The test will include 1,000 testing centers for the benefit of students prevented by illness, pregnancy, or some other reason from taking the test on December 24 of this year.

A committee of National Headquarters said they could not emphasize too strongly that students who have not taken the test for their draft board or who are required to take the December 13, 1951, or April 1, 1952, test which they failed to take, on the assigned date must submit a new application if they wish to take the May 22 test. Application blanks for the May 22 test may be obtained by stu- dents from the nearest local board. They do not have to return home to the nearest local board which awards the ad- mission ticket. Application for the May 22 test should be mailed as soon as possible to the Educa- tional Recruitment Branch, Washington, New Jersey. LET'S BREAK A RECORD

The American Red Cross is conducting a nation-wide campaign in an effort to create a blood bank with large reserves of whole blood and plasma which will be available for a variety of purposes.

Our fighting forces overseas will have a constant supply for casualty needs: civilian defense units will have reserves to meet any emergency brought about by bombing or invasion; hospitals will have the needed stocks to meet the many requirements of civilian medical purposes.

This year, more than ever before, the American Red Cross needs blood to continue its fight against death in Korea. Physiologists discovered that the direct cause of the death of the wounded soldier is not the American GI's has been not the wound itself, but shock from loss of blood. Blood transfusions conducted at the front lines have greatly reduced the list of casualties in Korea.

It is now possible for those who are giving their lives in Korea to give a pint of our blood. May 12 has been scheduled "Wilkes Day" at the Wilkes-Barre Blood Bank. Although a relatively small college, Wilkes gave 105 pints last year. It is hoped that this year Wilkes will contribute 200 pints.

This is the opening day of the challenge at the University of Idaho, which claims it has the bloodiest campus in the United States. Its total per cent of blood donors reached 38 per cent when it last had the bloodmobile on campus.

If we can get the support of campus activities and chairmen of the blood drive on campus, said this week, "To break the University of Idaho's record we need 200 pints of blood. This number would bring our percentage to 40 per cent or better."

All over the U. S. efforts are being made to promote the interest and action of civilians to donate blood to save lives. Community activities and mobilization of the 1953 blood drive were a bigger success than any previous campaigns.

The Student Council is offering gifts to blood donors, The names of all donors who contribute on "Wilkes Day" will be placed in a container. Five names will be drawn and gifts will be presented to those students at the forthcoming Cinderella Ball.

Let's clear up a few misconceptions that some people maintain regarding the Red Cross and the donation of blood. First of all, contrary to the opinion of many, giving a pint of your blood is NOT a dangerous thing. The Red Cross does its utmost to reject any donor who is not physically qualified to give blood. Employees in the blood testing unit to eliminate the possibility of taking blood from an anemic individual, and the blood pressure of each volunteer is taken. The absence of those whose blood pressure is within normal limits. The college physician, Dr. Samuel D. Davenport, states, "You may feel assured that your health will not be in any danger if you are accepted by the American Red Cross as a donor."

Another notion held by some individuals is that the Red Cross systematically decides what kinds of blood they want. This is not true. The Red Cross solicits blood from all people, and will accept blood of any kind but not for the product itself. Doctors may charge for their professional services, too.

The Red Cross is turned over to the military authorities who alone are responsible for its use. Some of this blood is processed to plasma by commercial firms under contract to the Department of Defense, and it is in turn distributed to the medical supplies of the armed forces would charge the soldier and wounded for plasma.

Let's get behind the Red Cross and our fighting men in Korea! Let's break the record now held by the University of Idaho! With 200 pints of blood we can do it! Visit The Blood Bank on Monday, May 12, and donate a pint of your blood.
"Ah, WILDERNESS!" DRIVES HUGE CROWD; CRITIC PRaises CUE N' CURTAIN CAST

BY THOMAS THOMAS

"Ah, Wilderness!" a comedy by Eugene O'Neill, presented at the gym last weekend by Cue n' Curtain was well attended andticket sales were so good that it was remarkable considering the large cast.

