Summer programs planned for college

by Judy Rock

Plans are under way for three programs (two of them are still tentative) which will begin at the College this summer and extend to the following school year.

The public relations department has announced a Williams-Lough Cooperative Program in Graduate Education. In discussions between the administrators of the two institutions it has been agreed that during this summer and fall, three Lough classes in graduate education will be offered at this College by combined faculties. Each of these classes will be applicable for credit toward a master's degree at Lough.

This summer a five-week course in directing dramatics for the high school stage will be offered at the College Fine Arts Center. The course will carry six credits toward a master's degree at Lough. The course is designed for high school drama teachers to develop and supervise dramatic programs in the high school.

During the 1967-68 college year, two courses in the foundations of education will be offered at the College in conjunction with Lough. The first will be in the fall term and the second in the spring term. Each term will carry three credits which may be used. These new courses offered at the College will supplement the present graduate course in education for teachers offered at Wilkes by Temple University.

These graduate programs will give teachers in this region a greater opportunity to obtain a master's degree without leaving the area.

Members of the education department are waiting for the final word on projects for two programs which are designed to begin this summer. The first of these programs is Project Upward Bound, which will be directed by Dr. Eugene L. Hammer. This six-week program will begin in the second term of the summer session. It is designed especially for those high school students who have academic promise, but not the financial resources to go to college. The aim of the project is to give these students a desire to further their education; it will provide them with the remedial and developmental help needed. About fifty students, sophomores and juniors, from the country will be accepted into the program on recommendation from their teachers, principals, and the like.

They will live on the College campus for the six-week period and will receive individualized help in reading, composition, math and science. Once a month during the 1967-68 school year, these students will be invited back to the College to attend a cultural event. It is hoped that the special attention given to these youngsters will have some effect on their future plans.

The second program will be directed by Mr. George Siles. Plans for this program were begun when The Institute for Better Schools, Philadelphia, invited the College to participate in a program designed to remove area

Edward Wallison, faculty advisor of the Beacon, recently announced that Dr. Junius Hammer, chairman of the education department, has been selected as editor-in-chief of the 1967-68 publication.

The editorial staff includes Paula Elke, senior English major, as editor; Carol Gass, senior psychology major, as news editor; and Bruce Fritzges, sophomore history major, as feature editor. Robert Thompson will serve as sports editor; Beverly Crane will perform the duties of business manager; Lorraine Sokash will undertake the duties of copy editor; and Chris Sulat will serve as assistant copy editor.

Frey, a graduate of E. L. Meyers High School, was a member of the Crescent Educational Council and has served as Student Government election chairman. He has also been a member of the freshmen reading program and the assembly committee for two years. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert S. Frey, 25 Mallery Place, Wilkes-Barre. Frey plans to serve the Peace Corps after graduation.

Miss Elke has worked on the staff for the past three years, having served as a reporter in her freshman year, copy editor in her sophomore year, and editorial assistant this year. She has also been a member of Women's Chorus, Miss Elke, a graduate of E. L. Meyers High School, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Elke, 8 Phoenix Street, Wilkes-Barre. She plans to enter corporation journalism after graduation.

Thompson, a senior history major, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William L. Thompson, 1 Ellenton Street, Nanticoke. He has served as a reporter, a member of the Executive Council, and basketball manager, each for three years. He is a member of the Lettermen's Club. The Junior College served as historian this year, and the freshman orientation committee. Thompson, a graduate, was senior class president, and Miss Gass has been on the staff for the past three years, having held the positions of exchange editor and copy editor. She has participated in freshman orientation and the tutorial program at the "Y," has served as an usher for Cot's Curtain plays, and has been a member of the psychology club. Miss Gass, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Sokash, 207 Firewood Avenue, Wilkes-Barre. She plans a career as a secondary teacher in French and Spanish.

