voted on appearance or person- ality, or if you did not vote you have excluded yourself from any choice of ideals or values. You thereby, theoretically, have no say in the government. As you can judge, I'm not a policy- making jerry-rigged outfit, you have a responsibility to look at me personally, you have a right to think, to meet as a group, to decide as a group, to have a legal right to vote, to contribute."

You should do the same for me."
Netnen Down Royals, 5-4, For 2nd Win

The Wilkes Nettens faced the Scranton Royals for the second time this season on our home court Saturday. With a record of 1-6 the Colonels hoped to boost their victory column. Earlier in the season the Colonels defeated Scranton on their home court.

Spurred on by the preliminary victory of Tom Robitz in singles competition the Colonels managed to square off with a 5-4 edge. Other victories against Scranton included those by Klein and Myers in singles, Klein and Robitz and Pokorik in doubles. Tomorrow the Colonels face Moravian on our home court at 2 p.m.

Wilkes Edges Stevens, Bombed by Moravian

The Colonels' hardballers, behind the stellar hurling of Rick Klick, edged Stevens Tech 9-7 last Saturday afternoon at the Wilkes Athletic Field. Klick who is now 3-1 on the year, had a no-hitter going into the seventh when Stevens Anderson connected with a triple for the visitors' first hit. Klick's only loss came at the hands of Harpur by a 4-2 margin.

The Colonels, who are now 4-8 on the year, scored a single run in the second inning after Joe Ladomirak, our leading hitter with 2 for 4, singled, moved around an error and a fielder's choice, and scored on an error by the catcher.

Wilkes scored twice in the eighth when Barry Tiras singled and John Klick reached base on an error. After a fielder's choice play, Tiras scored on a single by Joe Skvarla and Klick came home on an outfielder's throwing error.

Stevens came up with a run in the seventh and one in the ninth to fall one short of tying the Colonels.

The Colonels had six hits to Stevens five.

Colonels Bombed

A week ago Thursday, the Colonels were swamped by a strong Moravian nine, 14-2.

Pet Sweeney started on the mound for the Colonels, but was lifted after giving up 11 runs. Two other Colonel pitchers, Ladomirak and Bauer, helped to stem the tide, but the damage was already done and all efforts to close the gap were in vain.

The Colonels' defense was not up to usual high standards. In addition, the hitters were held back in the seventh inning and later by Moravian pitching until late in the contest.

The Colonels played Albright and Susquehanna on Wednesday and Thursday, but due to the Beacon's deadline they were not reported.

Tomorrow the Colonels host Dickinson and play the Alumni on Saturday, May 21, to close out the season.

BEACON GIVES AWARD TO KLIck

This week the Beacon picks senior Rick Klick as "Athlete of the Week". Klick's stellar performance on the mound has been excelled only by his batting performances.

Currently carrying a 3-1 pitching record, Klick's single defeat was inflicted by a strong Harpur team. At bat Klick is an ever-present danger to opposing pitchers. He is presently hitting .365.

While at Kingman High School, Klick was a letterman in football, basketball, and baseball. He paced his high school baseball team to the Lebanon Valley Central League Championship for two years in succession. Klick is a business administration major, who will enter the business world upon completion of his army service. During the summer he plays for the Swweyerville baseball team in the Susquehanna League. He feels that his participation in this summer league has given him invaluable experience in baseball. Judging from his record, it is apparent that it has.

In the Middle Atlantic Conference tournament held at Lebanon on Monday, the Colonels made a better showing than anticipated. They finished 5th in a field of 24. In this tournament, however, there are no separate divisions for large or small colleges and the Colonels came out as one of the better small colleges.

The tournament was captured by Lebanon, david of champions, La Salle. Following Lebanon by 3 strokes was Franklin and Marshall, with Bucknell 3 strokes behind. Scranton won the dual competition Susquehanna over Delaware Valley by 3 strokes. The Middle Atlantic Conference will be in session until further notice.