The cast was persuasive and showed a great deal of polish. Ann Astin and Paul Stetz did a good and important job of making their characters leave their personalities and squeeze tight into the parts of the Miller parent. Dale Warmouth appeared to be nervous in the part of David McCook but even here is amazing considering the cast that he only had one week of rehearsal. Two of the most effective pieces of acting done were by Ed Wallison and Dick Hawk.

Direction of the play was a big plus. It was entertaining. Among the scene changes were so many scenes and actors that it was hard to keep track of them. Mr. Grob and Addie Elvis, however, had a great deal of cooperation from the cue n' curtain cast. The services of Peter Morgan, the convention chairman, and the line of furnishing furniture and costumes. The show was directed by Bert Widder, Mr. Carter, Glen Towne, Woolbert Thomas, and Stetz, the stage crew of Wilkes.

There were some minor notes to this rejoicing, however, and that is that many of our best actors of the Cue n' Curtain Club were out of town. Among them will be Bert Rebbas, club publicity director, treasurer, club treasurer, and Addie Elvis.

IRC GROUP TAKES CONVENTION BY STORM; ADVENTURES NOT LIMITED TO POLITICS

BY LOU STECK

"Everywhere you go sunshine follows you." Such was not the case when the IRC of Wilkes College journeyed to Harrisburg for the first time to take part in a Republican Conference on Government. But despite the rain and the Republicans had a victorious and an enjoyable convention in the Capitol City.

The Republican National Political Convention opened Thursday evening with speeches by Hon. Richard W. Bellinger, U.S. Representative from Missouri, who spoke on "The Democratic Heritage." He was joined by Senator John V. Beamer, U.S. Representative from Wilkesbarre, who spoke on "The Republican Program." The speakers were cheered and jeered, but at least there was a forum for public discussion held by their party. All the while the weather continued to be drizzly. Although the convention offices were held, Rep. Bellinger inspired the Democrats with his speech that they met in caucus and decided to stick together to support Governor James H. Buchanan, their candidate. Wilkes College was instrumental in calling this meeting and will have greater support for Aud. Stevenson, who was later nominated.

Headed by "Dimple" Morrell, "Gunner" Lewis, and "Boo" Tweddle Mrs. Ann the Wilkes delegation started to rally support to Stevenson and give a sweet talk a voce, Bonnae would threaten a vote and when both failed, Lewis would come in and finish (71) the job.

The following night in the House of Representatives was chairman convention started. Nomination of the St. Louis candidate impossible. Next came the balloting, but no one saw the ballots for to be revealed. They were served to the waiting Smith, chairman for the delegates and was chairman of the party for President. Following Stevenson's victory the victorious schools marched through Harrisburg and3rd ballot the delegates were staying at. Buildings, streets, and parks were being held throughout the night. When the majority of the Republicans seemed happy.

Charles Cafray, IRC president of Wilkes College, was chairman of the Health and Welfare Committee and discussed and drew up a platform for the Model Party. Mr. Cafray did a fine job handling the conference's business. The way he handled his meeting and the business keep it moving. New, he also handled the convention's business keep it moving.

Caucus are in order for Louis Bowne's Club, who had handled all the arrangements. The delegates are expected to guide the IRC Convention through the confusing maze. "One more step and Bessey, Bowne is also Assistant Regional Chairman of the National District of Pennsylvania is feared by every student politician but is a friend to every honest one.

If you should ever see an IRC member you might as well talk to Mr. Bessey. Bowne is a very fine fellow and is often seen in the halls of the university.

Colonels TOP SEM 16-7 IN FAST GAME

The Wilkes Colonels broke into the win column for the first time this season Monday when they suddenly subdued their neighboring rivals-Wilkes Semi-by a score of 16-7.

At, give him the benefit of the doubt for he is probably recalling sweet memories of the convention. Art Hoover, coming down at 3:30 in the afternoon and thinking that the wrestling would not be over before the evening, because his watch had stopped. Stetz, a member of the Colonels, when the elevator made one of its "quick stops", Henry Merrell praying in those same elevators.

Bob Stally trying to decide whether he was going to be a publican and then turning "red" when he announced his decision. Lou Steck making an emphatic stop outside of Harrisonburg, to the railroad station.