Miss Sulat has served on the staff for two years and held the position of exchange editor this year. She was secretary of her freshman class and served on the Executive Council. Last year she took part in the freshmen reading program and orientation, and for two years has served on the women's hockey team and manager of the women's basketball team. Her other activities include membership in the sorority and on the varsity Chorus, having served in the Class of 1968.

The Twentieth Annual Commencement program for the Class of 1967 will begin on Thursday, June 1, with the Senior Dinner-Dance at the Hotel Stirling. The dinner-dance is scheduled to begin at 6:30 p.m. and last until 12:30 a.m. A formal assembly for graduation will take place in the gymnasium on Friday, June 2. Following the rehearsal, the new graduates will be called to the assembly. Class pictures will be taken and the permanent officers of the Class of 1967 will be elected.

Dr. Farley's farm will be the setting for the class outing on Saturday afternoon. A barbecue will be held from 2 p.m. until 6 p.m.

The Nautical Sportsmen will meet at 5 p.m. on Sunday, June 3.
It has always seemed unnatural that the year should end on December 15. Though our semester is at the midst of the school year. To those of us oriented to a school calendar, the year properly begins in September and ends now, and now is the time to celebrate, to plan, and especially to reflect.

Upon reflection, we can say that it has not been a bad year altogether. The campus has been busy, though it maintained its usual quiet repose, was shaken by the Tangerine uproar and the rumored sale of the whole campus. And now the All-Schools Bulletin, an upsetting incident for all concerned, resulted in the formulation of written policy concerning post-season games as well as other possibly controversial new policies and further embarrassing incidents of this type will probably not occur. We might conclude that the sensation caused originally justified by the constructive action that resulted from it.

Unhappily, however, the Honor System, which was carefully and thoughtfully researched and then implemented, does not seem to have had so long a time to begin its campaign for a active SG.

The BEACON, too, has had its ups and downs, and we sincerely hope that next year’s staff—ably headed by David Fryer, Paula Elke, Carol Glass, Bruce Fritzges, Bob Thompson, Tom McArthur, Edith Hoffman, and a host of others—will use our successes and take a lesson from our mistakes as part of the foundation for their newspaper.

Dear Editor:

As both president of Juniata-IRC and a member of the Council of Club Presidents, I support Student Government and its intended role at the College. Both of these articles on Student Government policy I have found to be emotional statements disregarding a constructive analysis of the situation. Disregarding all referents to Senator or any other member of this magazine generated by both a lack of enthusiasm by student leaders for the Initiative and by caucasial editors in the Beacon offer neither a progressive Student Government nor a solution to an apathetical one. Until such a time that the student body and its government representatives are willing to support and put into effect constructive revisions in the written and unwritten codes of student activities, no person from the College community has the right to either criticize or praise Student Government.

Sincerely,

John T. Engle}

Dev leaves with shantih

Before I leave, I must thank once again the management of the Philip, for the kind publicity they gave me. My greatest thanks are also due to my esteemed friend, Professor Studs Muy-Jaui, chairman of the philosophy department, who has been directly responsible for my hurried intellectual excursion to Wilkes.

I do not know how to reciprocate the love and affection of the Wilkes students, men and women, which I will carry with me as a precious treasure.

With much love and good-bye, and wish you all good luck.

What are the purposes of a campus newspaper? I’ve heard them from the students, faculty, and administration. But I don’t think I need to go into the details of what the Beacon does. I do, however, suspect that this role be defined, clarified, and strengthened to make it clear to the student body what the Beacon is and what it stands for.

May, 1967

YESTERDAY WAS FOUR YEARS BACK IN OUR LIVES. THE YEARS ABOH WILL LINGER ALWAYS IN OUR THOUGHTS AS WILL THE PEOPLE WE KNEW. FELICIA AND HERBERT WERE INTENDED AS LOOKING- GLASSES, PEERING INTO THE LIVES OF THOSE AROUND US. THE SHORT PARAGRAPHS CAME OUT OF RAINY SUNDAY MORNINGS AND SIMON AND GARBENKUL AND LONG WALKS BY THE SEA. THE TITLE MAY HAVE BEEN A PROMISE TO SOMEONE IN THE ALL-TO-DISTANT PAST.

IT WAS LAUGHTER AND SADNESS, BUT FOR NOW IT HAS ENDED, AND TOMORROW IS A NEW DAY.
Joe Gatto promises to reunite SG
by Joe Gatto
As president of the student body of the College for the upcoming year, I plan to fulfill the following campaign promises:

First, there is need for a restructuring of Student Government. Presently the SG constitution is vague and ambiguous. Non-functional committees such as the Court of Appeals will be replaced by a single Appeals Board. Vigilance in the SG will be maintained by all student body members.

Secondly, I propose a solution to the problem of student apathy through the workings of a newly-formed organization called the Student Council of Presidents. I would like to explain the actual purpose of this Council, since there seems to be much confusion among the students. The Council of Presidents was created by SG, in order to help fulfill the school's efforts. Since the Council is not financially independent, SG has extended a loan to the Council, and will initiate its programs. This loan was extended with the understanding that any profit generated will be returned to the SG student body. Finally, I wish to say that I can only supervise and represent SG, I cannot be SG. I need the support of the members of SG and they in the same way need your support.

Junius-IRC plans picnic
A seminar for political science and history majors and their professors will be held on Tuesday, from 3 to 5 p.m. in Stark Hall. The principal speaker will be Michael Chadbuck, assistant secretary, Embassy of Czechoslovak Socialist Republic, Washington, D.C. His topic was the Czechoslovak playing card. A question and answer period followed.

A picnic for Junius-IRC members and visitors is scheduled for tomorrow, from 2 to 5 p.m. on Wecker's lawn. The event will take place rain or shine.

Amongst eighty members in the History 102 course were successfully elected as officers in the Western Civilization and American sectional. This program will be extended next year to include tutors for students in Western Civilization and American History, and the interested student should keep this in mind.

Roses

The music department in conjunction with the Dramatic Arts and the English Department are presenting the season with a strongly musical version of The Threepenny Opera. Directed by Richard Chamberlain with piano accompaniment by John Verbalis, the Curnin closed on Saturday night, January 14. The entire cast is composed of SG members.

The socialist opera was produced and directed by Richard Chamberlin, with piano accompaniment by John Verbalis. The performers' accomplishment set the fine musical tone of the opera and carried forward the perfect timing which was the hallmark of the performance. Especially notable was the ensemble of the opera, this production stressed the musical aspects of the piece. With a cast of excellent musicians, the music was thoroughly pleasing. The harmonious onom-amount of middle, low and high voices, combined to produce a beautiful sound. The audience was thoroughly pleased and enjoyed the musical aspect of the play.

I would like to say that the music was a fine aspect of the performance, as was the acting, which was much better than expected. The music was well written and performed, and the acting was well timed, making the performance a success.

The theatrical season at the College ended Sunday, May 7, with the Music Department in association with Curnin presenting John Gay's The Beggar's Opera. According to Miss Charlotte Lord's lively and informative playbill, the Beggar's Opera is a high society by comparing it to the underworld. In fact, the songs of the opera contain the most colorful and raunchy lyrics that ever adorned the stage. The Beggar's Opera is a satirical attack on the Italian opera which had enterprisingly invaded London and was at that time enjoying a great vogue.

The reviewer feels that the musical aspect of the opera was perhaps its most outstanding part. The Madrigal Singers have their voices in fine form and the orchestra is well directed.

The play's outstandingly remarkable man of business, who happened to be a fencer in real life, was Mr. Peachum, played by Miss Peachum. (Note that the titles for the characters reflect Ruddy's punning sense of humor.) Miss Peachum made a very pretty Polly, and her throaty voice for MacHeath provided the basis for the tender moments of the play.