The whole Wilkes Delegation taking off to the roof with the cordial waitress at the Roxbury Restaurant. Victor Mailly refusing to wear a red tie.

Tom Flippes acting as J. B. Stetz's guest at room hotel room (election, not Tom).

Joe Reynolds, acting as a fine host for his room and then getting mad when J. B. Stetz insisted on being brought to him to sit.

He felt this until unfelt Friday night that he shared all his food with his roommate, Bob Stally.

Tom Vojak and his little adventures Saturday night with the Colonels being teased by Joe Reynolds who didn't have any little adventures. These are just a few of the many adventures that might be missed over so amusingly.

Now that the big convention is over, the IRC will settle down to its work for the year and make plans for their final annual dinner to be held at the end of the year.

900 THRILL TO FIRST CONCERT BY LIVA'S WYOMING VALLEY PHILHARMONIC ORCHESTRA

By WALTER CHAPKO

The first concert of the WVPOA was well received by an appreciative audience of more than 900 in a plush setting at the Annual Meeting.

Benedict Picone, the conductor, opened the program with the "Adagio" movement of "La Nozze." The robust air of the overture was enlivened by the playing of Robert Moran, Wioko band leader, and Benjamin Fleet, who both excelled in trombone performances.

Liva followed with Schubert's Symphony No. 5, "The Allegro Vivace." Fourth movement of the symphony, displayed the agility of the Philharmonic string section. Arnold Lomax, concertmaster, led the first violin section; Betsey Picone was the principal of the second violin section; and the viola section was led by Eugene Brandt. Ono Liva was first man of the violin section. Later in the program, Liva publicly thanked all these fellow musicians and leaders for their fine work.

John G. Detroy, associate conductor, conducted the final section of the concert. The Philharmonic Band of the WUPOA was featured in the orchestra's special selection, the Piano Concerto A Minor by Schumann. During the concert, the keyboardist, who reflected his experience playing with the Indiana Symphony Orchestra, gave a short intermission followed in which the audience listened to the Philharmonic Band's performance.

The Prelude to Wagner's "Lohengrin" opened the program after intermission. Wagner's March from "Parsifal" and the Suite from "Banean" immediately followed. The Wilkes College Choral Club, Sorrento Community Society Chorus, and the Kunkles Glee Club of Scranton reinforced the orchestra with a fine choral performance in the Grand Scene of the Concerto from "Alida" by Verdi. Eleanor S. Detry, soprano, Steven Zanaczkowski, tenor, and Milton Lawrence, bass, harmonized beautifully with preciseness and warmth. Eugene Farley, president of the WUPOA, congratulated Mr. Liva for the organization of an orchestra which Mr. Farley, personally, had not believed possible at the present time. Mr. Liva has been incessantly striving for the creation of a Philharmonic orchestra in the Valley for the last three years. Two attempts to start it had been futile; he tried, however, that it shall continue to provide the Valley with good entertainment.

The present orchestra is composed mainly of local talent. Of the nineteen-five musicians, who played on Monday night, all but six are residents of the community; others are members of the Rockefeller Philharmonic who aided the local orchestra in the night. Since the musicians are from this community, it is hoped that they will be encouraged to support the orchestra and show its appreciation for their efforts. You can show your desire for a benefit evening of the orchestra by giving to the Philharmonic Society, which has been instituted for the primary purpose of securing a permanent Philharmonic orchestra for Wyoming Valley by joining the Philharmonic Society.

SORRY WRONG NUMBER—This stupid screen drama opens with a grim telephone call. The conversation between two murderers is accompanied by an invalid woman, goes something like this: "Hello?" "Who is this, please?" "This is John. What?" "But your name's John. Why not?"

"Well, why not?" "You're not what you say," etc.

"My name is John Walt. Why what?" "Oh, forget it. I'll call you up later." "Okay. Am I Johnson?" "No, I'm Knott. Why do you tell me your name then? "Will Knott." "Why not?" "My name is Knott." "No, what? (CLICK!)"