MacHeath, the leader of the highwaymen and other rogues-about-town, turned out to be more baritone than actor. George Stair's mellow resonant voice fit into the part well and although his acting was enthusiasm, it was not as good as those mentioned above.

Lucy the lair, was played by Dennis English who was notable for his expert stage movement. On the other hand, he played his character with ease, and his portrayal of Polly was excellent. His performance was received with enthusiasm and praise.

Overall, the audience enjoyed the production, and all are looking forward to next year's play.
Battle Cry

In the clear blue skies over Germany came a roaring and a thunder that’s been never heard, like the screaming sound of a jet plane (with the 1812 Overture as background music).

While we’re on the subject of war, remember the exams? Which would stress us out a bit. But when we wake up we can’t believe it was even a bit bizarre, but in Camden that’s how conditions are. (To be read with perception of the obvious symbolism.)

This year’s production in association with the Kiwanis Club was an enormous success both artistically and financially. Maybe this compliment doesn’t belong in a satirical review, but we need something about now for relief.

A little gauzy

Plus weather continued, ironically, we feel, during registration. After all we feel that nature should support us symbolically when he is being psychologically destroyed: Remember King Lear. It’s true, the English were herded in like cattle an insignificant thing, but remember those express box cars during W.W.II – we certainly do. Then you have to face the same lousy prof who gave you a D in the 101 course and sign up for his 162 course. The weather was a mixed blessing anyway since two-thousand people jammed into a gym already filled to overflowing with sweetbreads can make things more than a little gauzy.

Honors Code! Study in futility. But a system that gives you the chance to make the ideal the real, the best of all possible worlds. No ugly pragmatism here. Those who supported the honor code were very open-minded – as far as I know while we were in pay grades.

Variations on “Yours, Please!”

There is a season for everything. Now’s the time to get serious. (But don’t worry; it’s a short season.) For the first time in many years, the College had another Shakespearean production, OTHHELLO. Which showed not only why the Bard is the Bard but also the talents of several members of Crew ‘n Captain. Just as CAMELOT was the theatrical high point of last semester, OTHHELLO was the high point of this semester.

Another tragedy this year was the increase in tuition. In spite of all the examples of feminine.pulpititude (so the cliches are getting worse?) Homecoming Queen, Maurice Savage, Snow Queen, Liz: Slaughter: Valentine Queen, Alicia Ramsey; and Cinderella, Danielle Allan. We had our dark spots like exams, registration, snow and oh those awful Mondays. (Monday! Monday! can’t trust that day.) But all in all it was a good year, and not theire, stupid. We had fun, we cried, we laughed.

As we were saying before we ran off on this tangent concerning satirical savagery, the finale – that’s the election changed the course of things. And everyone had to say that was a success. And for sure, the administration was rather pleased with the result. We had a free, open, fair election and no one was killed or hurt.

Crowning highlights
Cinderella festivities
by Irene Norkulis
When the clock struck midnight, Miss Diane Alfaro as queen, a gathering of over three hundred students and faculty witnessed the defeat of the castle's social season last Friday evening at the Cinderella Ball. The formal affair was held in an elegant blue and white setting at the Irene Temple Country Club.

The anxiety and preparations that had been portrayed by Harry Rusin, president of the senior class, and Miss Charlotte Lord, member of the College's English department, Dr. Francis Michelini, dean of Academic Affairs, presented to the queen a dress long-stemmed roses and presented to each of the queen's court a bouquet of flowers.

Miss Alfaro, chosen queen by the student body, was crowned by last year's Cinderella, Miss Marie Persic. The new queen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gustavo Alfaro, will enter the teaching profession after graduation. Diane, a graduate of West Chester State Senior High School where she was active in dramatics and an honor student, continued her interests at the College. She is active in 'Car in Curtain' and Interdepartmental Council, was president of her dormitory council, and was chosen 'Snowflake Queen' at the 1965 Winter Carnival.

First up on the menu was Miss Maureen Savage, daughter of Mrs. Eleanor Savage, Wyoming Avenue, Exeter, Miss Savage, who is in her third elementary education, has been active in the education club, secretary-treasurer of the Northeast Region of SPSEA, cheerleader and captain of that squad and secretary of WAA.

Members of the queen's court included Tanya April, Glen Lyon, North Park, G. Lee Rock, New Jersey; Judy Mischelitz, Wilkes-Barre; Darlene Moll, Pottsville, New Jersey; Barbara Simon, Mountain Top, Mary Lynn Sorell, Highland Park, New Jersey; Cleryl Tillery, Pittston; Dorothy Zawodni, Wilkes-Barre.

The music was provided by the Glen Michael Orchestra. Troupchiorship proficiency was exhibited by students and faculty, and Dr. Charles Reddick, director of the College's choirs, directed the College Choir under the baton of his partner, Dr. W. W. Mulk, president of the College.

On Thursday evening April 27, the Wilkes College Chemistry was in session, a simple hour on that topic was presented.

More letters to editor
Dear Editor:
Bulletin: Another step forward in the constant effort to improve teaching methods at the College, Students, remember the good old days in high school when you'd work for a half hour on a math problem, only to make a simple error in arithmetic and have the whole thing marked wrong? Well, happy days are here again! The math department has just made known its intentions of giving a multiple choice (multiple guess, if you prefer) final in 101. Just think, lucky students, for three exciting hours you can choose among A, B, C, D, E, F, G, H, I, J, K, L, M, N, O, P, Q, R, S, T, U, V, W, X, Y, Z.

The math department must have been spurred into such an innovation by its overwhelming desire to make math and theoretical courses more interesting, as evidenced by students' final exams, giving the deserving little scholars every benefit of the doubt. It unfairly confused itself to the inordinately lengthy time required to grade this multiple choice exam. Stop and think how easy the job is for those do-nothing English, history, and political science teachers, when compared to the task set ahead for our devoted math department. Yes, students, we have much to thank.

P.S. - A little bit more. Please make your efforts more visible.

William C. Geary, president.

OPERA REVIEW

They said perhaps it was due to the number of sharp points in the opera were quite simplistic as to their meaning. Many lines were lost due to rushed accents. And there was a general lack of character development on the part of many actors. But the production was not bad. It was just that what we never sought to achieve much significance it was superbly tepidly to the producers' intent.

Colonel athletes feted at all-sports banquet

by Bob Thompson

The annual Sports Banquet held this past Wednesday in the College Alumni Room was a resounding success. Most of the awards were presented and speeches delivered. Mr. Reese, athletic director and wrestling coach, and Mr. B. C. Basketball Manager, addressed the group briefly, followed by remarks by Dean Ralston. First to receive awards was the football team, and for its outstanding season, the team received its share of honors. Each letter recipient was given a letter certificate of merit recognizing the team’s accomplishments, and a miniature replica of the Lambert Bowl. Awards for outstanding achievements were then given. Seven men were named to the All-MAC team. They were: Bill Layden, Dennis Spuriegel, Al Yatko, Bevon Constance, Joe Koterba, Joe Wiendl, and Paul Purt. Named to the all-state team were Al Yatko and Paul Purti and to the ECAC All-East team, Al Yatko. Purti was also named the Most Valuable Player in the MAC Northern Division.

Named to the following:

Most Valuable Offensive Lineman - Joe Roschk
Most Valuable Offensive Back - Paul Purti
Most Valuable Defensive Back - Joe Wiendl
Most Valuable Defensive Lineman - Layden
Most Valuable Linebacker - Al Yatko

The last award for football was the Gallagher Award which is given to the person selected by his teammates who best exemplifies the spirit of the game. The award went to two-time captain, Ralph Hennigsten. Also announced were the year’s co-captains, Romney Varchol and Joe Roschk.

The soccer awards were then presented. Coach Jim Nedoff presented the Most Valuable Lineman award to Russ Jenkins and the Most Valuable Defender award to Bill Layden.

Lettermen’s Club picks officers for next year

by Bob Thompson

The Lettermen’s Club recently held elections for new officers and is currently planning for another year of service to the College and community. The Lettermen’s Club is the oldest club at the College, founded in 1946. Its purpose is to foster in its motto, “Service above self.” The club is held in high regard by all members of the Administration and especially its advisor, Dean Ralston.

But its extreme is hard won by years of service to both the College and community. Some of its outstanding projects in the past are: sponsorship of the Christmas Formal (since 1966), award of an annual scholarship, support of College capital improvement drives, assistance with any worthwhile project whether service or financial, and contribution to many community causes. In its twenty-year existence the club has contributed over $1000 to the College for scholarships, developments, and College programs.

Historically, one of its outstanding events was the 1946 presentation of the musical comedy “All in Fun.” With every part in it taken by a Letternen. The hilarious comedy was especially for the club by Al Groth and put to music by Ted Warkowski, a student.

The club’s annual program of activities includes: the Lettermen’s raffle, concession stand management, the Christmas Formal, Cherry Tree Chop, Lettermen’s Trip for faculty, and shoe shine day.

Next year’s officers are: president, Peter O’Keeffe; vice-president, Angelo Loverro; secretary, Bruce Comstock; treasurer, Joe Frappelli; and executive council members Jay Holliday and Mike Romes.

The final meeting of the year was held Tuesday with the new officers present. The purpose of the meeting was to select the winner of the Lettermen’s Scholarship. The scholarship is presented to the person who shows the most financial need, who is gifted not only athletically but scholarshiply and who shows himself to be a person who will be an asset to the College. With the help of Mr. Hoover and the coaching staff, he fulfilled his responsibilities, and his application was accepted along with those of Mr. Hoover’s, a student at that time, and his application was selected to receive the scholarship.

Joe Wiendl — Athlete of the Year

Athlete of the Year

In our October 28 issue in which we picked Joe Wiendl as our “Athlete of the Year,” we predicted that we would hear much more from the outstanding sophomore this year. Wiendl sparked the rest of the football season, placed 2nd in the NCAA Tournament and has lead the baseball team in hitting and fielding. For these feats the Beacon has followed the general opinion of the College athletic department in naming for our “Athlete of the Year.”

Wiendl is the College’s only three-letter man. In football he plays defensive half-back and also is the team’s punt-returner, averaging 10 yards per return for the season. He intercepted five passes last season and was instrumental in protecting the team’s fine defense. For his grid iron from Wiendl was picked by the team as most valuable defensive back. He was also named to the MAC Northern Division all-star team.

As if that isn’t enough, Joe was one of the outstanding members of the MAC championship wrestling team here at the College. Wrestling at 152 pounds, he compiled a ten-dual meet record, captured the MAC championship at that weight, and was runner-up in the NCAA Small College tournament.

In baseball Joe plays short-stop, but could probably play any position on the field with as much success. He is currently one of the most consistent hitters on the team, and we feel that by the end of the season he could possibly be the team’s most valuable player.

Wiendl came to Wilkes from Westfield High School, Westfield, New Jersey, where he participated in football, wrestling and baseball. He took the New Jersey State Championship in the 148 pound division. He is a Business Administration major and is a resident of the New Men’s Dorm.

The Beacon proudly takes this occasion to congratulate Joe on his outstanding performance in these three important sports areas and wishes him continued success in his remaining two years at Wilkes.

The Colonels shot out against good, but Bob Ockenfuss came through with the upshot of the day when he defeated Joe Runyan, 25-5. Ockenfuss moved up to the third spot because of his performances of late, topped the second place winner of the MAC tournament, Runyan, it will be remembered, last the title when he played the winning ball, received a two stroke penalty and lost the tournament by one point. John Davis moved up to the third place, took all three points from Bruce Brown.
